Coliseum, Chicago, June 8. - (U. P.)-Senator Lodge was a picture of coolness and self-possession when he delivered the Republican keynote speech.

Standing directly beneath a big sounding-board, Lodge planted himself solidiy on his feet, scarcely shifting them from beginning to end. His gestures were few but effective. Occa-sionally he raised a hand to emphasize a point or shook an admonishing finger ment defeat the Republican party as he referred to the Democratic adinistration.

Frequently the thumb of his right hand was inserted in his trousers pocket, in which attitude he stood much of the time while holding his anuscript in his left hand. Delegates in the front rows vigorously applauded Lodge's references to the railroad situation and there were cries of "Right" from far back in the throng the four most prominent candidates after the big three—Wood, Lowden and Johnson—have been eliminated. when he said the men who run the railroads should not run the government and declared against government own-BORAH AGAINST COMPROMISE

A challenge against McCamant's vote, coming during the first rollcall, possesses a dramatic element which the delegates may easily seize upon for a demonstration exceeding anything else on the program, involving as it does a principle which John-son has from the first insisted upon son has from the first insisted upon. This is the principle of exact compliance with the primary vote wherever a primary is held. Another member of the delegation it is stated, will rise from his place on the floor and demand that the delegation be polled, if Chairman John L. Rand an nces that a vote has bee cast for anybody except Johnson. Following that is planned the protest

Another way to test the question would be to oppose adoption of the redential committee's report if it favors McCamant, but this idea is un-derstood not to be featured, perhaps cause of the feeling that the convention would pay more attention to Mc-Camant after his vote is actually cast than to a mere declaration as he intends to cast it.
