

MORROW IS GLAD DEMOCRATS WERE AT HELM OF STATE

Now Republicans Have Good Opportunity to Criticize; Party Delegates Elect Officers.

With Charley Lockwood acting as godfather the Oregon State League of Republican Clubs was born and christened Thursday at the Imperial hotel. It adopted a constitution, elected officers and adopted a declaration of principles. Then it listened to a long list of what Judge Robert G. Morrow—who delivered one himself—called "carefully prepared impromptu addresses." Then it adjourned.

H. L. Gance of Portland, a member of the Republican Club of Oregon, over which Charley Lockwood rules as president, was elected president of the new organization, he being the only nominee and his election being by acclamation.

ELECT VICE PRESIDENTS
Robin Day of Salem was elected secretary, also by acclamation, while Charley Lockwood was designated to hold the organization sack with the title of treasurer. He was also elected by acclamation.

The constitution provides for a vice president from each county of the state, who, together with the other officers of the club, are to constitute the executive committee. It was provided, however, that the president, secretary and treasurer would constitute a quorum of the executive committee at any time and have authority to transact business.

Inasmuch as there were representatives present from but a few of the counties it was decided that the task of picking vice presidents for the absent counties should be delegated to the executive committee, after which the gathering elected a vice president for those counties which had representation present at the meeting. Those so elected were: Clatsop, M. F. Hardesty; Marion, Frank Day; Harney, O. O. Fetley; Klamath, E. S. Wiley; Walla Walla, W. Schupp; Multnomah, A. J. Crossley; Malheur, George E. Davis.

STRAIGHT PARTY SUPPORT
The declaration of principles bound the organization to work actively for the success of the party nominees from top to bottom of the ticket; to spread the principles of the party; to urge Republican voters to register, and to personally attend political rallies.

The organization stands for the ratification of the suffrage amendment; suppression and eradication of all revolutionary movements aimed at the overthrow of constituted government; expeditious ratification of the peace treaty and League of Nations covenant with reservations; a program of Americanization; proper adjustment of the relative rights of capital and labor; reduction of direct taxes on industry and consumption; withdrawal of American soldiers and sailors from foreign territory; an adequate merchant marine; a program of national highways; proper financing of reclamation projects in the Western states.

The declaration says also, "We do not sanction the making of the Monroe doctrine to serve the purpose of a pawn for the advancement of the personal ambition of any one man or set of men."

POLITICS LOST ART
It also says, "We stand not for the utter change of our social order by another, but for the adaptation of our government to any problems of the hour. We shall not substitute the government of our fathers for any modern scheme economically unsound, socially wrong and industrially impossible."

It speaks for the maintenance of the American standard of living; preservation of individual initiative; protection of native born from undesirable foreign born; preparedness; extended markets; conservation of resources; extension of commerce and protective tariff. It is opposed to class legislation at the expense of the interests and welfare of the public.

Following the election of officers Judge Morrow started the addresses. He said he was glad the Republicans had not been in power during the war, because a war always gave the opposition party a lot of ground for criticism and much good campaign ammunition. He said also, that political activity had become a lost art "since we have had the wonderful direct primary system." A number of others also delivered impromptu addresses.

Baker, Feb. 12.—Thieves who broke into the warehouse used by L. Dachtelberg and Abe Jackson, hide and junk dealers, for storing furs, stole 70 coyote hides and three bobcat furs, valued at $1000, but left $500 worth of mink, skunk, muskrat and bobcat furs lying on the floor in the office near a safe that contained silver fox furs valued at more than $8000. A reward of $150 has been offered.

REPUBLICANS PIN FAITH IN LINCOLN AS NATIONAL GUIDE

America Now Needs Spirit of Revered Patriot, Says Speaker at Large Party Gathering.

Five hundred men and women gathered at the Chamber of Commerce dining room Thursday night, under the auspices of the Republican state central committee and the united party organizations of the county and state, to honor the memory of Abraham Lincoln.

The address of the evening was delivered by Chaplain William S. Gilbert, Astoria, who had chosen the topic "Abraham Lincoln." It was a powerful and eloquent plea that America in its forward course follow the spirit of Lincoln in its dealings with and settlement of the great problems of national and international policy which confront it.

dience. Because of the experiences which he had gone through in the past two years, he said, there had come up in his life a new enthusiasm for America.
"America is at a crisis," he said. "It is a time when thoughtful Americans stand in awe. The world is looking to America. America holds the key, but it seems unable to wield it until the world begins to ask, 'Is America safe, or is it again a house divided against itself?'"
"Are we," the speaker demanded, "as a nation going to fiddle while the world burns?"
"America needs the optimism of Lincoln," Dr. Gilbert said, "that leader who never yielded his faith in the ultimate outcome of the destiny of the nation. We have every reason for optimism, and the belief is that, all will come out right in the end."

NEED LINCOLN'S HONESTY
"The very life of the country is menaced by diabolical elements within our own borders. The country is at the zero hour. We must go forward. It is time for us to think. We need the spirit of Lincoln to speak to us again, to lead us forward, to guide us in the path the nation should take."
"So long as the spirit of Lincoln is the spirit of our leaders, so long as the Lincoln type is the ideal of our people, that long will the spirit of America be free and America safe."
The speaker told of the incident when Lincoln had closed his store to walk seven miles that he might make correction of a mistake of three cents in change, and said:
"Oh for the Lincoln type of integrity in the nation today. The internal revenue department tells us that by this war 3000 millionaires were created in this country. Think of it. I speak as from the battle line, from the hospitals back of them and from the cemeteries which surround them, and I say there is some, thing damnably wrong somewhere."

"We read of a billion being given for charity and immediately that gasoline has gone up to 25 cents. We are tired of it. We demand a change. We demand leadership."
Chaplain Gilbert then turned to the League of Nations.
"The deadlock at Washington is a national and an international tragedy," he said. "I shall not attempt to analyze it. I pass that by. But let us have the League of Nations in some form and quickly, that the world may settle down to peace."
"We would not have the pseudo Americanism which says 'let us eat, drink and be merry and let the world rot.' Nor would we have the selfish spirit which would ask 'what will it profit us?' We need the Lincoln type of leadership and the Lincoln spirit to guide us forward in this matter."

The banquet was opened by an invocation delivered by Rev. C. E. Cline. The audience joined in singing America, after which Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by Judge C. H. Barton. During the evening Mrs. Fred Olson sang "My Own United States," and George Hitchhike Street sang the Republican National Anthem. Thomas H. Tongue Jr. acted as toastmaster. Instrumental selections were given during the evening by Mrs. Rose Weinberger's orchestra. In addition to Chaplain Gilbert's address, Mrs. Elizabeth Hanley spoke.

Waverly Baby Home Needs $4000 to Pay Expenses This Year

Officers and others prominently identified with the work of the Waverly Baby home are feeling jubilant over the appropriation from the county commissioners of $5000 for the maintenance of Multnomah county babies cared for in the home during 1920. At the special session of the legislature the monthly allowance of $10 for the babies was doubled, and this sum added to the county appropriation will leave only about $4000 to be raised during the year, hence there is great relief over the prospect of getting through without the customary campaign, tag sale or benefit entertainment.

Two members were elected to fill the vacancies on the board at the last meeting. They are: J. H. Henry and Edward Drake. This board makes a complete board, as follows: President, Mrs. T. C. Allison; vice president, L. E. Kern; secretary, F. S. Akin; treasurer, A. L. Koenan; Charles H. Dodd; Mrs. J. Francis Drake; Mrs. F. C. Knapp; Mrs. A. F. Piegel; Mrs. William Shepard; Miss Vella Winner; Mr. Henry and Mr. Drake.

Protect the Throat Against Infection

At this time of prevalent contagion it is imperative that the throat be guarded against bacteria which gain entrance through the mouth and nose.

is an effective antiseptic, when it is used as a gargle several times a day it lessens the danger of infection by preventing bacterial development. (If used as a spray for the nose, dilute it in the proportion of one part Listerine to ten parts water). Listerine is non-poisonous and particularly adapted for general household use.
