

STAGE AND SCREEN NEWS In the Sunday Journal is more than a mere throwing together of publicity matter as it is manufactured in the office of manager and producer. It's real news.

'Lassie' Is Going Strong in N. Y.

"Lassie," which made its bow at the Nora Bayes theatre in New York on Tuesday, April 6, scored an immediate success. The piece is produced by "Lassie," Inc., the book is by Catherine Chisholm Cushing, the music by Hugo Felix and the play was directed by Edward Royce, who has added another beautiful production to the list which includes "Irene" and "Apple Blossoms." "Lassie" is founded upon the Scotch play "Kitty Mackay," current some years ago, and the story has been kept intact and embellished with numerous fine songs and ensemble numbers by Mr. Felix. The scenes are laid in a Scotch village and a London drawing room and the scenic artist and the customer have taken advantage of the picturesque period of the '60s to create beautiful and effective pictures.

Gloria Hope, the 36-pound titmouse-haired beauty who plays opposite Owen Moore in "A Desperate Hero," really wants to raise her weight beyond the hundred mark. To that end she drinks 15 glasses of milk a day. (Her press agent says so.)

Cinemas Offer New Films Today

THE forthcoming week looms large for the play shopper, both in the silent and in the spoken theatre, to say nothing of the ever alluring vaudeville house.

At the Liberty today Wallace Reid is back in the latest of his "speed" plays, "Excuse My Dust." Acting Manager Ralph Winsor has fixed up an interesting prologue for the occasion, including the introduction of a racing "bearcat" and other necessary racing appurtenances. Usual comedy fillers.

Anita Stewart in "In Old Kentucky," another old favorite racing story, is the second of the super-features to be shown at the Columbia, opening today for the week. Vincent Knowles and his orchestra, as usual.

The Rivoli promises an attraction of more than passing merit in "The Virgin of Stamboul," featuring Priscilla Dean, and said to be her masterpiece.

"The Silver Horde," saturated with the spirit of the great Northwest, is Rex Beach's story in film form at the Majestic for the week.

Dustin Farnum in "The Corsican Brothers" is the new feature at the Peoples.

Robert Warwick in "In Mizoura," a typical American play, is featured at the Star.

At the Circle today is Lieutenant Locklear in "The Great Air Robbery," and tomorrow and Monday this house will offer DeMille's "Male and Female."

THE Stroller notices

THAT we were up in the millionaire class for a few minutes last evening while indulging in a large portion of strawberry shake.

That it was the real stuff—the first of the season.

That it pays to have friends.

That the price of United States army meat at the local army store has been reduced.

That we are tempted to shout "bully beef."

That one reason some women don't see all the show is because they have to rush home to put the dinner on.

That we have two little ones who can qualify as charter members of the "overall."

That they will be out in all their glory tomorrow.

That we'll be with 'em.

We're Off

Well, folks, the "new heading" content is well under way. A number of drawn suggestions have been received, and the first one will be printed Monday morning.

We'd like everyone to get in to make it interesting.

Draw a new heading for the column if you can—it doesn't have to be artistic—just an idea will do—send it in and we'll publish it.

From an Old Friend

My Dear Stroller:

There seems to be some unnecessary controversy over the question whether or not the intimate details of home life sometimes set forth in your column are too "trivial and light." It seems to me that every vital living thing contains the fact of interest in those details.

It is not home the fundamental principle of life on which solid basis nations and counties are built?

Is not home the essential fact, or the stepping stone to progress and expansion? Are not the "trivial things" the main composite of our very existence?

Surely, our heads and hearts have and are filled with sufficiently heavy burdens of serious problems that we should gladly welcome some light, humorous trivialities. Little ray of sunshine through the dark clouds of gloom.

Permit me to sign myself as heretofore known to you and my kind unknown friends in your clever column.

DARK EYES OF TILLAMOOK ST.

Have You a Little Squirrel in Your Home?

Hey, Mr. Stroller:

Did you ever see a stroller who could put a sack of peanuts under his chin, without dropping at least one? It can't be done. I wonder if the Girl With the Green Eyes has accomplished this feat yet.

Another Stroller.

Come to think about it, A. S., there is something elusive about a peanut, but after you're married and settling down, a couple of little tads perching on your knee or on your shoulder, you'll find that among the three of you a bag of peanuts can be made to return 100 per cent on your investment. When ever you miss the kiddies will get.

Pantages May Be Planning a Theatre In New Orleans

Alexander Pantages, western theatre owner, signed a 75 year lease for a theatre site in New Orleans last week on which he is to erect an enormous showhouse, hotel and stores, according to pretty well "confirmed rumors" published in the current issue of Motion Picture News.

If the project is carried through as reported, the Pantages interests will go to New Orleans and erect a magnificent theatre building on the site now occupied by fruit stands, chop suey joints and other small and unsightly buildings on Canal street between Rampart and Basin streets, about 400 feet from the city's home, 150 feet from the Southern railway station and one block from the new Orpheum theatre and the Grunewald hotel.

The plan is said to embrace an immense theatre built behind and over a row of modern stores, which will front on Canal street.

Earl Edmondson, personal representative of Pantages, has been in New Orleans several weeks looking over sites and he is the person said to have recommended to Pantages the leasing of the site.

Society

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Winona Lambert and Paul D. Stone, both students at the University of Oregon. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. A. H. Lambert, 261 East Third street north. Mr. Stone is the son of Harry W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Stone. The service was read in the presence of immediate relatives only at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. Ward Willis Long of Forbes Presbyterian church officiating. The young folks expect to return to Eugene to continue their college work.

Miss Margaret Bates, who has just returned from a sojourn of several months in the East, was the guest of honor at an informal sewing tea, for which Miss Fay Nichols was hostess Tuesday afternoon. During her visit in the East, Miss Bates was the guest of Mrs. Carleton W. Betts (Ruth Tait) in Buffalo, N. Y., and of her sister, Mrs. Christopher Cheney, in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. J. L. P. Irwin, wife of Major Irwin, who has recently returned from three years' service in the Philippines, was guest of honor at a pretty tea given by Mrs. Jerome S. May and Mrs. Roy Nelson Porce at the home of the latter in Linton Saturday afternoon. Major and Mrs. Irwin, who were formerly stationed at Vancouver barracks, will leave May 1 for Fort Warden. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Clark Nelson and Mrs. C. E. Porce. The Misses Sophia, Sheila, Vera O'Brien and Alice Lundstrom assisted. Alcazar Wins Rights to "Peg"

THE local theatrical battle promised between the Baker Stock company and the Alcazar theatre seems to have "diverged" in view of a telegram received this morning by Louis B. Christ, treasurer of the Alcazar house, from the Century Play company, which assures Christ that Oliver Morosco has granted the Alcazar company "exclusive stock rights to play 'Peg o' My Heart' in Portland."

The play, in which Laurette Taylor made such a hit, has been advertised for production in Portland week after next at both the Baker and Century theatres. An Alcazar company to be headed by Verna Felton and George Natanson. To find out just how things stand, the Alcazar company got in communication with the owners of the play's rights, and the answer received this morning seems to settle it.

The Alcazar people will pay a good stiff royalty for the piece, but feel that as a drawing card it will be well worth what it costs.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Blacky Is Convinced

By Thornton W. Burgess

Suspicious are the hardest things in all the world to work out. If there's the least life left in them spring up they will.

THEY are hateful things, suspicious. They make the one who has them uncomfortable, and they make those whom he suspects uncomfortable. And often they lead to a great deal of harm and injustice.

Blacky the Crow is a very suspicious person. He is just full of suspicions. He suspects everybody. He is never ready to believe good of anybody. Perhaps this is because he is a great mischief maker. He is forever in mischief of some kind. People who are always in mischief are always ready to suspect other people.

When Blacky the Crow saw Farmer Brown's boy set Jimmy Skunk free from that cruel trap he had hard work to believe his own eyes. You see he had suspected Farmer Brown's boy of setting the trap. He had expected him to kill Jimmy Skunk. So when he saw Farmer Brown's boy set Jimmy free and then watched Jimmy limp away across the Green Meadows he was quite upset. Blacky certainly looked as if he had been mistaken about Farmer Brown's boy and that the latter was a true friend of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest after all.

But Blacky the Crow hates to admit a mistake. He wasn't quite ready to now. People are like that sometimes. Those suspicions were not yet quite dead. "That looks all right," muttered Blacky, but perhaps he didn't want Jimmy Skunk for anything. Perhaps he set that trap for some one else.

Farmer Brown's boy watched Jimmy Skunk out of sight. Then he stooped and took up that dreadful trap, and it swinging from one hand he started across the Green Meadows toward the Smiling Pool, and as he walked he whistled. It was a merry whistle and good to hear.

But Blacky the Crow paid no heed to that merry whistle. He watched Farmer Brown's boy and in that black head of his suspicious, dark ugly suspicions, began to come to life again. "He's taking that trap over to the Smiling Pool," he muttered. "Probably Jimmy Skunk was of no use to him."

Harry W. Wright, police inspector, and a team of 20 members of the police force in full uniform, had charge of the floor work. This is said by Dr. Ambrose H. Johnson, deputy grand master, to be the largest single class ever receiving the degrees in the state of Oregon.

Laurel lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood Saturday evening will give a reception to H. V. Davis of Los Angeles, head of the order. The O. E. S. hall of Orient lodge at East Sixth and East Alder streets will be thrown open to members and a banquet will follow the program.

The special reunion of the Scottish Rite Masons of the "Valley of Portland, Oregon," even to session at the S. R. S. cathedral and will confer degrees upon a class of 250. Tuesday night the fourth, fifth and sixth degrees were conferred with a record attendance of members. Owing to the exceptionally large number to be received in June at the forty-second regular reunion, the special reunion is being held for those ready. The Scottish rites begin with the fourth degree and conclude with the thirty-second. The thirty-third is only conferred in Washington, D. C., for the southern jurisdiction, to which Oregon belongs.

A Western gambling room and dance hall occupies the whole upper floor of the Sehnitz, Bronx studio. It is being used for scenes in "The Valley of Portland."
