

PHONOGRAPHS TO BE MADE; O. A. C. OPENS NEW SHOP

Inlaid and Veneered Furniture Finished by Students; Smith-Hughes Act Gives Assistance.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, May 15.—Phonographs are now being manufactured by students at O. A. C.

Nine high grade phonographs are part of this week's program for the students in the industrial arts department. These instruments are not the cheap, staid talking boxes of a few years ago, but are modern, up-to-the-minute designs, highly finished and the kind you would select at the music store for your parlor.

Each man is given a certain part of the instrument to make, says Professor H. C. Brandon, director of the shops. "Every day or so the men change jobs, which gives every one a chance at making the furniture."

Each bench is equipped with a patent rapid action vise and two sets of hand tools, consisting of rip saws, planes, chisels, marking gauges, try squares, hammers, dividers and oilstones.

The shop is equipped with modern machine equipment. There are 15 wood turning lathes, an iron saw table, a 24-inch surface planer, a belt sander built by the students, and grindstones.

The federal government, through the Smith-Hughes act, promotes these lines both in the schools of the state and in teacher training.

Conditions of receiving federal funds include setting up certain standards, insuring practical legislation, and matching the federal aid dollar for dollar.

Consequently, O. A. C. is turning out scores of teachers for the vocational subjects. And as a direct result, thousands more Oregon boys and girls may receive vocational training, because adequate support by the state secures the federal fund for this training, and produces a greater number of instructors.

STUDENTS FIGHT H. C. L.

Characteristic costumes seen on the campus at the University of Oregon in the campaign to lower the cost of clothes. Left to right—Miss Mary Ellen Bailey of Eugene, Leith Abbott of Ashland and Guy Sacy of Monmouth.

University of Oregon, Eugene, May 15.—The attempt of university students to wear neat, serviceable rather than dressy clothes is a success, according to outsiders who have witnessed the students in every phase of college life, from military drill and regular campus activities to dances and teas.

Most of the freshmen and sophomore men, who are required to drill every day, wear heavy shoes, spiral leggings khaki trousers and a coat usually from last year's suit.

Junior men wear corduroy trousers according to class tradition. Athletic heroes wear sweaters adorned with an "O" and shirts with soft collars, while any presentable coat is considered proper by the others.

Caps are worn mostly by both juniors and sophomores. The senior man wears a wide sombrero and any clothing that is old enough to be comfortable.

Neatness is insisted upon in all classes and those careless in this respect find themselves in disfavor in their living organizations and with their classmates.

The girls in warm weather wear gingham dresses, white skirts, middie and any kind of light colored cotton frocks. Spring dances afford the girls ample opportunity to wear light, flirty summer clothes in place of silk or more pretentious clothing.

Shoe repairing in Eugene is said to be one of the greatest industries of the community on account of the large number to be mended for university students. Already the shoe shops are swamped with last year's white shoes for rejuvenation.

During the winter dark skirts and a dark jacket with patent leather belt was almost a regulation costume. Woolen stockings are worn, not for a pad, but for comfort.

"I have never seen the girls more becomingly dressed than they are now," said the wife of a faculty member, "and they are well dressed because they are suitably dressed."

Healy started for the telephone. Before he had taken half a dozen steps the dog barked and refused to budge.

"I fear the dog is hurt or has the rheumatism," said Healy to a passer-by. "I can't move him, and he has been 10 minutes in this one spot. I'll call the humane society."

106 APPLICATIONS FOR CITIZENSHIP PAPERS PENDING

Circuit Court to Pass on Final Papers June 19; 47 Request First Papers.

Effective evidence of the local reach of the great "melting pot" of Americanism will be shown in the Multnomah county district court June 19, when a large class of candidates for citizenship will be presented before Circuit Judge John McCourt by J. B. Easter, naturalization deputy in the county clerk's office. A total of 106 applications for final citizenship papers will be submitted.

Included are 59 applications for first papers; 47 applications which have been continued from time to time will come up.

"Alien enemy" cases will be called, but it is anticipated that all such cases now pending in Multnomah county will be disposed of within the following two or three months.

Those who have shown a clear record before the department of justice will doubtless be given the "presidential option" from the governing naturalization act of 1913, and which has not since that time been radically amended.

At present there are pending applications from 21 persons who have to be classified as "alien enemies." These include 26 natives of Germany and 75 natives of Austria or Hungary.

In order to receive favorable action, such applicants must make individual application, through the department of justice, for the "presidential exception."

In numerous instances the man making application for citizenship is a native of a country not at war with the United States, but his wife is a native of Germany, Austria or Hungary, and as conferring citizenship would also bestow this boon upon his wife, the application is held up.

The granting of citizenship to the head of a household also confers citizenship on the wife and all minor children. As a rule, the families of aliens are larger than those of native-born Americans.

The public school system maintains a citizenship school, free of charge, three nights a week, at room 304 in the court house.

These classes meet two nights a week. The average monthly presentations to the court for final citizenship papers is 35. This has so ranged for the past three years, although before the war the number considered this figure.

When the ban on "alien enemies" is raised, it is expected that figures will again show a decided increase.

Region at Quinalt Lake Accessible to Automobile Tourist

Quinalt lake, in the southwest corner of the Olympic national forest, about 45 miles from the Washington coast line, is a beautiful place even for Portlanders.

The Olympic highway, which will eventually encircle Mount Olympus, is being extended west of the lake 5 1/2 miles, including the section with the bridge across the Quinalt river, says Merritt.

Ten miles further up the valley the settlers have cleared out 1 1/2 miles of new road, replaced a section of the river washed out, and the county and the forest service are cooperating to finish the job.

A new trail is being built running 10 miles up Finley ridge. This will be extended north so as to give a good ridge trail connecting the Ince valley with the head waters of the Elwha river, which flows from the Olympic mountains northward to a point near Port Angeles.

The city council has appropriated $500 to four soldiers' organizations to aid in carrying out Memorial day exercises.

Three hundred dollars was allotted to the G. R. 1150, the Spanish-American War Veterans, $50 to the General Compton post No. 22 at St. Johns and $50 to defray expenses of the annual encampment of the Indian War Veterans.

For identification purposes a new check book holds its owner's photograph, certified by his bank, which retains the negative of the picture.

and Western Washington was $8,575,750 feet, which was only 3,852,734 feet, or 44.8 per cent below normal. The mills have been maintaining this high average of production for the last two or three months and have been able thus to restock their yards.

During the week the total volume of new business accepted by the same group of mills was approximately 55,000,000 feet, of which 43,000,000 feet were destined for rail delivery. Rail shipments for the week were 1975 cars, or 57,750,000 feet. Export shipments continue heavy, as they have been in the past few months. The export movement for the week was 5,153,419 feet. Domestic cargo movement was 8,548,000 feet. Shipments of all kinds—export, rail and local—aggregated 78,800,253 feet.

Company to Extend Logging Operations Kelo, Wash., May 15.—The Mountain Timber company is extending its logging operations to the west side of the mill site at Kalama up the Kalama river. Most of the piling in the mammoth trestle are being replaced. The company is also operating its logging camp, and will open operations on a more extensive scale as soon as the trestle repairs are finished.

Victim's Funeral Held Forest Grove, May 15.—Funeral services for Newton Hoover, a victim of the wreck near Bertha, were held here. The Dilley Artisans had charge. Hoover was 35 years old and a native of Greenville, Washington county. His wife, two children and parents survive.

Car shortage on Southern Pacific lines in Oregon is still at an acute stage and according to operators of mills and camps in Western Oregon, there is no relief in sight in less than 60 days. The C. H. Wheeler camps at Cochrane and Reliance are working with half the normal force and the mills of the Eagle Lumber company at West Timber have been obliged to lay off a large number of operatives.

All rail lines in the Northwest are suffering from a shortage of equipment and the lumber mills still have over 10,000 carloads of unshipped orders on their books, according to the weekly report of the West Coast Lumbermen's association. The aggregate volume of lumber produced at 128 mills contributing to the report for last week in Western Oregon
