

PLAN SUGGESTED FOR POOLING OF FUND CAMPAIGNS

One hundred of the largest contributions to charity, together with the representatives of civic and philanthropic institutions and organizations, decided Wednesday evening, at the Chamber of Commerce, to give two weeks further consideration to the question of establishing a Portland "Community Chest."

The meeting was called by Mayor Baker at the instance of the President's council. Copies of the proposed constitution and by-laws, as drafted by a committee composed of E. N. Strong, president of the Ad Club; E. B. Wiggins, president of the Kiwanis Club; A. C. Newell, president of the Oregon Civic League; City Attorney W. P. LaRoche; and City Auditor Frank, will be given general distribution before the next meeting, which, on motion of E. C. Bell, was dated for Wednesday evening, April 14, at the Chamber of Commerce.

The "Community Chest" proposes the pooling of all funds now secured annually by public subscription, except those of sectarian organizations. There would be but one drive a year. It would be conducted under direction of a board of directors of well known business men. The amount asked of the people would be based on the approved budgets of the various organizations affiliating with the "Community Chest."

Major Baker asked City Attorney LaRoche if an ordinance could be enacted withholding "drive" permits from all organizations not affiliating with the "Community Chest," and the city attorney said he doubted if such an ordinance would be constitutional. The mayor believes coordination essential. Henry L. Corbett proposed that the "Community Chest" organization be created by business men and that it then offer its "drive" to the worthy organizations not affiliated with it. Only one organization was represented by a hint of disinclination to affiliate. A letter was read from H. W. Stone of the Y. M. C. A., stating that organization is regarded as a supplemental church and would not naturally come in with charity budgets. O. W. Mielke suggested that any organization which did not decide to affiliate, if the majority did, would find itself at a disadvantage.

LEAGUE BACKS IDEA

W. G. MacLaren reported by letter that the Pacific Coast Rescue and Protective society has already voted to affiliate. A. C. Newell stated the plan has endorsement of the board of the Oregon Civic League. J. E. Wheeler had written a letter, which was read by Milton Reed Klepper, secretary of the meeting, declaring that some such plan is essential in order that business men may not be called on hereafter to spend half of each day listening to appeals for aid. Julius L. Meier, Max Hirsch and J. Rosenberg, speaking from recent experience in organizing the Jewish federation, said this effort and the similar accomplishments of other cities prove that charitable and civic funds, for administration and for building, can and should be placed on a business basis.

ANOTHER REVOLT IS FEARED IN IRELAND

London, April 1.—(I. N. S.)—British warships have anchored in the harbor at Belfast, according to a dispatch to the Star today.

Dublin, April 1.—(I. N. S.)—Ireland is rapidly being plunged into actual revolution, according to all indications. The air is electric with suppressed excitement. Rumors are freely circulated that the republicans may launch another revolt next week similar to that of 1916. Official cognizance has been taken of these rumors by the British government. Large masses of British troops have been concentrated at strategic points throughout Southern Ireland as a precautionary measure.

Sinn Fein leaders declare that it is becoming more and more difficult to restrain their followers. These leaders claim that but for their discipline, Ireland might be today in a death struggle like of which has never been known before in this country.

Sinn Fein leaders emphatically deny that any band of extremists has broken from the Sinn Fein ranks and is committing terrorist outrages as intimated by certain London newspapers. They deny with equal vigor that any vendetta of "Kilix Klan" nature exists against any of the leaders, as was suggested by the story that the late Lord Mayor Thomas McCurtain of Cork was murdered by men from the ranks of his own society.

In refuting stories of the alleged vendetta the Sinn Fein leaders point to the fact that the British military authorities which raided McCurtain's home immediately after his death carried a warrant for his arrest. It was declared that the British government, as well as the Sinn Feiners knew McCurtain to be one of the ablest republican leaders in South Ireland.

Some Kick Against All Public Service, Protest of Stovall

Salem, April 1.—If the Oregon public service commission has undertaken to settle all the personal and class differences involved in the various problems brought before that body it might as well quit now and leave the task for Saint Peter to finish. That, at least, is the opinion of Dennis H. Stovall, well known short story writer who makes his home at Philomath, Benton county.

Stovall's opinion of the task before the state regulatory body is expressed in a letter relative to the controversy now being waged between the owner and patrons of the Philomath Telephone company. "I'm inclined to think that nine tenths of the fuss being made over telephones here in the city of brotherly love is due to the everlasting desire of some folks to kick against everything that is offered in the way of public service," Stovall writes. "The main trouble" is that we have been getting our phone service for nothing and when the price was raised then a howl went up."

Seattle Snowstorm Blinds Man So He Is Fatally Hurt by Car

Seattle, April 1.—(U. P.)—Seattle's seven hills were snowed early today. Only four times in the history of the local weather bureau has snow fallen so late as today, April 1. An inch of white covered the highlands. A few youngsters ventured out before breakfast with sleds and got a few minutes coasting before the warm morning sun appeared.

The storm was general throughout the Northwest, carried by a cold blast from the North. A slight snowfall shortly after noon yesterday was followed by a heavier fall in the night. One casualty was reported. Blinded by the snow, a man thought to be Philip J. Jewett, was fatally hurt when struck by a Seattle and Rainier Valley street car. He died in the ambulance en route to the hospital.

Woman Complains Against Annoyance Over $4000 Claim

Mrs. Elna Blanche Dibern, wearied of the alleged continual annoyance and notoriety involved in the litigation instituted by Lee Roy Keeley, an attorney, Wednesday went to Salem and turned over to the industrial accident commission a draft for $4000, the entire sum involved in the commission's settlement of a claim for the death of her husband, killed in an accident at the Grant Smith-Porter Ship company plant last year.

Keeley, who had originally represented her as attorney for the negotiation of the claim, filed a libel suit against the ship on which Dibern was working at the time of the accident. This suit was thrown out by Judge Hean. The commission subsequently settled the claim without litigation and Keeley brought another action to annul the settlement and collect for himself a percentage as fee.

Mrs. Dibern now proposes to let the commission do as it pleases regarding settlement.

Building Altered For Metropolitan And Camera Shop

Alterations are under way on the ground floor of the McGinn building, at Broadway and Washington streets, for the accommodation of the Metropolitan 5 cent to 60 cent store and Sandy's camera shop. The floor space used by the two concerns was formerly held by the Sunset theatre, Sandy's Washington street store and other shops.

Sandy's new place will be at 124 Broadway, formerly an entrance of the Sunset. It has an area of 14 by 70 feet. About $20,000 will be spent in new furnishings and fixtures and the place will be open about May 1.

C. A. Sanderson, owner of Sandy's store, began business at 328 Washington street in March 1917, with a capital of $250 and a stock valued at $85. A 12 by 12 foot room on the fourth floor of the Merchants Trust building was rented for developing and finishing purposes. His present stock is valued at $27,000, furnishings and fixtures at $11,500.

Here's the Trick

It shows how to get the thing you want without spending a cent. The Journal has a "Swap" column showing something new and something different every day that some one wants to "trade in" for the very thing perhaps, that you have and would like to get rid of. Can you beat it? And the price of a small want ad—say about 12 words—is only 25 cents. —IN THE JOURNAL.
