Wonderful Inducements to Buyers

CHERRY CHAT THE extraordinary price reductions made on all winter apparel for women during Cherry's Annual January Clearance Sale are attracting record crowds every day.

The fact that one may buy on such convenient monthly terms is a feature that adds very greatly to the public interest in the event. For by paying just a few dollars cash it is possible to secure an entire outfit of fashionable clothing at a great saving, and finish the payments in small monthly sums.

Be sure to investigate this sale that will be called the most important merchandising event of the year. Cherry, 381 Washington.—Adv.

LIVE FINNERY in "The Heart Breakers," this week's fun show at the Lyric.

Alcazar Show Especially Good

By E. C. L. ALCAZAR MUSICAL PLAYERS put on a pretentious, colorful, enjoyable production in "The Firefly" this week. There is something likable about the Alcazar players, personally. It is a pleasure to watch them work. They seem like friends to the regular show-goer.

And in "The Firefly" through three acts they romp and skip and sing in manner so joyous and free that they are simply immense. Before the week is out the little rough spots incidental to quick staging will have been eliminated and the presentation of "The Firefly" will be a gem.

There are a number of new faces in the chorus this week, and the girls show promise. There's at least one new principal, and she possesses a fine voice. Randolph Thomas sang "A Woman's Smile" on his Portland premier Monday night to such good effect that he was forced to repeat three times.

Mabel Wilber is fascinating. First as the Italian street urchin, and later as a prima donna, she has excellent opportunity to display clothes. She wore a cream dress with a net overdrape and tiny brilliants in the third act. It was a beauty.

Miss Wilber sings four songs effectively—"Love Is Like a Butterfly," "Clan-na-Mia," "When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart" and "Kiss Me."

George Natansen, as usual, is master always of the situation. His "Call Me Uncle," "Sympathy" and "An American Beauty Rose" were all well received.

And Eva Olivetti, Lee Daly, Eddie Sedan and Detmar Poppen, of course, shine brightly. The Alcazar couldn't get along without this quartet. Eva's dancing is good. Lee, Eddie and Detmar sing and pull hokum for the audience's pleasure.

Way Wallace, like Miss Wilber, displays a striking gown. Hers is silver, trimmed in black. It is bizarre and effective.

Fraternality Notes THE officers of Orpha Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., meeting in Montavilla every second and fourth Tuesday of the month, are as follows: Edith Maynard, noble grand; Anna Regulia, vice grand; Laura Beckman, warder; Alice Wilton, conductor; Carrie Bayson, chaplain; Mary Thompson, inside guard; J. Hawthorn, captain of team; Della Phelps, past grand.

Dr. A. H. Johnson, grand warden of the I. O. O. F., has offered to furnish free clarinet lessons to a limited number of young men who will assist in forming an I. O. O. F. band. Any interested are requested to phone Main 3088.

By Vella Vittner THE valor and fortitude of General Robert E. Lee were recalled in song, story and address at the annual celebration of the anniversary of the birth of this much loved Southern general, given Monday by the Oregon chapter, Daughters of Confederacy.

The gathering was in the nature of a luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. B. Barbour. Mrs. J. Wesley Hall headed the luncheon committee and was assisted by Mrs. L. R. The table was decorated with white carnations and ferns. Assisting in serving were Miss Hella Berger and Miss Anna Lee Miller.

Elton Watkins, president of the Jackson club, paid an eloquent tribute to General Lee in which he recalled many of the personal, intimate things concerning the general which were told to him by his father, who served under General Lee from the beginning to the end of the war. A large attendance of Washington and Lee college of which Lee was president.

Messrs. Welis, Martin and Scruggs, Confederate veterans, who were guests, added personal reminiscences of the war. Mrs. L. R. Bailey, who was a delegate from the chapter of the reunion of Confederate veterans held last summer in the city, made a moving account of the erection of a monument to General Lee's memory in Washington.

The Unitarian alliance will hold an all day meeting Wednesday at the church, corner Yamhill and Broadway, beginning at 10 a. m. There is sewing for European refugees and a large attendance is desired.

Griffith; "Male and Female," by Cecil B. De Mille; "Evelyn," by George Melford; and "Evangeline," by Raoul Walsh. The best comedy dramas of the year, according to the critic are "23 1/2 Hours' Laughter" made by Henry King, and "Mickey," a Mack Sennett production.

"TINKER BOB" STORIES BY CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB

The King Follows Snoopy TINKER BOB saw Snoopy the Bob Cat bounding through the forest just as he was about to tie up the Mr. Weasel must be causing some trouble and hurriedly followed Snoopy on his way. When the Bob Cat arrived on the scene, he heard Mr. Weasel coaxing him to follow. He thought he was closer to him than he might examine his fur. Snoopy hesitated a moment to see who was following him. He fell into the confidence of the treacherous Weasel.

"I am close enough," said Snow Shoe. "If you want to know more about my fur you will have to see my brother. It may be that he will let you closer to him."

"I am harmless and could not hurt a big fellow like you." As Mr. Weasel spoke to Snow Shoe he crept closer and closer. When he thought he was within jumping distance he sprang at Snow Shoe, hoping to clutch him by the throat. But the Great Rabbit of the North was not there.

"I knew that was your trick," said Snow Shoe as he bounded a few yards away.

"Oh, I just wanted to see if you were afraid of me. Mr. Weasel intended wouldn't you harm nor anyone else. Let us walk together to the river for a drink. That club-footed Muskrat has broken a hole in the ice, and it will be a good drinking place."

Lamb, until about 12 years ago, was with the firm of McAlpin & Lamb here, and helped to put the Multnomah club on its feet through the production of plays. Lamb starred in "Blue in the Face" and "The Little White Lambkins" started in "Two Little Waifs," later playing over the entire country. "My son is now managing a 'Y' hut at Prague," said Lamb, "and my daughter is married to the son of G. B. Kaldor, who has large timber interests at Dallas, is at the Seward.

The Meglers have a huge cannery near Brookfield, Wash. Mrs. J. G. Megler is now spending a few days at the Portland.

L. S. Michelson has been traveling over the country for 30 years, ever since his Texas cow punching days. In the ranks of traveling salesmen, Michelson is regarded as a veteran. "I keep young, though, by right living," he says. Michelson has just placed Tommy McGee, a former Portlander, and a well known commercial man of the Northwest, in charge of his firm's interests in this section. Michelson is at the Multnomah.

T. J. Worral, proprietor of the Tillamook hotel at the town of that name, is at the Oregon.

Mrs. Carol C. Seeley of Arlington is the wife of the late G. C. Seeley, a contractor for the new stretch of the Columbia river highway being constructed.

William Farnum Feature at Liberty

William Farnum runs the gamut of thrills again at the Liberty theatre this week in the photoplay, "The Last of the Duanees," a picture play which affords the versatile screen star every opportunity to sustain the popularity he has won in past performances. The play is a picture of the novel by Zane Grey. Aside from the physical aspects of the piece which keep Farnum in the limelight as an acrobat and daredevil, the play contains a love story of compelling force.

Farnum takes the part of Buck Duane. As a matter of self protection, he is obliged to kill a man who had threatened him. Following this tragedy he flees from civilization and finally ends up with outlaws.

Featuring this phase is his rescue of a girl captured by the leader of the bandits. The girl is taken away from him by the bandits, but she escapes. The girl rewards her benefactor by later helping him to escape paying the penalty for his crime. During his Texas border experience he cleans up tough characters in Wild West fashion.

Murtagh's musical direction continue to be a feature of the show.

"Oh, I came down from the mountain top when the snow came and I have been dwelling here in the midst of the forest ever since."

When the King spoke to Snow Shoe, Mr. Weasel tried to slip away unheard.

When he thought he was within jumping distance, he sprang at Snow Shoe.

Violinist and Tenor to Be Soloists

MUSIC lovers in Portland will have another opportunity of hearing John Hand, American tenor, who will sing at the Auditorium Thursday night with the Norwegian Singing society.

John Hand has been praised by critics wherever he has appeared and in Portland, but a few days ago, he delighted an audience at the Auditorium, and was booked for the return engagement. Mr. Hand will be accompanied by Le Var Jensen, an excellent pianist.

Another feature on the program Thursday night will be the appearance of Wilhelm Aronson, violinist, whose brilliant playing has the critics so much favorable comment. The announcement of his appearance in connection with this musical feature has created widespread interest.

The Norwegian Singing society is an organization long recognized as one of the leading singing societies in the Northwest. This year the society has a membership of 40 trained voices.

The advance tickets opened today at Sherman-Clay music house, at Sixth and Morrison streets.

Marcella Craft to Sing "Butterfly" What should prove a decidedly outstanding feature of the San Carlo Grand Opera company's engagement at the Auditorium next week is the suddenly announced engagement of Marcella Craft, the American soprano, to sing "Chio Cho San in Madame Butterfly," Wednesday night, next week.

Miss Craft, for five years the principal soloist of the San Carlo Grand Opera, Munich, prior to the war, is a California girl, and before her European conquests on the operatic stage was chief soloist at the Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

At Munich she created the role of "Chio Cho San," and Puccini, the composer, journeyed from Milan to hear her.

A few years back when Horatio Park's $10,000 prize opera "Fairlyland" was staged at Los Angeles, before the National Federation of Musical clubs, Miss Craft was chosen to sing the leading role. She has not appeared in opera on the Pacific coast with that one exception and there is a keen interest in her coming.

That the girl with the Green Eyes was buying lingerie this evening.

That there is probably a reason.

That there was a bit of snap in the atmosphere this morning.

That there was considerable commotion at home last night when it was discovered that the pup had disappeared.

That for a while it seemed that he had completely vanished.

That he was finally found sleeping snugly in the ash pit of the furnace.

That he would have been a surprised pup had we happened to shake the grate.

That some people make pretty heavy work of light housekeeping.

That all army shoes have not been in the army.

That the angle worms are limbering up.

So This is Portland! Bend Jan. 20.—Dear Stroller: The semi-annual trip, that I once mentioned, to your fair city, is over and done, and now I'm back where there is sunshine, and the atmosphere is a gas and not a liquid.

I don't want you to think that I am trying to knock Portland. The people are nice and it's a nice town, but I haven't come so near drowning in it as I did in the last town I was back in the old home town, when I was a kid. I heard some folks mention POG while I was down there. It means a good deal to me, but it's no longer for when you have to travel by compass. That is necessary on water, but gee, wasn't it awful.

Sorry that I couldn't find time to come up and use that kind invitation you gave to me, but you see, she lives on the other side of the river, and by the time I was free to do as I pleased, you'd take it home and playing with the kiddies. Outside of that, I have the idea that a busy man has no time for all the callers that one of your fame must have.

That's all right. N. A. C. We know how it is. You and "She" had a little quarrel, didn't you, and that made every thing look dark and gloomy. But cheer up, old man, you'll take it to seriously. Tell her you're sorry; chances are "She" is too, and if you value your future happiness don't let some silly misunderstanding go on and on all the time making it a little harder to make up.
