

MAYO INDORSES OREGON U. FOR MEDICAL CENTER

Noted Surgeon of Rochester, Minn., Visits Campus of Oregon Medical School in Portland.

Enthusiastic approval of plans for the ultimate development of a medical center on the campus of the University of Oregon medical school was voiced Saturday by Dr. C. H. Mayo, celebrated surgeon of Rochester, Minn., upon his visit to Marquam hill in company with Dr. R. C. Coffey and Dr. R. B. Dillehunt.

After looking over the first unit of the medical school, which is now being used for the first college year, and being apprised of plans for future units, including the new county hospital which will afford clinical privileges, Dr. Mayo expressed himself as highly impressed with the progress made as indicative of future achievement.

Dr. Mayo and party left for Rochester Saturday night in the private car of Louis W. Hill, after spending two days in Portland on route from California. The party included: Dr. and Mrs. Mayo and child, Mrs. M. Twentymen of Rochester, Minn., and Miss F. Gates of Los Angeles. While here the party stopped at the Hotel Portland.

Friday, in company with Dr. R. C. Coffey, Dr. Mayo visited the Portland Surgical hospital and the party enjoyed a trip over the Columbia river highway. Saturday morning Dr. Mayo visited St. Vincent's hospital and the University of Oregon Medical school in the afternoon.

Beautiful Emblems of Easter This Year Are Very Plentiful

They are already carrying them home, tenderly and carefully, all wrapped in tissue paper except for the blossoms that peek out through the paper at the top of the package—those queens of all blossoms at Easter time—the Easter lilies.

The emblem of joy and purity, the radiantly scented blossoms to which allusions are made all down the path of Easter observance history, is blooming in profusion this season. Easter garments may be out of sight—Easter eggs may be rare—but there is an abundance of Easter lilies on the market.

Raised by local gardeners from bulbs imported from Japan and Holland, the Easter lily supply is not dependent upon any out of town shipments, and the season for growing has been extremely good. Many of the blossoms are now being held back so they may be at their best on Easter morning, although the florists' windows are now sprinkled with the waxy snowwhite flowers.

100,000 VISITORS IN CITY TO BE PROTECTED AGAINST PROFITEERS

Portland Ad Club Has Plan to Cope With Sharpers During Shrine Week.

With intent to make Portland nationally known as the "square deal city," when the national Shrine, T. P. A. and Kiwanis conventions and the Rose Festival are held in Portland next summer, the better business bureau of the Portland Ad club has inaugurated a plan to protect the 100,000 visitors who are expected against sharpers.

The work will be organized under the direction of L. R. Bailey, chairman of the better business bureau. Militant methods will be directed against overcharging of all kinds at hotels, restaurants and stores. Cooperative arrangement with the district attorney's office will expedite prosecution of street vendors, even to peddlers of merchants who engage in unscrupulous practices.

The bureau has secured already the pledged support of established business enterprises in the city.

"We want every merchant, from the peanut vendor up, to see that every visitor while in Portland, gets at least 100 cents worth for every dollar he spends," said Bailey. "Better still, let us all see that we give every visitor, while in our city, more than he spends with us, so that when he packs up his grip to go to his home he will spread the good word that Portland, renowned for hospitality and roses is not only a beautiful city but a good and wholesome community in which to live."

advancing along the entire front of more than 700 miles.

OFFENSIVE MAY STOP

In some quarters here it was believed the soviet offensive may stop when the Poles have been expelled from what the Russians consider their rightful territory. Poles have occupied a considerable part of Russia in excess of their boundaries as fixed by the peace conference.

The Red armies also claimed capture of Novorossisk, the important Black Sea port.

Early dispatches had reported the soviet armies in control of Malokop and Natukhaisakaya, the latter city only 13 miles from Novorossisk. The dispatch said General Denikin, leader of the south Russian anti-Bolshevik armies, had prepared to make his last stand at Novorossisk.

DENIKIN'S LAST STAND

While the Moscow communique made no mention of the capture of Denikin when Novorossisk fell, the British war office was inclined to believe that its capture marked the end of active resistance by the Denikin forces.

Fear that Denikin may meet the same fate that Admiral Kolchak did was expressed in some quarters. Kolchak was killed after his Siberian anti-Bolshevik army had been routed.

The soviets claimed capture of 10,000 men of the Don Cossack division in the operation resulting in the capture of Novorossisk. They also took a large number of prisoners and valuable military supplies and guns, their communique said.

EBERT REGIME IS STILL BESET BY DIFFICULTIES

By Henry Wood

Paris, March 27.—(U. P.)—The German government of President Ebert tonight still was beset by difficulties on every hand. The communist Red army in the Rhine provinces claimed additional successes, while the allies refused permission to the Berlin authorities to send 75,000 men into the troubled district to restore order.

Entente powers at first offered to grant Germany permission to send as many troops into the troubled area as necessary to restore order. This was a condition, however, that the Berlin government agree to allied occupation of Darmstadt and Frankfurt as a guarantee that the German troops would be withdrawn as soon as the Reds were overcome.

Germany refused this condition and the allies then decided that the treaty of Versailles must remain in force. The treaty forbids armed German forces in the Rhine provinces.

They considered the guarantee demanded perfectly reasonable and said that if Germany was not willing to grant it, the allies were justified in holding that the treaty must be observed to the letter. Other observers thought the allied action, if continued, might prove a boomerang. They pointed out that it should be as much to the entente's interest as to Germany's to see the Ruhr revolt crushed, because it is from this wealth producing district that Germany must obtain materials and men with which to pay much of the huge indemnity exacted by the treaty.

The status of the Ebert government tonight was not clear. One dispatch said Hermann Mueller, former foreign minister, charged with formation of a new cabinet by the imperial president yesterday, had given up the attempt, while another reported he had succeeded in getting several leaders to accept portfolios.

The main Red army in Westphalia continued its siege of Wesel, held by reichswehr troops, reinforced by detachments from the regular army.

No other fighting was reported in the Rhine provinces. But food conditions were said to be acute, with supplies exhausted in several cities. The Reds were attempting to obtain food from Holland.

The Dutch government has called for mobilization of three classes of the Second division to protect the frontier. Some wounded from the fighting in Westphalia were reported to have crossed into Dutch territory.

Advices from Mayence declared an independent republic may be declared in Westphalia in the near future.

GENERAL STRIKE MAY WIPE MILITARISM FROM GERMANY

By Karl H. Von Wiegand

Berlin, March 27.—Under covert threats of a renewal of the general strike the radical elements of the two socialistic parties and organized labor are opening a fight against what they term "the last remnants of militarism in Germany." The word seems to have been passed down along the entire line from some central source that there is a sign of terror in various sections of the country and that there is but one solution of the problem of the internal difficulties of the nation—demobilization and disarming of the whole national guard.

As all the miners, leaders and other adherents of the radicals use almost identical phrases and arguments, the suspicion has become general that a carefully worked out propaganda is being launched against the existing military organizations of the country with a view to their complete demobilization as a means of clearing the path for the radicals to obtain control of the government without bloodshed by removing all military opposition.

The greatest emphasis is laid on the fact that only where there are military forces have disorders been reported. There is also an ugly feeling in labor circles because of the attempt of the government to bring troops from south Germany for concentration in Westphalia. Labor leaders declare this is merely another violation of the agreement between the government and the trades unions for calling off the general strike.

Representatives of the two socialist parties, the League of Trades Unions and representatives of 10,000 radical working men's councils were held today.

The conferees appointed a committee who presented the following demands to President Ebert on behalf of the workers:

1. Immediate disarmament and demobilization of all counter revolutionary troops, that is, all troops that fought against the workmen or are now fighting against them.

2. The arrest of all officers of such troops and their trial before a court of workmen.

3. Immediate seizure of all weapons in possession of the Bourgeoisie and delivery of the same to the workmen's councils.

4. Distribution of arms among the organized workers.

5. Creation of a workmen's armed defense formation, under direction of the workmen's councils.

6. Immediate convening of a national congress of workmen's councils.

A meeting of delegates from all the workmen's councils held later in the day authorized the executive committee to take immediate steps for a renewal of the general strike.

Secretary of War Ask Kiwanis' Help In Army Recruiting

Ernest R. Wiggins, president of the Portland Kiwanis club, yesterday received a personal letter from Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, asking that the club get behind the recruiting campaign of the United States army. "The program committee of the club is planning an army day program in cooperation with Lieutenant Colonel G. W. B. Stevens, in charge of army recruiting for the Oregon district. Mr. Baker's letter says, in part:

"Attending to the meaning of the name Kiwanis, 'we build,' and your slogan, 'service,' please permit me to take this opportunity to thank all Kiwanians for the patriotic service so generously rendered during the war toward building the great war machine that so honored and glorified this great nation, and to again ask extension of this service to the building of a new army for peace time which shall be not only for defense but for national betterment along the civic lines in which Kiwanis is prominently active."

PEDESTRIAN OWES DUTY IN TRAFFIC CONGESTION

trians, and a city ordinance states that they shall travel thereon excepting at intersections.

On another Saturday afternoon, and under similar conditions, a woman, accompanied by a child and laden with packages, was crossing Alder street at Third. Automobile traffic was heavy. In the center of the thoroughfare she dropped a bundle. To salvage the bundle, and without even a glance in either direction, she dropped the child's hand, let her filter about between automobiles, and proceeded to pick up the package, dropping a couple of others in the meantime. Fortunately, the nearby drivers were in control of their machines and were able to stop before striking the woman. But pedestrians, when they drop packages, would under ordinary circumstances look for traffic before they stoop over, at a busy intersection, to salvage a bundle.

DAY DREAMING DANGEROUS

At Washington and Sixth streets last week a dreaming pedestrian propelled himself into the center of the thoroughfare without looking for machines or seeing at the semaphore which was signaling him to stop. While he held one foot in the air an automobile passed in front of him. Had he let the foot drop it would have landed on the running board of the car. Why not look before crossing the street?

In Washington, D. C., a committee investigating traffic recommended that, in case of accidents in the middle of the block, the burden of proof of the cause be placed on the pedestrian. He surely takes his safety into his own hands when he walks blindly into the center of traffic.
