

SOUTHERN OREGON IS JUBILANT OVER ROGUE SETTLEMENT

Fishing Agreement Puts End to Controversy Which Had Waged Bitterly Ever Since, 1887.

Southern Oregon is jubilant over the settlement of the Rogue river fishing controversy. Peace was declared on Friday with a signed and witnessed contract between Roger-ick L. Macleay, head of commercial salmon packing interests at the mouth of Rogue river, and the Rogue River Fish and Game Protective association of Medford, the Ashland Fish and Game Protective association and other organizations. Individuals who were influential in aiding to bring about the settlement of the long controversy were State Senator C. M. Thomas of Medford, H. B. Van Duser, president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and Richard W. Price, who has just retired as president of the Multnomah Anglers club.

CONTROVERSY SETTLED
The agreement settles a controversy which has waged since 1887. A copy of the contract with a first complete statement of its terms was received in Portland Saturday afternoon. Among the 18 points which it contains are as follows: The use of all seines, set nets, diver nets and trammel nets shall be prohibited.

All commercial fishing other than by hook and line shall be confined to the use of drift nets having a mesh of not less than 8 1/2 inches. The commercial fishing season shall be from April 15 to August 25 and from September 10 to November 25. Commercial fishing shall be permitted 16 miles from the ocean.

DITCHES TO BE SCREENED
Efforts shall be made to screen all irrigation ditches taking water from the Rogue river. Obstructions of passage of fish shall be removed. Dumping of deleterious substances shall be opposed.

Legislation providing for a salary of $1800 a year for the prosecuting attorney of Curry county shall be introduced at the next legislature.

Development and enlargement of salmon propagation work on the upper river near Elk creek shall be striven for.

Steelheads shall be classified as trout. A committee composed of one member from each of the respective organizations interested shall be named, together with Senator C. M. Thomas of Medford, to carry out the provisions of this act.

The agreement is endorsed by the Oregon Sportsmen's league, Multnomah Anglers club, Medford Chamber of Commerce, Ashland Chamber of Commerce, Oregon Hotelmen's association and C. M. Thomas, T. E. Daniels, W. F. Isaacs, Robert W. Ruhl, H. Hostler and H. E. Van Duser.

"FEED 'EM OREGON," SLOGAN

FEED 'EM OREGON

Football and tripod is prize to be awarded young people's organization that accomplishes the most for Armenian relief.

With the slogan, "Feed 'Em, Oregon," Samuel C. Lancaster, Oregon director of Armenian relief, has launched a new campaign.

"To the university, college, high school, Boy Scout team, 'Live Wire' organization or any other organization of boys and girls raising the largest amount per capita for the relief of starving boys and girls in Armenia will be given the official army and navy football made by A. G. Spalding Brothers, together with tripod and case."

This is Director Lancaster's announcement.

"While our boys and girls enjoy the best there is," said he, "while they are comfortably housed, well fed and warmly clothed, while their hearts beat high with hope and they are filled with joy as they contemplate the future, the youth of the oldest Christian nation are starving in what was once the Garden of Eden."

That Portland is over the top in the statewide campaign for Armenian relief, having reached the locally assigned quota of $75,000, was announced by Lancaster, Saturday.

Hood River, with a quota of $1600, has contributed $4600, 280 per cent of its quota. Astoria and Pendleton are just about to complete their campaigns successfully. Director Lancaster went to the Coos Bay district Saturday night, where he will spend several days cooperating with local Armenian relief committees.

BUILDING NEED AT U. OF O. AND O. A. C. SHOWN BY SURVEY

Investigator Finds Cost Per Student at State Institutions Is Much Lower Than Average.

University of Oregon, Eugene, March 27.—A survey of the University of Oregon and Oregon Agricultural college to determine the conditions and necessity of new buildings and of increasing class room space, and to estimate the enrollment cost and cost of buildings per student, has been made by E. B. Stevens, executive secretary of the University of Washington.

The result, submitted to the two schools for study, shows that the total expenditure of the state for higher education is much less than the average of a number of states.

Following is the report in part:

OREGON NEAR TOP
"It is evident that the people of Oregon place a high value on their institutions of higher education. This is shown by the comparatively large attendance at these institutions. While the Western states show a larger proportion of their population in attendance at higher education institutions than in any other country, the Pacific Coast states show a still higher proportion, and Oregon the highest of all except California. It should also be noted that the proportional number for the country as a whole has increased."

"Both the university and the college are managed economically, as is shown by the low annual student cost and the low cost per student clock hour."

BUILDINGS ARE CROWDED

"At the time of advancing prices, the present low cost suggests the possibility of a sacrifice of efficiency through overcrowding, inadequate salaries, and too small teaching staffs. While the questions of salaries and staffs were not included in the investigation, rather full data was obtained as to the use of buildings. The results show not only an unusually high use, but also crowded conditions which call for relief."

"It should be noted that the pressure on the floor space seems to be somewhat greater at the university. The fact, however, should be kept in mind that the floor space required for certain types of laboratory instruction is much greater than required for other types. The agricultural, engineering, mining and forestry departments at the university undoubtedly require relatively large floor areas. This fact accounts for the difference in the floor-space-per-student figures for the two institutions."

NEW STRUCTURES NEEDED
"Both institutions show definite building needs which would be met by the all the resources which may be placed at their disposal for many years to come. There is no ground for fear that there will be an extravagant use of money for building at either Eugene or Corvallis."

"The use of temporary buildings and shacks for educational purposes is undesirable on economic as well as sanitary grounds. The extent of use of such floor space was especially noted at the university. This suggests the necessity not only for additional buildings, but also for continued study of all possible economies in scheduling."

"Inquiries at both the university and the college brought the information that the state has built but single Class A building at either institution."

"The difficulty in Oregon, fortunately, is not that the people are not persuaded of the value of their institutions of higher education, but rather in determining the relative needs of each institution."
