

DEMOCRATS ELECT DR. HEDLUND FOR COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Dr. Elof T. Hedlund was elected chairman of the Democratic central committee of Multnomah county at the organization meeting held in the Journal building auditorium Thursday evening. The largest attendance for several years jammed the meeting place when the time arrived for retiring County Chairman Gilbert E. Hamaker to call the committee to order.

After the preliminaries had been taken care of by the approval of the credentials of the newly elected precinct committeemen, Dr. Hedlund was placed in nomination by Elton Watkins. It had been generally understood that W. W. Vogler would be chosen as chairman, but it was discovered when the committee met that he was not a member, and as the law requires the chairman to be selected from the list of precinct committeemen, Vogler was eliminated from consideration, and Hedlund's nomination followed.

W. T. Vaughan put Newton McCoy in nomination as an opposing candidate, but McCoy passed the buck to Hamaker by declining the nomination, at the same time putting Hamaker's name before the committee. The latter, however, refused to run, and Hedlund was elected by a unanimous vote, and after Vaughan, who was not a member of the committee but insisted on taking part in its deliberations, had protested against the motion to make the election unanimous.

Dr. C. J. Smith, who holds the position of chairman of the state central committee, was elected as state committeeman from Multnomah county without opposition. Mrs. Gertrude Cox of Hillsdale was elected vice chairman, Walter H. Gleason was chosen as secretary, Mrs. Joseph O'Hara assistant secretary, Mrs. Sara E. Moore treasurer, and Oglesby Young assistant treasurer.

The committee plans to organize a dual organization, under which there will be chosen a precinct committee woman in each precinct of the county, which duplicate organization will have its own chairwoman and subordinate officers.

Gasoline Reports Will Be Rendered

"To feel out the pulse of the committee," according to Mayor Baker's description, the gasoline conservation committee has been asked to meet at the city hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Reports will be called for as to results attained by the committeemen, and statements from the oil companies as to the accumulating gasoline reserve for the convention week are expected.

JIMMY PIPE IS NO PLACE FOR 22 CARTRIDGE

MEDFORD, June 11.—George Grigsby of Central Point this morning filled his pipe from some loose tobacco in his pocket, in which he carried several 22 caliber cartridges, and in so doing unknowingly packed a cartridge in the bowl, business end up. He was smoking a few minutes later when the cartridge exploded, blowing off his hat, scattering the pipe over the village and powder marking his face and forehead.

"Fire, fire," yelled the agitated Grigsby as he fled down the main street.

"Who — who's nominated?" shouted after him Central Pointers, thinking he was excited over the Chicago convention.

SUIT FOR LIBEL AGAINST PAPER IS QUASHED BY COURT

Circuit Judge Belt today threw out of court the libel suit brought against the Oregonian Publishing company by Merrill Hanville, former Astoria school man, on the ground that Hanville had virtually invited publication of an article criticizing him when he induced the paper to publish a statement setting forth his side of an Astoria controversy. The fact that this statement naturally drew out the opposing statement left no ground for Hanville to prosecute his claim, Belt contended.

The trial had been in progress for several days, one feature being the presentation of letters written by Hanville to Miss Lois Ashworth, who had spurned his attentions.

HEARD HIS LOVE STORY

In the closing testimony was a statement by Miss Francine Miller, who was a teacher in Astoria when Hanville was there. She told of his making an appointment to visit her at her home and that he asked her advice on how to proceed to win the favor of Miss Ashworth. She said she advised him to let the young woman alone if his attentions were objectionable. Miss Olga Everett, also a teacher, said she had heard the conversation between Hanville and Miss Miller. "Where were you?" she was asked. "I was behind the bed," she replied. "I and three other persons." She said they had remained there for two and a half hours while Hanville talked of his love for Miss Ashworth. She said they found the situation very amusing and restrained their mirth by using their handkerchiefs.

NO MERIT, SAYS JUDGE

After hearing all the evidence, Judge Belt declared there was no merit in the case and refused to allow it to go to the jury. "This was a libelous article per se, unless it was a business communication," said Belt in dismissing the case, "but the public has a right to know about the men who take and hold public positions, and a newspaper has no greater duty to perform than that of furnishing this information. My belief is that when the plaintiff went to the newspaper and asked for the publication of his story, he made the publishers his agents. Any man who projects his private affairs before the public and gets the worst of it is not entitled to sympathy."

Shriners to Tread Real Sand Brought From Pearl Harbor

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine who tread the symbolical burning sands as neophytes are going to hit the real thing in Portland, and the hitting will be on the first few steps they make after leaving the Union station.

Two hundred and twenty-five tons of the finest whitest sand ever seen in Portland, each handful scintillating with the glistening particles of lime and shell, is being brought in by the steamer West Wind from Honolulu as ballast. It was taken from the beaches about Pearl Harbor, and while not exactly the "burning sands" of the desert to which Shriners are accustomed, it will be realistic enough for the most meticulous of fest wearers.

The sand will be used for ballast on block "V," the square formerly built over with shacks and billboards, just south of the Union station, between the Broadway bridge approach and Sixth street.
