

TEN ACCEPTED FOR JURY IN TRIAL OF LAWRENCE SORLLIE

It is possible that a jury may be secured today in Circuit Judge Morrow's court to try the case of the state against Lawrence Sorllie, charged with violation of the criminal syndicalism act. Ten jurors were accepted for cause Tuesday, but no peremptory challenges have been exercised.

The men who have been unchallenged are J. Frank Guerin, tax clerk for the Southern Pacific; W. S. Townsend, employee of the Simon Saw Manufacturing company; Christian B. Muirhead, plumber; E. F. Dodson, lineman; Jonas Peterson, grain handler; George Wilderbold, butcher; L. Blaufus, retired; Thomas L. Hanning, employee of the Portland Brazing works; M. H. Tower, confectioner.

WIFE CHARGES HUSBAND THREATENED TO KILL HER

Addie M. Crow filed a suit for divorce from Isaac D. Crow Tuesday, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment and threats to kill her. She seeks the custody of three minor children.

Alleging desertion, Agnes Ringer filed suit for divorce from J. W. Ringer. She asks for the custody of one minor child.

David Eisenberger has filed suit for divorce from Naomi Eisenberger, alleging adultery and drunkenness.

Inhuman and cruel treatment in her charge made by Edna D. Skothein in her divorce suit against O. H. Skothein. Catherine A. Murray filed suit for divorce against Patrick Murray, alleging cruel and inhuman conduct. She alleges property interests are involved to the value of $100,000, and asks for $75 per month pending trial of the suit, and for a one-third interest in the property. She states that she previously filed divorce proceedings but was induced by the defendant to withdraw them and they resumed life together, but that defendant's conduct has steadily grown worse.

COURT REFUSED TO NAME GUARDIAN FOR MRS. LAFFLER

Circuit Judge Tazewell Tuesday refused to appoint a guardian for Mrs. Marie Laffler, aged 61, declaring, after hearing her and other witnesses, that he believes she is fully capable of taking care of herself and her property interests.

Mrs. Laffler sued her daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Dorr and George Dorr, for the conveyance to her of the title of property which she claimed was bought with her own money but which was taken in their names. Involved in the case were various phases of the disposal of the estate of Mrs. Laffler's husband. The court held that money used to purchase the home, used by all of the parties to the suit, and from which Mrs. Laffler said she had been driven, was really purchased with money that was owned by Mrs. Laffler.

SMELT UNION IN REBEL BOYCOTT OF SANDY RIVER

Smelt have evidently cancelled their annual catch-as-catch-can engagement with the public in the Sandy river this year and the stake, which is temporary reduction of food prices, will be forfeited to the profiteer, with the privilege of doing with it as he sees fit.

Each spring for the last three years the delicate little smelt, which savors of the mountain trout, has thrown its millions of tribesmen on to the scale of food demand for a week or two.

SPAWNING PLACE SPURNED The smelt is a slender little fish with silver tinted sides and its fancy leads it from the ocean to various streams each year to spawn. When the run of smelt is on, the favored stream swirls and shimmers from bank to bank with these fish as they fight their way toward the headwaters.

The Sandy river has long been a favored stream, but this year the fish have seemingly deserted their haunt. In former years the run came during the first and second week in April. The time has now passed and not a smelt has been seen in the Sandy.

From 1913 to 1917 there were no smelt runs in the Sandy river and then in the spring of 1917 countless hordes of the fish crowded the stream. In 1918 the run was still stronger and in both years the fish played an April fool joke on high prices by appearing the first day of April. Last year the fish appeared in the largest and latest run ever recorded on April 21 (one year ago today).

COWLITZ RUNS REPORTED

So far this year the smelt have not been reported farther up the Columbia river than the Cowlitz, where two runs have been recorded this year.

Even if the fish should begin to run up the Sandy this year, the water would be so high and muddy it would be hard to catch the fish and moreover the season is so late now that the smelt would be soft and not fit for the table, in the opinion of the fish and game commission officers.

Seine of every description, nets and sieve-like buckets which have been used in former years to catch the fish will have to remain hanging in basement and attic until next year in the hope that the prodigal fish will return.

Swimming Lessons Free During Week Of National Event

Observation of national "Learn to Swim" week will be made in Portland May 3 to 8 when members of the American Red Cross life saving corps will teach swimming lessons free to the public in various swimming tanks of the city. Shattuck and Couch schools, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. Portland Natatorium and Multnomah club have been designated as places for the instructors to take charge.

Those who have signified their intention to help make the week a success are James Burke, schools; M. G. Douglas, Natatorium; C. F. Werner, Y. M. C. A.; Millie Schlothe, schools; Lillian Hanson, Alice Ludgate and Mrs. Norman Christy, Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Grace DeBoest, Miss Jessie Pettinger and Mrs. Connie Meyers-Dresser, Multnomah club, and Emil O. Bill Protects Power Rights in Bull Run

City Attorney La Roche wired Mayor Baker Tuesday afternoon that Portland's water and power rights in the Bull Run forest reserve were protected under the federal water power bill that is pending in congress. La Roche is in Washington attending important rate hearings before the interstate commerce commission. He made inquiry concerning Portland's water rights from members of Oregon's congressional delegation following telegraphic instructions from the mayor.

Held on Statutory Charge

Mike Leahy, an employe of the Blumauer-Frank Drug company, was arrested Tuesday by Constable Peterson on a statutory charge, alleged to have been committed on August 16, against a 14-year-old girl.

Add Pep to Your Step

Begin each day with clean thoughts and good clothes.

There's plenty of pep in a freshly pressed suit—A hat with some kick in it brings a smile to your face. The aid of a smart tie and fresh linen makes you feel like a man among men.

Leadership in clothes implies and impels leadership in the wearer. The cost to dress well adds slightly more to expense—but it pays you big dividends in the success you attain.

THE CHICKERING AMPICO

Leo Ornstein, the celebrated pianist, appeared in recital at the Municipal Auditorium last night and delighted an audience of five thousand people.

The Ampico immediately played some of the same selections. So perfectly did the Ampico re-create the music that the audience was amazed and delighted. The Ampico is artist-pianist combined. It plays human-like—perfectly, with no evidence of mechanism.
