The lecture on January 25 will be transitional to a series in February answering doubts as to the nature of Christ, the value of churches, the use of worship and other doubts characteristic of our day.

These lectures will touch real and universal human problems in a straightforward, concrete and reasonable way. Christianity is primarily a life rather than a creed. But life may be less useful and happy for lack of religious convictions; and a false philosophy of life may ruin a man-or a nation.
