

PITTOCK TRUSTEES ANSWER CHARGES IN WILL CONTEST

Sweeping Denial That Late Publisher Was Influenced Made in Reply to Daughter's Suit.

A general denial of all allegations made by Caroline P. Leadbetter, daughter of the late Henry L. Pittock, publisher of the Oregonian, in her attempt to break the $8,000,000 trust fund created by the will of Pittock, is made by O. L. Price, executor, and O. L. Price and C. A. Morden, trustees of the estate, in an answer to Mrs. Leadbetter's amended petition, filed in probate late Tuesday afternoon.

The answer is a sweeping contradiction of all assertions made in the Leadbetter petition, especial attention being paid by the trustees to statements that undue influence and illegality surrounded the drawing of the reported will.

UNDUE INFLUENCE CLAIMED
In her amended petition attacking the validity of the will, Mrs. Leadbetter asserted that Pittock was unduly influenced by Price and Morden, both of whom held confidential positions. At the time the will was made out, Pittock was 81 years old, the petition states, and both men, "in order to gain great power and remunerative returns, did unlawfully influence him to create a trust fund, pinking them the trustees." Furthermore, the petition sets out "the salaries and commissions which the trustees receive is greater than the interest of any one of the heirs at law of the deceased in his entire estate, in event the deceased died intestate."

The answer filed by the trustees Tuesday afternoon acknowledges that Price and Morden enjoyed the full and complete confidence of Pittock, but denies absolutely that such confidence was ever abused.

TRUSTEES DENY CHARGE
It goes on to say that at the time of the drawing of the will, Pittock was in full command of his business faculties inasmuch as he was at that time actively conducting the affairs of his large interests and continued to do so for upwards of two and one-half years more.

In regard to the assertion in the Leadbetter petition that the trustees would enjoy excessive profits through their administration of the estate, it is argued that the salaries, commissions and emoluments that will be received are governed by the laws of Oregon and the general laws pertaining to the value of the estate and the amount of service rendered.

The answer closes with the request that the Leadbetter suit be dismissed and that the will be admitted to probate.

Advertising Man Is Splendid Agency for Advertising Oregon

The best of all fields for advertising Oregon products is among the advertising men of the nation themselves," said Charles W. English, secretary of the Portland Ad club and manager of the Better Business bureau Tuesday. English has just returned from a national conference of "truth in advertising" managers in Chicago. He also visited the advertising clubs in Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee and other cities.

"I took part with me packages of our prunes, processed fruits and vegetables and bottles of our fruit juices," the advertising expert explained. "Most of the business men I met were planning to do work on the foundation during the coming summer, either to the Shrine or some other convention."

Portland Laundry Co. Plans New Home And Improvements

A building permit was issued Monday for a new home for the Portland Laundry company, 328-34 Union avenue, to be two stories, 100 by 100 feet and costing about $25,000. Work on the foundation is now under way. The building will be of concrete and heavy mill construction. According to its officials, the concern employs 80 operatives, and with the completion of its new plant this number will be increased to approximately 150. New machinery will be installed at a cost of $30,000.

"When baby was six months old he developed a very bad case of milk crust. He could not sleep night or day. The milk crust was very disgusting and his head and cheeks were covered with a scale. The trouble lasted about two months when I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment when he was healed."
