Here's Something New Again Liberty to Feature Effects

More "big time" stuff for Portland. Again, or yet, it might well be said, it's Paul Noble, manager of the Liberty, who has something to offer, the story being, briefly, that beginning next Saturday, pictures at the Liberty will be presented in style de luxe, with all the stage settings, scenery, effects and people, that mark the service of the really big New York houses and of the Grauman theatre, Los Angeles. In fact, it is from that Los Angeles cinema, where he has attracted national recognition for his exploitation, that Jack Callicott comes to the Liberty to inaugurate a new era for the big J. & V. house. "I have given Callicott carte blanche," says Noble, "to go to it and he has already lined up a program that is going to make motion picture history in Portland." The familiar Columbia highway "falls" effects on the stage at the Liberty, long the admiration of patrons there.

THE Stroller notices

WHAT the old chap who polishes the big establishment down Fifth street keeps them as shiny and slick as a nigger's heel. That in the process he splashes bon ami or whatever it is all over the side of the building. That those who are taking in the old English comedy revival at the Auditorium this week are not the regular theatre first nighters. That some of the girls who work in the lunch rooms about town have enormous appetites. That pickles and cream seem to be their favorite dessert. That there's quite a knack in letting a baby buggy down over a snowstorm without bouncing the baby out on its bean. That we learned this from experience. That whenever we see a new father trying to juggle a buggy down town wheels first we stand by to offer first aid. That some men with political bees get stung, and that's all. That kind friends and neighbors needn't worry if our big cake hound doesn't make his regular visits today. That we have him tied.

Women Outline Comedy Players Offer Fine Numbers

By Vella Winner
THE women of the nations have been knit together in service for the broadest and most comprehensive work, the National Young Woman's Christian association is launching an educational and a finance campaign for $2,000,000 to promote its world's service program for 1920 in carrying on its after-war work and to enlarge its usefulness by extension of its activities to the smaller towns and rural communities of the continent. The apportionment for the northwest field, including Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, is $300,000; Oregon's budget is $21,000. Of the $20,000 to be raised, $60,000 will be left in the northwest field and the remaining $20,000 will be used for national and foreign work. Miss M. Belle Johnson, director of the campaign for Oregon, has spent the last several weeks out in the state perfecting county organizations through which the campaign will be conducted, and she reported interest at the highest prospect of success in all sections. She is being assisted in the work by Miss Gertrude P. Baker. The state advisory committee consists of Miss Elizabeth Dean, dean of women at the University of Oregon; Mrs. Ida B. Callahan, president of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Charles H. East, president of the Portland Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Donald Spencer, Mrs. Stella Richardson and Dr. Estelle Ford Warner. Miss Jeffery, Miss Fox and Dr. Warner will spend much time during the next few weeks speaking in behalf of the campaign. The Portland campaign will not be put on until the latter part of February, but throughout the state the campaign will be put on at once. Astoria, where a new association is being formed, raised $300 for this work in November. Salem is getting its organization ready for an early campaign and throughout the state the women who own good service in the various war drives are giving their assistance to this work. The present plan provides for the organization of associations in Astoria, Baker, Klamath Falls and The Dalles.

Are We More Extravagant? Is Our Taste More Exacting?

Has the housewife become extravagant as the result of having more money to spend? Are her tastes more luxurious and more exacting? Does she confine her purchases to necessities, or are unseasonable luxuries included? Does she fail to get an accurate account of household expenditures a mistake that costs a good many dollars every year? These and other problems are suggested by the score or more of housewives who have discussed their views of the high cost of living with the Household Editor during the last two weeks. The Journal is desirous of making this department a basis for help to the housekeeper who is anxious to meet present conditions with the least possible outlay and to that end communications either by mail or over the telephone concerning household experiences will be welcomed. If you have actual figures on what your living costs were four years ago and what they are now, they will be especially appreciated. Address the Household Editor.

THE CLIMBERS At Columbia Today

"What is a 'climber'?" The term is almost exclusively used in the social set to designate a type of social parasite who strives to break inside the forbidden precincts of the social circle. A visualization of such characters is given in Vitagraph's latest picture, "The Climbers," starring Corinne Griffith, at the Columbia today. Climbers are seen to be persons who use all manner of ruses to reach recognition as wearers of the social purple, but who for some indefinable reason cannot attain the goal of their ambitions. "The Speak-Easy," a Sennett comedy, on the same bill.

Mystery Play Is Attraction at the Alcazar This Week

With ghostly thrills and plenty of tense dramatic action the Revelation of a Wife, playing this week at the Alcazar is a reminder of the old days of real melodrama. The situations become involved to a considerable extent. In order to see the "Revelation of a Wife" will go for the rest of the week at the Alcazar, afternoon's and evenings.

FRATERNAL NOTES

Kirkpatrick council, Security Benefit association, has arranged for another of its series of social dances Friday night at the Elks' club. Third and Jefferson streets. Members and friends are invited. Portland Star homestead, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, has arranged for a reception to O. C. Blake, state manager, and Pero Blake, district manager, Thursday night at Fort Lincoln, S. T. V. hall, 255 Thirteenth street.

"TINKER BOB" STORIES BY CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB

ON THE morning the king was greatly surprised. North Wind had heard of the king's plan and when morning came he blew the clouds away and the sun shone brightly. The Chickadees were first on the scene, for they roosted near the king's place and when they began to chatter feathered creatures of many kinds. Tinker Bob was indeed astonished to find so many had remained in the Great Forest for the winter. "I have heard you were gone," said Tinker, speaking to an early comer. "I am the Mrs. Sage Hen. I live on the edge of the Forest where the sage brush grows. "Don't you go to a warmer place in the winter-time?" asked the King. "No, we live in one place all seasons of the year, and as long as there are sage hens we can live," said Mrs. Sage Hen as she spread her wings. She came here because Mr. Weasel has killed many of my children. "There comes Bobby the Screech Owl," said Tinker, "I don't see you wandering about much in the day time." "I don't go out much in the day light," said Bobby. "The light hurts my eyes and so I stay in a hole in a tree. But his Mr. Weasel has been so troublesome to all of the smaller creatures that I want to speak against him." "Here comes Mr. and Mrs. Whitetailed Puffinbird, said the King. "We do not see them very often, they are so timid. Why do you come here today?" "We come because Mr. Weasel has killed many of our brothers and sisters. You have a beautiful coat of white. It's hard to tell where you are when the ground is covered with snow." "Mother Nature has given us a white coat for winter and a gray and black one for summer." "Well, there comes Mr. Ruffed Grouse. He braves all kinds of weather and is so strong." "I heard Mr. Jay Bird telling Mr. Weasel and I thought I must come and tell you he has killed my mate and should pay the penalty." Tomorrow—Mr. Weasel Found Guilty.
