

ASKS HIGHWAY COMMISSION TO GIVE BRIDGE PLAN

The county commissioners of Multnomah county will press the point on the state highway commission that in view of the large amount of money which Multnomah county and Portland pay into the state highway funds without getting direct return, the state commission should require its bridge engineering department to do work on making plans and supervising maintenance repairs on the Morrison and Burnside bridges without cost to this county.

The commissioners this forenoon adopted a motion made by Commissioner Holman, requesting the highway commission to so provide the work of bridge engineers, and to let the county board know of its decision within 10 days. The commission to the state board will call special attention to the amount of money contributed to the state road funds by Multnomah county.

At today's meeting of the county commissioners, St. Clare & Hattan presented a communication in which they set forth the fact that they have right eminently qualified engineers in their organization, capable of handling bridge work, and they desired to make a contract with the county to furnish the entire consulting engineering.

Ganong, Resigned, Is Given Check for Full Year's Salary

Joseph H. Ganong, vice president of the Portland Flouring Mills company, who recently tendered his resignation to the company, has been presented with a check reaching the total of a year's salary by Max H. Houser, principal owner of the concern.

Ganong has been with the Portland Flouring Mills for many years, having come to the company as office boy at Oregon City. From this place he worked his way up until he became general manager.

Ill health and a desire for a rest was given by Ganong as reason for his resignation. His successor will be appointed at the annual election next month.

Hungry Thieves Grab Loot From Homes in East Side Districts

Evidently those who prowl in the night are feeling the "pinch" of the high cost of living.

Thieves entered the home of Antonio Craveras, 415 East Forty-third street, early Sunday morning. Immediately found their way to the pantry and removed several cans of corn and beans as well as butter and eatables. The Sherman street neighborhood has been bothered for several weeks by early morning prowlers, according to complaints lodged with the police.

A pair of pipe cutters were taken from the plumbing shop of Guy Hamaker at 332 Union avenue Sunday morning. Entrance was gained by prying open the back window of the shop.

At the age of 18 years she crossed the plains by ox team to Portland with her father, Captain James Turnbull. She was married to William H. Troup in 1854. She is survived by two daughters, Miss Francis Troup of Portland and Mrs. J. P. O'Neill, Camp Custer, Mich., and a son, Captain J. W. Troup, manager of the British Columbia Coast Steamship service at Victoria, B. C. Funeral services were held at 10:30 o'clock today at St. Marks church. Interment was in the Masonic cemetery at Vancouver.

Ad Club Puts Fake Advertising Scheme Out of Commission

In an effort to protect Portlanders and visitors from the advertisements during the conventions in the city this month, the better business bureau of the Portland ad club has started active work with the result that one misrepresentation has been corrected. An advertisement was inserted in a newspaper several days ago calling for the services of 100 men which proved to be only a ruse to obtain money under false pretense.

Upon investigation by the bureau it was discovered that Harry Holland and Phil Rock were representing that they had arranged to put on a theatrical act at The Oaks and also for the Shrine convention committee. They required a deposit of $2.50 for the position. Investigation developed that neither The Oaks nor the Shrine convention had engaged any such performance. Money will be refunded immediately to 14 men who applied for positions, announced C. W. English of the bureau.

Bridge Traffic Rules Held to Be Violated

Declarations were made to the county commissioners today that the city is not undertaking to enforce the new regulations for traffic on the Burnside and Morrison bridges during the rush hours, and it was pointed out that there is also considerable danger in congested conditions created because rules for spacing of vehicles are not closely observed.

RAIN AIDS FARMERS; GARDENERS SMILE TO SEE 'EM GROW

Rain of incalculable benefit to the farming sections of Oregon began early Sunday morning and in 24 hours had registered .83 of an inch at the Portland weather bureau. Indications for its continuance are good, according to District Meteorologist E. L. Wells, who said that it was apparently extending to the dry stretches of the central and eastern portions of the state, which were untouched by the downpour Sunday.

SOUTHERN OREGON SLIGHTED

Southern Oregon did not get so much. Roseburg reporting .08 of an inch. Marshfield had .38. Often it rains at Seaside, when the sun is shining in Portland, but the condition was almost reversed Sunday, as the rain at Seaside did not begin until the afternoon and North Head had only .52 of an inch to report this morning.

John Dodg is spending 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $100 as a result of being reckless driving. She ran down and painfully injured two young girls Saturday evening at Grand avenue and East Morrison street.

COLUMBIA IS RISING

The Columbia is also rising, but it is because of melting snow and not rain. Portland's last heavy rain was on May 17, when .62 of an inch was registered. There have been very light showers since then, but the last drop of precipitation was on May 23, when .04 fell.

The Willamette began rising in its upper reaches as a result of the rain, 1 of a foot being reported at Eugene and 2 at Albany.
