Paris, April 24.—The German deputy, Otto Brass, one of the leaders in the Ruhr uprising, has given Henri Ribot, France's foremost military critic, an important statement in which the deputy affirms that the Ruar insurrection was not communistic, but was directed solely against the German militarists.

Herr Brass deciares that there were three "free corps" in the Ruhr valley, contrary to the terms of the treaty, prior to the Kapp coup d'etat, namely, the Lichtschlag corps at Osnabruck, the Lutzow corps at Remscheid and the Schultz corps at Mulheim.

SEIZURE IS PLANNED

Dr. Kapp's plan was that the Lutzow corps was to entrain for Berlin, while the other two were to spize the Ruhr region. The date for the Kapp coup was originally March 15, but it was advanced two days because Dr. Kapp learned that the government had got wind of what was coming. The subsequent genera strike kept Lutzow's corps from entrain-While General von Watter, coming. manding the reichswehr in the Ruhf district, whom Deputy Brass suspects of also being implicated in the Kapp plot, took an ambiguous attitude, Licht schalf, on March 16, occupied the Ruhr valley. It was this move which caused the armed revolt of the workers. The workmen drove one corps to take refuge in the British zone and another back on The workmen then held all of the Ruhr country except Wesel.

BERLIN'S TERMS ACCEPTED

March 23 was the date of the Bielefeld agreement between the workmen and fundamental law of the universe says Berlin. On March 24 the reichswehr man shall not perish from the earth, took the offensive from Wesel. The My critics would be surprised from the workmen nevertheless resumed work on hundreds of letters I have received from the 26th. On the 29th came an ultimatum from Berlin. Deputy Brass himself was the negotiator and he accepted Berlin's terms. Immediately came a new ultimatum from General van Watter de manding the surrender of a large specified quantity of arms and ammunition within a time so brief that compliance was materially impossible.

Deputy Brass telephoned to Berlin that he feared the reichswehr intended to advance. On the 31st Herr Severing minthat it was not true.

Scarcely 15 minutes after this assurance Captain Lorenz of General von Watter's staff ordered the reichswehr to advance. On April 1 the reichswehr advanced 30 kilometers (about 18.6 miles) Berlin, according to Herr Brass, was powerless to recall them, Berlin ordered them not to pass the Rubr, yet General von Watter by the 9th had thrown more Sunderland, Eng., April 20 .- (U.
