

WILSON'S RESERVE RATES HIS VIEW ON TREATY

WHITTING OPPOSED

The telegram marks the president's vigorous entry into the campaign, and as it is at least as strong as what he considers the paramount issue.

The declaration was taken to mean also that the peace treaty will not again be submitted to the senate for ratification, that the president believes the question should be put squarely before the voters of the country for a decision.

DUTY TO SOLDIERS

The president says that the Lodge reservations be condemned "as utterly inconsistent with the nation's honor and destructive of the world leadership which had established the Versailles treaty and the League of Nations."

DEMOCRATIC DUTY

It is time that the party should proudly avow that it means to try, without flinching or turning at any time away from the path for reasons of expediency, to apply the national and Christian principles to the problems of the world.

"Let us prove to our late associates in war that at any rate the great majority of the nation, the party which expresses the true hopes and purposes of the people of the country, intends to keep faith with them in peace as well as in war."

DESTROY BY WEAKENING

"The chief motives which led us to enter the war will be defeated unless that covenant is ratified and acted upon with vigor. We cannot in honor whitely give up or weaken it as the Republican leaders of the senate have proposed to do."

STANFIELD CAMP HAPPY OVER HAMAKER'S GOV

Several definite conclusions stand out in high relief in the consideration of the telegram exchanged between Hamaker and President Wilson. First, the Hamaker telegram, obviously, was carefully phrased to draw from the president, if possible, a reply that could be used by the Myers-Hamaker-Starkweather crowd for campaign purposes against Senator Chamberlain and for Starkweather.

The second conclusion is—and in the minds of political observers generally it is definite and certain—that the ultimate effect of the president's telegram in Oregon, should it have the potency desired by the Myers-Hamaker-Starkweather crowd, would be the election of Stanfield to the United States senate.

EARLY AIDES AT SCENE OF SUNDAY CRASH

Broderick, passenger, Forest Grove; Walter James, Hillsdale; Fred Dryman, Hillsdale. These and later volunteer workers were augmented later by physicians and nurses who hastened from Portland.

nomination in May, generally considered, means his election in November. Additional and incidental light is shed on this phase of the situation by the fact that Hamaker has his office in the Henry building, owned by Stanfield and under the superintendency of Ferdinand E. Reed, Stanfield's staunchest champion.

The major question which Democrats see in the anti-Chamberlain movement is whether it would be for the best interests of the state generally to turn from Chamberlain and elect Stanfield, or to support Chamberlain, and return him to the United States senate.

Taft Denounces Wilson

"POLITICAL SUICIDE" IS SENATOR REED'S COMMENT

Washington, May 10.—(I. N. S.)—President Wilson's demand that the Democratic party indorse the treaty precisely as it came from Versailles, "is the finest scheme of premeditated political suicide devised since Senator James Reed, (Democrat, Missouri), declared today in a statement bearing upon the president's telegram to the Democrats of Oregon."

day or so is necessitated by the extreme needs of industries, of tractors engaged in plowing, and of the salmon canneries in Astoria, said representatives of the company. Astoria is low in supply, The Dalles has but a two-day supply to last three weeks, while Roseburg is practically out of gasoline.

APPEALS FOR RELIEF FLOOD OFFICE OF GOVERNOR OLCOTT

Salem, May 10.—Appeals for relief from the gasoline shortage are flooding the office of Governor Olcott today. A telegram from Astoria signed by 17 business firms urges the governor to act immediately in supplying relief by discontinuing enforcement of the gasoline gravity law until the legislature meets next January.

Astoria has less than five days' supply of gasoline now on hand, the message states. Fishing and canning industries are threatened with a tie-up unless the 2000 fish boats and cannery tenders can be supplied.

"Our tractors are laid up for lack of gasoline and plowing is being held up," writes A. Samis Jr., of The Dalles, member of the state board of horticulture. "We are better off with no spray gasoline than without any."

Dr. C. Smith of Portland telephoned the governor this morning that a half dozen tractors which he was operating in Eastern Oregon were laid up because of the lack of gasoline and prays for relief.

Salem, May 10.—The gas shortage had no visible effect on automobile traffic around the state capital Sunday. Hundreds of cars were out. Some dealers were selling gasoline in lots of five gallons, while it is said that others were furnishing the fluid in any quantity desired.

ADMIRAL SIMS NOT TO BE FORGIVEN, DECLARES DANIELS

Washington, May 10.—(U. P.)—The American people never will forgive Admiral Sims for his "personal" attack on the United States navy, Secretary Daniels declared today, opening his defense before the senate naval investigating committee.

He expressed regret that he had even recommended Sims for honors. But the navy stands "without a trace of the mud" with which the admiral sought to bespatter it, Daniels declared.

BRITISH LOVE OBSCESSES

Daniels centered his first day's fire almost exclusively on Sims, dwelling on that officer's feelings toward Great Britain, which he declared were an "obsession" first noticed when he "slopped over" at the Guild hall speech in 1910, by promising that if Great Britain were ever attacked she would find America ready to shed blood in a common cause.

"I did not know until long afterwards that it was an obsession and that Admiral Sims had a mind which generally gravitated to British views and at times was closer to the views of his superiors in his own country," Daniels declared.

Against the "mole hills of mistakes" which Sims made into mountains, Daniels said would stand the achievements of the navy during the war.

SIMS FOUND WANTING

Sims did not "measure up to expectations" on six counts, Daniels said. He charged the admiral "lacked vision" to grasp the navy's "cold and audacious" plans such as the mine barrage; that he seems to accept the views of the British admiralty as superior to those of his own; that he gave maximum credit to British accomplishments, while minimizing America's; that he coveted British decorations and seemed to value them more than those from his own government; that he aspired to become a member of the British admiralty; and that he viewed protection of merchant ships as the main operation.

In his criticism Sims has "exaggerated and misrepresented," scandalously unwarranted, and officers supporting him are "largely persons with grievances," Daniels said.

4 SENTENCED TO JAIL FOR SPEEDING ON BUSY AVENUE

Stiff sentences were given four speeders in municipal court this morning by Judge Roseman. The four young men must spend 24 hours in jail and in addition pay a fine of $25 each. All were arrested Sunday evening on Union avenue by Motorcycle Patrolman Chester Wiles.

S. Makino and Joe Tatushi were racing, the officer testified. They pleaded guilty to driving 35 miles an hour on the crowded thoroughfare. J. A. Spady and H. Wirth also pleaded guilty to racing. Wiles said he followed them for six blocks at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

Toney Sainey of Cornelius came in for the heaviest fine of the day, but when he promised never to drive his car in Portland again the court suspended payment on that condition. Sainey was fined $50 on a reckless driving charge. He struck a pedestrian and automobile at Twelfth and Washington streets Sunday. Patrolman Stone happened to be near the accident and ordered Sainey to report to the traffic department at once. Instead Sainey drove his machine in the opposite direction. The officer commandeered another machine and overtook Sainey at Thirteenth and Main streets and arrested him. Sainey told the court he was taking his family to a picture show before reporting.

James Colombo was fined $25 on a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested at Twenty-fifth and Clinton streets by Sergeant Keegan. Others fined are: John Weiler $10, S. Oda $5, George Hines $10, C. Franks $10, E. W. Griffin $5, J. C. Peterson $10, B. W. Beaver $10, C. G. Davis $10, C. H. Gray $10, Frank Moulton $5, George Ross $7.50, R. A. Volheim $7.50, C. E. Parker $5.

He was ordered to appear at 2 o'clock this afternoon with all witnesses.
