St. Patrick's Day Party Proves Very Enjoyable

A DELIGHTFUL gathering of the sons and daughters of Erin was held at the home of Miss Lucille Marsh, on Fifty-fifth avenue southeast, on St. Patrick's day in the evening. The color motif in decorations and in favors for the affair was green, and appropriate prizes were awarded to winners of contests.

The table was decorated to represent a bit of old Ireland, a miniature lake of Killarney surrounded by green hills, rocks, moss and blarney stone filling the center of the table, from which green ribbons and flags stretched out to the guests' places, where Irish hats served as place cards. Here and there on the table were frogs, pigs and a serpent.

Each guest was asked to furnish an Irish story, song or recitation, which afforded much amusement, and all came assuming an Irish name.
