"TINKER BOB" STORIES

BY CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB

Mr. White Foot in Danger TINKER BOB peered eagerly at the strange note that showed itself in the door of the passage-way that led to an unknown place somewhere in the forest thicket. The note was not there long when White Foot, the Forest Mouse, sprang out. Instantly he started toward the stranger, and as he went, he called out: "Who comes there?" There was an answer. "Who comes there?" he cried again. This time the stranger advanced toward him slowly. "I heard what you said. I am the Pine Mouse and I am going to meet Miss Mole myself and your son will not even have a chance to see her."

"That's no! We shall see. I say if that is the way you feel about it, my son will meet you in battle and it shall be decided by strength who shall win Miss Mole." "Ha! Ha!" laughed Mr. Pine Mouse. "Just as you say around and we will have a battle and you are the intruder for him if he feels that a little White Foot could battle with a Pine Mouse." Of course young White Foot was smaller than Mr. Pine Mouse, but he had a longer tail and was proud of it. In fact, Mr. Pine Mouse came very near not having any tail at all. It was short and stubby and covered with fur. "You have no right to be here," said White Foot. "This is not your home, who do you mind your own affairs?" "You happen to be mistaken, sir. This den I built myself and these highways I built, and you are the intruder."

And that would be the last of them. Tinker Bob had never before realized that so many thrilling things could happen in the little den of a Pine Mouse. But even stranger things than this happened. Only one thing could save trouble now and that was the presence of Miss Mole. So Tinker Bob in his desire called for Miss Mole and suddenly she appeared. And instantly the trouble ended, for they were all in love with her. Tomorrow—The Sly Creature of the Mountain.

Harold Henry Is Here to Appear in Recital Tonight

Harold Henry, pianist, who is to appear in recital tonight in the Ellison-White series, arrived here Tuesday night later than planned, because of delay by a freight wreck on the Milwaukee line. The distinguished Kansas pianist is having a busy season, having appeared in 40 recitals already during the winter. From here he goes to Seattle to appear with the symphony orchestra. The advance sale of tickets for tonight's recital at the Heilig indicates a large attendance. Change at People's Publishers make up lists of the most popular books of the year and call them the "six best sellers." Now that prohibition has become an arid reality, are the most popular people in a community those who have the largest supplies of private stock on hand? In other words, in each city and hamlet to designate a select few as "The Six Best Cellars?" That's the title of the new Bryant Washburn picture comedy at the new Peoples Union. It is a funny story about prohibition and the complications that it caused in a certain social set in a fashionable suburb town. Howworthy Hall and Hugh Kabler wrote it. Donald Crisp was the director and it is a Paramount Artcraft picture. New Show at Columbia The new End Bennett picture, "The Woman in the Sultanae," which is being shown during the latter part of the week at the Columbia, is a treat for feminine movie fans if for no other reason than that the pretty star exhibits a most exquisite wardrobe. There are several evening gowns that would make any debutante jealous. One is of lavender georgette tucked in squares and trimmed in little ostrich tips of laven.

Women's Chorus Is Pleasing Feature of Organ Recital

Lucien E. Becker, organist, and 26 women singers of the Monday Musical club pleased a good sized audience on Sunday afternoon in the regular municipal organ concert at The Auditorium. Becker played selections from the works of MacDowell, Bach, Adams and Debussy. His most popular number was Adams' "Holy City." Becker answered his encore with a minuet. Many friends of the Monday Musical club attended the concert. Mrs. Rose Coarsen Reed directed the chorus, which sang entirely from memory. A negro "Swing Along" was especially popular with the audience. Mrs. F. W. Youney accompanied the chorus on the piano.

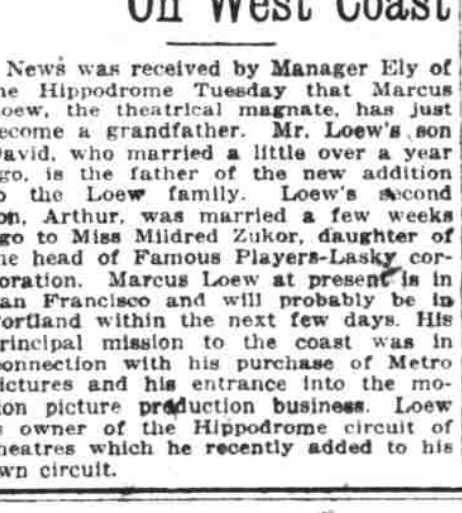

Marcus Loew Is On West Coast

Marcus Loew at present is in San Francisco and will probably be in Portland within the next few days. His principal mission to the coast was in connection with his purchase of Metro pictures and his entrance into the motion picture production business. A lake steamer designed especially to carry automobiles between Detroit and Buffalo will be built for a transportation company of the former city.
