Survivors of Indian Wars To Meet Athletes Top New Bill At "Hip"

By Vella Winciner
THE annual convocation of the Indian War Veterans will be held June 30 in the Pythian temple, 388 Yamhill street. A business session will be called at 10 a. m. The sons and daughters of the veterans will serve a banquet for the veterans, wives and widows at 12 o'clock.

THE Stroller notices

That when the Shriners come to "cross the sands" in Portland they will find a "desert" that blossoms like the rose. That a facelious friend observes that the pilgrim atop the arch at Sixth and Taylor seems to be looking for an oasis.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By Thornton W. Burgess
An honest name is worth far more than all the wealth that one can store. EVERYONE, even Prickly Forky, was on hand to hear more about the Rat family for there wasn't one who wasn't personally acquainted with one or more members of it.

One of these is as honest as Robber is dishonest. He is Trader the Wood Rat.

He lives in old fields, along ditches and hedges, and in similar places where is plenty of cover to hide him from his enemies. He burrows in the ground and usually has a nest of dry grass there, though often in summer his nest is on the surface of the ground. He does not live in and around the homes of men as Robber the Throat Rat does, but he does a great deal of damage by stealing grain in the fields. He eats all kinds of grain, many seeds and meat when he can get it. He is very destructive to eggs and young of ground-nesting birds.

Beloved Tenor Draws Big Audience

JOHN MCCORMACK, America's beloved tenor, sang in The Auditorium Thursday night and his silvery voice won for him bushels of new hearts and made more secure the ones already gained. Persons who thought he wouldn't sing to capacity attendance because he had appeared not long ago in Portland were mistaken. Folks who said "we'll wait until Thursday to get tickets" were forced to be content with seats on the stage and along the sides of The Auditorium, which were thrown open to accommodate hundreds.
