

HOT FIGHT LOOMS ON BANK CHARTER

Salem, May 4.—If the state banking board upholds the decision of Will H. Bennett, state superintendent of banks, in refusing to grant a charter to the proposed Citizens' bank at The Dalles, mandamus proceedings will be instituted to compel the issuance of the charter, and the case will be fought to the highest court, if necessary.

This was the statement made by George Joseph, Portland attorney, representing the stockholders of the proposed new bank at a hearing before the state banking board, to which the application for a charter has been appealed after Bennett had refused to grant one.

APPEAL IS ADVISED
The appeal was taken under advisement by the state board, consisting of Governor Olcott and State Treasurer Hoff. A decision will be rendered before May 10, it was stated.

Joseph characterized Bennett's refusal to comply with the request for charter as an arbitrary exercise of legislative power not contemplated under the state law and which the legislature could not delegate to an official.

Bennett, in explaining his position, characterized the organization of the new bank—the fourth for The Dalles—as prompted by spite work and jealousy and not justified by business conditions.

SAYS RULING IS INFLUENCED
Joseph, taking exception to Bennett's stand, declared that the state superintendent of banks had evidently been "influenced" in his decision, and insisted that his position displayed partiality to the Portland men who are backing the third bank now opening for business in The Dalles.

The demand for the Citizens' bank, he explained, was simply a spontaneous uprising on the part of the people of The Dalles who "would not stand" for any arbitrary dismissal of their request for a state charter.

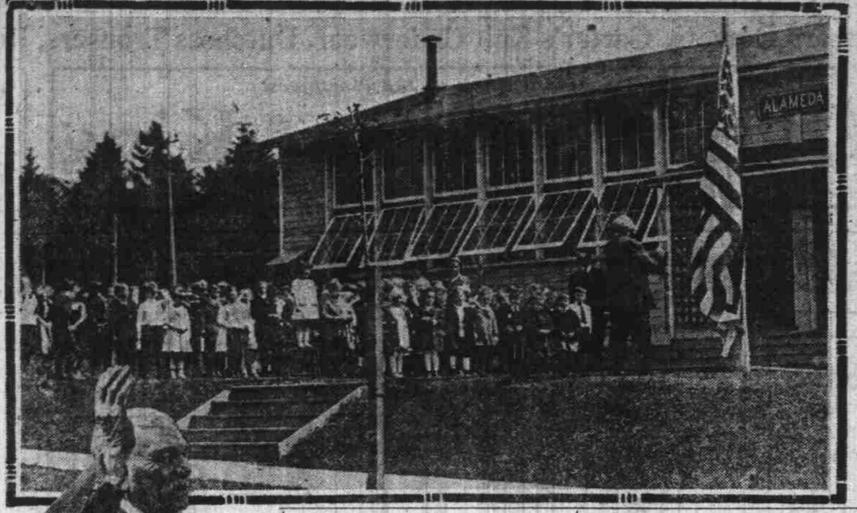

Stockholders of the proposed new bank attending the hearing Tuesday were P. J. Stadlerman, H. L. Kuck, Dr. John A. Reuter, Thomas Brogan, John A. Heimrick, R. C. Bradshaw, Garfield Morris and Dr. B. C. Olinger.

ideals of this nation and the forces that are opposed to them. Similar addresses will be given from time to time at other schools of the Portland district.

Sheriff Seeking to Draw Net Around Holdup Suspects

Corvallis, May 5.—James Arnold and Fred Williams, arrested on the charge of holding up Virgil Keyt, are said to have confessed to enough to warrant the sheriff in holding them. They admitted, the sheriff said, that they had used the car, which they said they found at Junction City, and told how they had tried to get away with it further south, but that on account of a leak in the radiator they were forced to stop at Junction City, where they intended to take the southbound freight train when they were discovered by the trainmen.

While being brought back to Corvallis along the road they had traveled in the Keyt car, they showed their familiarity with the place where they had held Keyt up and robbed him. McNary Is Opposed To Forest Patrol In Private Hands

Opposition to the proposal of the Oregon Forest Fire association, Oregon State Chamber of Commerce and Oregon Aero club for the maintenance of airplane forest patrol by the Oregon-Washington-Idaho Airplane company under contract with the government has been expressed by Senator Charles L. McNary, to whom was sent a copy of the Nugent telegram.

"Air patrol amendment referred to in army reorganization bill now with conference," reads the message received by the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce. "Your suggestion comes too late to be considered in connection with that legislation. In discussion of amendment, the idea obtained that this work would supply experience for the government agencies, and there is much opposition here to any effort to place work of patrol in private hands. My amendment to agriculture bill, providing for appropriation of $60,000, it is thought will be sufficient to carry on this work under the supervision of governmental agencies."

Members of the Kiwanis club Tuesday, upon the statement by C. S. Chapman that airplane patrol was doctored for Oregon unless the citizens get back of the movement, dispatched telegrams to Washington representatives, urging airplane forest protection.
