Pacific Coast Fails To Win Any Prizes For Essay on Army

Results of the army essay contest, received today by Lieutenant Colonel G. W S. Stevens from the adjutant general of the army, show that no Pacific coast students received prizes or honorable

The contest was held several weeks all over the United States, school chil-dren writing about the advantages of army training, the contest being an enistment aid.

Thousands of essays were entered by Oregon and Washington children. Local business houses granted many prizes, and in addition was the opportunity of competing in the national contest for a free trip to Washington. The judges of the essays were Secretary of War Baker, General John J. Pershing and General Feyton C. March.

Bank's Refusal of Special Reports on Loans Is Sustained

Washington, April 19 .- (U. P.)-Representative McFadden, as president of the First National bank of Canton, Pa., in the supreme court today won his suit against John Skelton Williams, as comptroller of the currency.

The bank sought to enjoin the comptroller from requiring from it special reports concerning loans which Williams claims he was authorized by law to demand. Lower courts dismissed the proceedings for want of jurisdiction and the appeal was on this point, the supreme court declaring this view was in error.
