

SUNDAY SCHOOL WANT AD CONTEST TO CLOSE MONDAY 6 P. M. SHARP

Announcement of Three Winners of $500 Aggregate Prizes to Be Made Wednesday.

The Journal's Sunday school "want" ad contest will close sharply at 6 p. m. tomorrow, Monday, December 22, and the final standing of the contestants will be published in The Journal not later than Wednesday.

It is imperative that campaign managers have all votes and slips of authority in the hands of the contest manager of The Journal not later than noon Monday. Any delay may result in failure to get credit for votes. No information will be given out regarding the final standing of the contestants until it is announced in The Journal.

SUNNYSIDE STRONG IN WANT AD CONTEST

Miss Ruth Whitney

Miss Ruth Whitney is organizing the workers of the Sunnyside M. E. Sunday school for the final lap in the drive for Journal Sunday school "want" ad contest votes. She is also the right-hand assistant to Miss Ethel Fenwick, the campaign manager of the Sunnyside M. E.

Flight Is Completed

London, Dec. 20.—(U. P.)—Captain Ross Smith has completed his flight from London to Melbourne, according to a message from that city today.

JACKSON COUNTY HAS WOMAN WHO SOLVES PROBLEMS OF GIFTS

Packages Are Sent to All Parts of America; One Forwarded to London, England.

Madison, Dec. 20.—Mrs. A. C. Lathrop, Jackson county farm bureau woman, has found a solution of the problem of Christmas gifts with a cook stove fruit drier. She has dried more than 800 pounds of fruit and vegetables, Rogue river valley cherries, figs, pears, peaches, plums and prunes. The dried fruit has been packed in attractive boxes and fruit rolls and sent to Mrs. Lathrop's friends and relatives. One 50-pound box was started for London, England.

Miss Anne McCormick, former home demonstrator agent in Jackson county, and now in New York City, will receive Jackson county fruit of all the seasons, sent her by Mrs. Lathrop.

Madison Elks will celebrate New Years day elaborately by keeping open house with dinner for members and their ladies, and a dance. The annual Christmas tree affair of the lodge, Thursday night, was the best attended in the history of local Elksdom, and hundreds of dollars were realized from the auction sale of contributed groceries, fruits, vegetables and other articles, which will be spent in providing food and presents for the poor on Christmas day.

The lightest attendance in the history of Jackson county characterized the examinations held at Jacksonville this week for state teachers' certificates, only 14 teachers attending. Jackson county will pay $102,274.80 in

Wife Says Husband Slashed Her on the Back With a Cane

Reno, Nev., Dec. 20.—(U. N. S.)—Rovana Wentworth Van Rensselaer of New York holds a decree of divorce from her husband here today, after testifying to acts of cruelty committed by him. She told the court that he had struck her so violently over the shoulders with an umbrella that he had broken its handle and that he had also slashed her across the back with his cane.

She said their quarrels were always over money, he insisting that her wealthy parents make a financial settlement on him.

In Paris, she says, he struck her for the first time and then told her that he would compel her to get a divorce by his treatment of her.

Alleged I. W. W. Are Acquitted in Bellingham Trial

Bellingham, Wash., Dec. 20.—The jury in the criminal syndicalism case against Lafayette Ady, Henry Larson and James Wilson, alleged I. W. W., returned a verdict of not guilty yesterday after being out for three hours. This was the first case of the kind tried in Washington. Similar actions are pending in other counties of the state.

Increase to Wounded Soldiers Washington, Dec. 20.—(U. P.)—The house today passed the conference report on the bill granting increased war risk compensation to the wounded soldiers.

PHIL METSCHAN JR. MAY BE PICKED AS JOHNSON'S MANAGER

Hotel Man Denies, However, That He Has Been Asked to Pilot Political Ship.

Phil Metschan Jr., popular Portland hotelman and prominent Republican leader, has been asked to manage the Johnson for president campaign in Oregon, political savants whisper. Although Metschan steadfastly denies that the job has been offered him, those who speak with apparent authority insist that he has been requested to pilot the political ship through Oregon seas, and that he has been given a few very days in which to accept or decline the job.

"I have not been asked to manage the Johnson campaign," was the only reply obtainable from the hotelman Saturday. He declined to say whether he would consider the position if tendered him.

His denial of the story indicated that Metschan will decline the job, say those who maintain it has been offered him. Metschan was educated at Willamette university and O. A. C. and has been identified with republican politics in Oregon for years. Phil Metschan Sr. served two terms as state treasurer and the son has been mentioned for governor. Metschan stayed with the T. faction when the progressives revolted in 1912 and supported Judge Hughes for the presidency in 1916. He was on the committee and took a prominent part in the reception to Senator Johnson when he appeared in Portland against the League of Nations.

Portland Teacher To Be in Des Moines Oratorical Contest

Miss Margaret Garrison, instructor in English and public speaking at the Franklin high school, has been selected as one of the seven orators to compete in the biennial national oratorical contest of the Intercollegiate Prohibition association, which will be held January 5, at Des Moines, Iowa.

This will be the third time in 19 years that a girl has competed in the national contests. Miss Garrison is a Salem girl and entered the contest while attending Willamette university, where Helen Miller Senn was then instructor in public speaking.

About 1500 students wrote and delivered orations in 290 colleges and university contests. The winners of these locals competed in state contests, 35 each year, and now the seven interstate winners will compete for the national honors.

Grays Harbor and Portland to Have O-W.R. & N. Sleeper

Standard sleeping car service between Portland and the Grays Harbor district over the O-W. R. & N. will be reestablished, beginning December 23, according to announcement made by William McMurray, general passenger agent of the O-W. R. & N. This through service was discontinued early in 1918 because of railroad administration orders and was to have been resumed earlier this month. Postponement of plans to replace the service sooner was necessitated by coal conservation orders.

M. Sichel, Local Merchant, Dead in Sixty-First Year

M. Sichel, well known Portland merchant, died Saturday at his home, 726 Johnson street, in his sixty-first year. He was born in Bavaria. He went to San Francisco in 1877 and the same year moved on to Portland.

He was first employed by the Fishler-Mayer company until 1880, when he moved to Prineville and established a general store and banking business. In 1897 he returned to Portland and started a retail clothing business, now located at 231 Washington street.

Sichel was well known throughout the state and had many friends. He was a member of the Concordia club, the Tualatin Country club and other organizations. Surviving M. Sichel are his widow, Mrs. Gustave Sichel, and one son, H. H. Sichel. Funeral services will be held at the residence, the Rev. Jonah B. Wise officiating. The Holman company has charge of arrangements.

William A. Holst The funeral of William A. Holst, steward of the United States ship Albatross, who died in Norfolk, Va., November 5, will be held at 11 a. m. today at the Holman parlors under auspices of Portland lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. The steamer men of Portland will attend in a body. Holst was 55 years of age. He is survived by his widow and two sons.

Mrs. Phoebe Brock, an early-day missionary among the Yakima Indians, died at her home in Lents Friday at the age of 79. She had gone to the Yakima country of Washington in 1872, and for 19 years had resided in the Portland suburb. She is survived by one son, W. F. Brock. Funeral services will be in Lents Monday.

William Bates died in this city Friday at the age of 77. He was born in Ohio and served in the Civil war in Company E, Thirtieth Indiana volunteer. Until recently Bates was employed in the shops of the O-W. R. & N. E. and was well known to many friends and comrades. He was a member of Sumner post, G. A. R. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. G. A. Bates, and two daughters, Mrs. L. Hawley and Miss Myrtle Bates. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. under the auspices of the G. A. R. at the chapel of F. S. Dunning & Co., 414 East Alder street.

Ice Is Released in Lewis River; Logs Are Carried Away

Woodland, Wash., Dec. 20.—With a dull roar that could be heard for miles, the ice in Lewis river commenced going out about eight o'clock, Thursday night, sweeping everything before it, and in places shoving great piles of ice up on the river bank. The ice was mixed with saw logs, railway ties, driftwood, small boats and every manner of float from the river bed, and was carried down stream at a slow rate, but with an enormous force.

No material damage was done in the immediate vicinity of Woodland. All parties having interests, or living in or near the river were notified by telephone that the ice gorge was coming. It is feared that the ice jam will carry the logs and railway ties out into the Columbia, and should this occur the loss would be very heavy on Lewis river tie and timber operators, as there has recently been a big drive of railway ties brought down, and many logs have been torn loose by the ice, which accumulated to a thickness of about eight inches.

Radio Reaches Vladivostok Seattle, Dec. 20.—(U. N. S.)—Pacific coast cities today are in closer touch with Siberia by the installation of a new naval radio circuit to Vladivostok. Messages will be transmitted by way of Seattle, Bremerton, Cordova and St. Paul Island to Vladivostok, where a radio station has been in operation several months.

Here's Way to Save Canned Goods That Have Frozen

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Dec. 20.—Worried housewives can save their frozen canned fruits and vegetables by quick action, say the home economic specialists at the college. They should thaw the fruit out slowly, as soon as possible after it is frozen. If the bottles are unbroken they may be set back in their places as soon as the cold spell breaks. If the containers break or bulges, the contents must be resterilized and recanned. No additional sugar is used, as it causes a decrease of natural flavors. Experiments were made with peaches, cherries, apples, pears and tomatoes. Only fruits that were frozen a long time broke down badly, and these were made into jams.

Dr. James C. Reid Will Preach Today

Dr. James C. Reid of San Francisco, better known as the secretary of the Interstate World Movement of the Pacific coast, will preach this morning and evening at Central Presbyterian church. W. T. Belcher, director of the church, announces three numbers; the entire chorus will sing, "Rejoice Greatly"; "Glory to God," by a chorus of women's voices; then, "Let Us Go," will be rendered by a chorus of male voices. The pulp supply committee will within a few days announce the name of the new pastor. All societies of the church are growing.

Former Athlete Is Portland Visitor

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stewart, R. G. Stewart and little Winslow and Babbie Stewart of Butte, are spending the holidays with Dr. Bertha Stuart Dymont. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart are the parents and Mrs. Stewart the brother of Mrs. Dymont. They are one of the manufacturers of the Stewart truck, upon which The Journal is carried to points where deliveries have to be made in bulk. He is an old University of Michigan athlete, with a boxful of medals for track victories laid away in his garret.

Minister to Answer 'Why Worry?' Query

The Rev. Thomas Jenkins of St. David's Episcopal church will answer the question this morning, "Why should men think of heaven?" In the evening he will speak on the sin of an ancient king. The Christmas services of this church will be announced later. After the morning service the captains will have teams ready for a meeting in the chapel. This meeting is of importance to every member of the team.
