

INCENDIARISM IS REPORTED RIFE IN PART OF IRELAND

Daniel O'Connell
Dublin, May 13.—(I. N. S.)—A new wave of incendiarism swept over Ireland last night and early today. Constabulary barracks were burned at many places.

The Sinn Feiners threw a cordon about the city during the night, and later 5000 of them made a great demonstration. During the funeral of dead hunger strikers the Sinn Feiners marched through the principal streets. While the city was surrounded, Sinn Fein sentries were posted along the roads and challenged all passers by.

Six barracks were burned in Dublin county, and others were destroyed in the counties of Tyrone and Donegal. At Enniskellen the revenue station was burned.

The demonstration here recalled the sham attack on Dublin castle just before the Sinn Fein uprising at Easter-tide in 1916. It was the signal for conflagrations throughout the country. Another fatal shooting occurred today. The victim was identified as Gadsden McCabe. It is presumed that he failed to answer the challenge of a sentry.

All the official records were burned by a band of men at Bishop street, Derry. At Skibbereen, P. Sheehy, a newspaper editor, was seized by a mob and tarred. The Carrigan barracks near Londonderry were fired. All the wires between Londonderry and Donegal were cut.

BREEN KILLED FIGHTING FOR IRELAND, SAYS JURY

Dublin, May 13.—(I. N. S.)—A verdict that John Breen, a Sinn Feiner, was "murdered while fighting for the freedom of his country" was returned today by a coroner's jury that conducted an inquest in County Clare. Breen had been shot and killed by a policeman named Martin. The verdict went farther in its attack against the English, adding that the rider system of government in Ireland was "barbarous and uncivilized" and that the authority of the British government was "immoral and unjust."

Another Increase Is Predicted Near In Price of Tires

F. C. Millhoff, sales manager of the Miller Rubber Co., who is in Portland, stated today that another rise in the price of automobile tires will be announced by manufacturers in the near future. "My advice to motorists is to get your house in order now and after you are supplied with tires to take the very best care of them that you can, particularly if you use cord tires. There is a scarcity and manufacturers are not catching up," Millhoff says, "if Portland will prepare to handle export business on a large scale, this port will get it just as soon as it is in a position to handle big cargoes. 'American manufacturers are going to invade the Orient,'" he declares.

charge, and that similar prices be fixed on flour and mill feed. It was also recommended that no appropriation be made by congress to finance wheat sales to foreign countries until the American people had been relieved from paying the prices required by reason of the alleged manipulation. Houser at once branded the charges as absurd, declaring that the grand jurors had not chosen to consult the United States Grain corporation, of which he is second vice president, for advice and information, depending rather on the work of "gumshoosers" and persons who had political axes to grind.

DEMANDED INVESTIGATION
In a message direct to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, Houser demanded the fullest investigation of his transactions as vice president of the government grain handling corporation and also of his own private interests in that period. He also requested that the findings of the investigators be given complete publicity.

This request was acceded to by the attorney general on February 18, when United States Attorney Lester W. Humphreys was ordered to make the investigation. He was authorized to conduct this in any way he saw fit to get the most complete results, either by subpoenaing witnesses or otherwise. The work started about February 20. Special agents of the department of justice and George R. Mayo, special government bank accountant, were detailed to collaborate with Humphreys. Mayo, who came from New York, gave the work his most searching attention, continuing unrelentingly on the task until a few days ago. Extended schedules, tables and reports were prepared by him, not only from the grain corporation records, to which he had fullest access, but from all other available sources. The final reports were sent to the attorney general for his personal examination May 3.

The foot brake broke and before Mrs. Nau could apply the hand brake the car had bumped the pole and then rolled across the street into a fence around the home of Peter Kilmer.

POST MORTEM ORDER BY COURT ALTERS MAN'S NAME

Although John Johnson went to his grave without final action having been taken on his petition to have his name changed to Jens Jensen, a formal order of the court will go on record providing for this change. Judge Jacob Knauer of the court of domestic relations has so decided. This will give the rightful name to the widow and the children.

Jensen came to the United States in 1882 and the Americans began calling him "John Johnson," and eventually he assumed this name. He was naturalized and married under it, but in later years he became worried about his change of name. On April 18 last he filed his petition for the change but died before the court took final action.

DECISION IN HEINE CASE IS POSTPONED BY TAXWELL

When the petition of Mrs. Rachael Heiney to be appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband, Joseph Heiney, who died April 19, was before Circuit Judge Taxwell Wednesday, much opposition developed from her children to such an appointment. Mrs. Heiney is an aged woman, and the children felt that she might not be able to look after the business of the estate properly. Judge Taxwell held the matter in abeyance. The estate consists mainly of property in the vicinity of Astoria, and is valued at not less than $10,500.

Assurance that four auto camp sites equipped with running water and camp facilities would be available for the Shrine convention in June was given this morning by Commissioner Pier.

Land in the city of Portland will be used, as will part of the old county poor farm on Canyon road. The city originally intended to lease a tract of eighty-second and Sandy boulevard, but conditions have arisen which will make it impossible to be used. Pier stated that motorists from Britain, who are expected next Tuesday on their way to the Ad club convention in Stockton, will be cared for during their stay over night.
