SMITH OPPOSES PLUMB PLAN FOR RAILWAY CONTROL

Candidate for the Republican Nomination as Congressman Explains Position in Letter.

Eugene E. Smith, candidate for the Republican nomination as congressman from the Third district, has put himself squarely on record against the Plumb plan of railroad operation and control in a letter written to J. C. Hadden, secretary of the Portland local of the Plumb Plan league. The letter was written in response to a request from Hadden, sent as a representative of the league, asking the position of Smith in relation to that proposed plan of railroad reorganization. In his letter Smith says, in part:

"Because of my well known and open record while in organized labor and in public life on questions directly concerning labor, I cannot agree to your premise that any written reply by me, prior to any endorsement that you might make, was necessary to determine in the mind of the informed unionist whether or no I was fitted by experience and record to do justice to the great cause of labor in the halls of congress."

OPPOSED TO CUMMINS BILL

"I cannot express to you my views on all railway legislation, past and present, for I am not familiar with all of this, but I can tell you what I think of the Cummins-Esch bill and of the Plumb plan as embodied in the Sims bill.

"As to the first, if I had been in congress I would have, in line with the president's views and the majority opinion of congress and I believe of the American people, voted to have returned the railway properties to private control. I would not have voted, however, for the Cummins-Esch bill as it passed in congress, and I do not believe that the railways can be satisfactorily operated thereunder without material amendment thereto. Congress erred fundamentally, in my opinion, when it granted a minimum, even for a short period of time, of return on the investment of investors without determining a minimum of wages to railway employes and a maximum of cost for railway service to consumers.

"As to the nationalization of the railways, this, in my opinion, in time will come, but it will not come and should not come excepting that it is proven beyond a reasonable doubt that federal ownership and operation of railways will result in lower cost of transportation, better service and more industrial justice for the railway workers, however employed.

IS POLITICAL QUESTION

"As to my objections to the proposed Plumb plan, pleased be advised as follows: The plan has embodied in it two distinct proposals, neither of which is necessary to the other for the accomplishment of either. It seeks both public ownership and joint control by labor and directive management of the railway properties. The question of public ownership is properly a political question. The question of joint control of industry by labor and capital is one that, in my opinion, is not a proper subject of political action, and must be determined solely by the owners of industry and the economic organizations of labor, each acting within their constitutional and law-defined rights.

"To arrive at a mutual and satisfactory agreement on this matter is a laudable ambition, but to have it forced by congress can only result in turning the entire attention, in the case of labor organizations, to political rather than on-the-job activity.

"Excepting that the government may provide machinery for the adjudication and compromise of industrial disagreements, I do not believe that it is in the interests of the workers or our system of government that congress should determine how the economic organizations of labor shall function for the workers, excepting further, of course, congress insists that these organizations collectively respect the law and the rights of others, as congress expects the individual to respect the law and the rights of others.

"Any other conception I believe to be diametrically opposed to the application of the principles and the policies that have made the trade unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor an effective force for the betterment of the working people and of our people as a whole, and those that have made our nation great and progressive.

RESTRICTIONS UNNECESSARY

"Permit me to add before leaving this phase of the subject that as long, however, as the railways or any other industrial properties are in the hands of private capital wherein it is the expectation of the owners that a profit shall be derived from the labor of others, congress should in nowise seek to restrict the right of employes to strike for industrial justice, for in my opinion it is an obligation of private owners to so administer the operation of their properties that strikes will be unnecessary to the reasonable man—and I know the vast majority of American workers to be reasonable and fair.

"If the laws governing railroads and their operations are not such, and the administration of these properties by the private owners is not such that this result will be attained, then public ownership will come, and under public ownership the right to strike will be restricted, though even then I know now of no enforcable law that would prevent free workingmen suffering industrial injustice from striking if no other remedy could be found.

DEBT ALREADY HEAVY

"It certainly is not a province of mine to advise railroad workers or their organizations as to their methods of procedure. But as a citizen and one who has had more or less experience in labor matters I have a right to express an opinion, and it occurs to me that with the 25 or 30 billions of indebtedness with which our people are loaded because of the great war and its cost, every effort should be made by all good citizens to find a way in which the railroads can be efficiently operated in justice to the workers, consumers and owners under the present ownership rather than to ask the people to shoulder an additional burden of at least fifteen billion dollars with which to buy the railroad properties; on which an interest would have to be paid nearly equal to what the private owners are now charging the public in the way of profits besides embarking upon what might prove a costly experiment.

"It occurs to me also that before the public would be willing to entrust a share of the management of publicly owned railroads to the workers' organizations these organizations would first have to prove their ability as railroad managers. With the immense resources of the great brotherhoods this proof should not be hard to attain. First, the brotherhoods could buy outright a controlling interest in a very short time of a substantial mileage of railway properties, the management of which they could control and direct as they thought best, and I am quite sure this experiment would be watched with interest by the public, and if successful, the public would undoubtedly join in a movement to so control and manage the entire railroad systems of our country. Yet another way might be found by the brotherhoods by offering to the present railway managements their cooperative efforts through a system of regional advisory councils on operation as well as upon wages and conditions of employment. Either step it seems to me would be following the natural law of progress which is the law of evolution or going step by step, and overcoming obstacle by obstacle as they are met, to a given goal."

expect to gain from the anti-league segment of the population, who may swallow its possible distaste at his radicalism in its stronger hostility against the league. With Poindexter out, the bitter-enders will have no anti-league candidate but Johnson, and they will have to vote for him, if they vote their sentiments, or not vote at all.

The Poindexter headquarters in Portland, which have spent some money in their work preparatory to his contemplated invasion of the state, are to be closed. J. C. Herbsman, the state manager, is to return to Washington, and he goes saying that there is no understanding between Johnson and Poindexter. The Poindexter campaign, he explains, was predicted upon the personal touch to be given it by Poindexter's efforts throughout the state. Without Poindexter here to bring his own message, there would be no use and no profit in going on with the battle.

RIVALS WATCH JOHNSON

Johnson, on the other hand, is expected to come into Oregon "with his working force" following the California primaries of Tuesday next. Nobody minimizes his campaigning ability, for it has been demonstrated in the supposedly hostile atmosphere of the East. What he can do here, next door to his home, remains to be seen, and his rivals are not viewing the impending invasion without alarm.

In the meantime the other and opposing campaigns are going forward in the even tenor of their respective ways. Wood's misfortunes in the East have not heartened his followers here and the Lowden men are holding on. Hoover's headquarters are reaching out in their efforts to arouse the underlying and latent Hoover sentiment throughout the state to such an active extent that it will register at the polls. In that their main hope lies for they contend that with the full Hoover strength asserted they would have but little to fear on May 21.

But neither the Wood, the Lowden nor the Hoover supporters find much solace in the Poindexter retreat. They contend that it focuses the anti-league sentiment too strongly Johnsonward to suit their political palates. And they are watching the game, closer and closer as the days go by.

WOOD MANAGERS SEE MORE TROUBLE IN KNOX CANDIDACY

Chicago, May 1.—(U. P.)—Political observers were busy conjecting here tonight on the possible effect the entry of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania into the presidential race may have on other candidates.

"The more the merrier," was the attitude at headquarters of the Republican national committee.

Governor Frank O. Lowden's supporters expressed the belief that it would have little effect on his candidacy.

Wood managers claimed it was a plot to wreck their man's candidacy.

"First they tried to stop us by launching a favorite son movement and they failed," stated a prominent Wood leader. "They then trotted out Johnson and still Wood continues to lead. Now they are bringing out Knox in another attempt to halt the Wood drive from getting too big a lead before the convention is held."

ELIMINATE BOLSHEVIK, HIGH AND LOW, PECK TELLS CLUB

"If you can have a walking delegate go around looking for shirkers instead of looking for workers who may be doing 'too much' you instantly change the whole complexion of the present labor situation, and you can do exactly this thing through profit sharing," said Cassius R. Peck, Saturday noon, before the Roosevelt Republican club at the Benson hotel.

The vital problem before the ruling political powers in America is that of eliminating both the Bolshevik "in the gutter and the one at the top" as well, Peck declared, speaking on the theme, "Party Responsibility." He advocated deportation for radicals, profit limitation for the profiteers and profit sharing for the average loyal workingmen.

G. B. Hamaker, chairman of the Democratic county committee, was introduced as an "interloper" and made a plea for clean political fights in the campaign.

Supporters of Senator Johnson for president were guests of the club and presented a quartet which led in several Johnson songs. Leon W. Behrman was chairman of the meeting.

POINDEXTER'S WITHDRAWAL SENT BY WIRE TO SALEM

Salem, May 1.—Intimation that Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington intends to withdraw for the Republican presidential race in Oregon was contained in a telegram received by the secretary of state's office this morning from J. C. Herbsman of Portland, Oregon campaign manager for Poindexter. Herbsman's telegram requests the return of Poindexter's statement, but inasmuch as this is already included in the printed voters' pamphlets, it is too late to comply with the request. Kozer has notified Herbsman that if it is Poindexter's desire to withdraw from the race he must make the request for the withdrawal himself.

TOTAL REGISTRATION IN LANE COUNTY IS 16,756

Eugene, May 1.—Registration for Lane county totals 16,756 names, classified as lows: Republicans, 11,500; Democrats, 4622; miscellaneous, 634. From the fact that a large portion of the county has been covered by the boosters for the millage tax bills and the good roads bonds, it is probable that this figure is very close to the actual voting strength of the county.

Comparison with the returns of the last presidential election primaries shows not only a large increase of registration but a marked change in political classification. In 1916 Lane county showed 7155 Republicans, 3048 Democrats, 465 Socialists, 229 independents, 59 Progressives, 300 Prohibitionists, 205 non-partisan, a total of more than 12,000.

DEMOCRATS ELECT SMITH AS HEAD OF STATE COMMITTEE

Resolution Unanimously Adopted Indorsing President Wilson and Work of Administration.

Dr. Charles J. Smith, by unanimous vote, was elected chairman of the Democratic state central committee, to fill the unexpired term of Harvey G. Starkweather, at the called meeting of the committee held in the Multnomah hotel Saturday afternoon.

Twenty-eight counties of the state were represented at the meeting, either by county committeemen or proxies forwarded by them to be used by Portland men. The meeting, contrary to the custom and usages of a political gathering, was devoid of oratory, and gave birth to but one resolution, that being an enthusiastic indorsement of President Wilson and his administration.

UNION MEN OFFER RESOLUTION

The resolution of indorsement, adopted by a unanimous vote, was introduced by B. O. Shuffer of Portland, holding a proxy from Lane county. He said, in presenting it, that he was a boilermaker and a member of that union, and that it gave him pleasure to lay the resolution before the committee because he wanted it and the people to know that the men who worked were just as loyal Americans and just as good citizens as any who "wore boiled shirts and store clothes" while engaged in their daily employments. His resolution reads as follows:

"The world has seen in Woodrow Wilson's administration a forward reaching advance in vital and constructive legislation and administrative achievement not duplicated in the history of the American nation. For years politicians and parties had been promising reforms in administrative government, and had failed in performance. Panics, man made, swept the country. Burdens were eased from the shoulders of the powerful to bear more heavily upon the backs of the weak. Special interest was given special consideration. The rank and file was left to struggle towards the goal of promised betterment, without material assistance.

LABOR DIGNITY RECOGNIZED

"Then Wilson came and party promises became fruitful. The bulwark of the federal reserve system was built between panic and the nation and the financial stability of the nation assured. Rural credits were extended to those who sought to build productive homes upon the soil. The tariff commission, long promised but never produced, became a fact. The labor of men was declared by law not to be a commodity and the dignity of labor was recognized as it long before should have been.

"The great war swept our country into its maelstrom and, under the wise leadership of the president, America threw herself and her resources between the onrushing Hun and the warsick world and brought it peace.

"Because of these and of all the other achievements of the Wilson administration common in the mind of thinking people everywhere, therefore,

Be it resolved by the Democratic state central committee in special session met that it hereby voices its pride in and its full indorsement of the administration and the forward marching achievements of Woodrow Wilson and of his administration; that it commends his untiring efforts to bring enduring peace to a war worn world through the League of Nations covenant and expresses its profound conviction that this covenant should have been ratified by congress in the interest of world peace and stability; and that the advancement of the past seven years should be preserved and still more advancement made for the benefit of this nation and the world by the continuation and extension of these policies through the years to come.

COSHOW PRESIDED

The committee was called to order by National Committeeman J. W. Morrow, and O. P. Coshow of Roseburg was named as temporary chairman, and Will Moore as temporary secretary. A committee on credentials, consisting of Will Moore, Hugh McLain and D. S. Smith was appointed. It reported the following counties to be represented by their respective committeemen, or by proxies duly appointed by them:

Benton, W. H. Malone; Clackamas, Dr. C. H. Meishner; Coos, Hugh McLain; Crook, E. J. Woods; Deschutes, G. Y. Harry; Douglas, O. P. Coshow; Gilliam, J. D. Burns; Grant, A. S. Laurence; Harney, R. W. Hagood; Hood River, A. J. Derby; Jackson, W. H. Cannon; Lane, B. O. Shuffer; Lincoln, B. E. Haney; Linn, D. S. Smith; Morrow, J. D. Burns; Polk, Elton Watkins; Sherman, W. F. Jackson; Tillamook, Will Moore; Umatilla, N. Berkeley; Union, Thomas P. Crawford; Wallowa, J. S. Smith; Wasco, George Horseman; Washington, Herbert Bernards; Yamhill, George Lovejoy; Baker, Klamath, Malheur and Multnomah, J. W. Morrow.

ELECTION UNANIMOUS

Following the acceptance of the credentials committee's report the committee turned at once to the business for which it had been called, and Starkweather's resignation was read and accepted. Dr. J. C. Smith was placed in nomination for chairman by Hugh McLain, the nomination was seconded by a number of committeemen, and, upon motion of Judge Crawford, the secretary cast the unanimous ballot of the committee for Dr. Smith. The chairman-elect was authorized by the committee to appoint a secretary.

Dr. Smith, and the secretary appointed by him, will hold office for the remainder of the term to which Starkweather was elected, until the newly elected state central committee is organized following the primary election.

The committee, on motion of Hugh McLain, went on record in favor of the various millage tax measures to be voted upon by the people at the coming special election.

The chairman was directed to appoint a committee to draft permanent rules and regulations to govern the conduct and business of the state central committee.

Those who went to the meeting expecting to see monkey wrenches hurled into the machinery by ex-Postmaster Frank S. Myers had their journey for for nothing, as neither Myers, Starkweather nor any ofg their team mates were present at the meeting, which was as devoid of excitement as an afternoon in May is generally supposed to be.
