

ELIWELL GAVE OF MEDICAL CARE OF DEATH, SAYS GIRL

Glens Falls, N. Y., June 19.—(I. N. S.)—Florence Ellensson, attractive and smartly dressed young woman employed on the Lake George steamer Horizon at the souvenir counter, today admitted that she knew Joseph Bowne Elwell, murdered turkman, and said he had an appointment to call her on the telephone at his New York home at 8:30 o'clock on the morning he was found with a bullet in his head.

ONLY INDISCRETIONS ARE FOUND AS MURDER CLEWS

New York, June 19.—The perfumed trails in the Elwell murder mystery today had led to nothing more serious than accusations of grave indiscretions by New York police.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

In the week since Joseph Elwell, king of bridge whist players, plunger or piker, butterfly, son vivante, sun-dogger, fox-trotter, yachtman, horseman and alpha of the cabaret constellation, was found in the opal room of his mansion with a 45 bullet through his brain, many beautiful women have trembled in a public display. Some have been pretty frankly exposed in their social status, long surprised by the knowing in New York's night life.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

But the man who killed Elwell still remains free and the smartest brains in the New York homicide bureau have stood off for who would win the case.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

It is now assumed that a man killed Elwell. In the first place it is unlikely that one of the delicate, tendril types that clandestinely frequent his mansion would have lured or could have fired a heavy 45-caliber weapon such as ended his gay life.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

District Attorney Swann has raised the transparent alias of "Miss Wilson" to shield the true name of the young beauty who carefully hid her face behind articles of feminine finery in Elwell's bedroom.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Who is the pretty lady of the pink kimono? When this direct question was put to Assistant District Attorney John Dooling last night, he gave a curt comment before answering: "Why, you know who she is; you have had her picture in the papers and have written columns about her."

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Florence Ellensson's tale is corroborated by sister. New York, June 19.—(I. N. S.)—Despite the denial of official investigators, it was learned here today that Joseph B. Elwell was talking over the telephone to Miss Florence Ellensson at Asbury Park, N. J., a few minutes before he was found dying from an assassin's bullet in his West Seventeenth street home.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

The information was furnished by Miss Peggy Ellensson, a sister of the girl, and was corroborated by her mother.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Both say that Florence left for Lake George on a 9 o'clock train on the morning of the murder and that the expressman was carrying her trunk out the home when she called to him. It was the understanding of Miss Peggy and her mother that Elwell was to meet Florence at Lake George.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

The mystery surrounding Elwell's murder was the subject of a lengthy conference between District Attorney Swann and his aides this afternoon.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Marshall-Wells Building Is Leased For 10-Year-Period

The Marshall-Wells building on Pine street between Fourth and Fifth, which was leased Friday for a ten-year period by E. F. Younger, president of the Security Storage & Transfer company, the total rental contract for being $400,000. The deal was made direct with the Fidelity Investment company, a holding concern for the Marshall-Wells company. The structure is now occupied by the U. S. Army retail store.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Mexicans Will Tax American Oil Wells

Mexico City, June 18.—(U. P.)—The provisional government today sent notice to American owners of oil wells in Mexico that the Mexican treasury will collect a tax of 10 per cent on the product for the months of March and April on the basis of rates fixed by the Carranza government shortly before the advent of the revolutionaries.

MYSTERY HOUSE AND VICTIM

Colonel W. B. Greeley, United States forester, will be in Portland next Friday night. With him will be Congressman Gilbert N. Haugen, chairman of the agricultural appropriations committee of the house.

Greeley and Haugen will leave Saturday morning for an inspection trip of the forest service activities, especially as regards timber sales, reforestation and fire protection. The trip is largely for Haugen's benefit.

The forester and the congressman will be the guests of T. T. Munger, assistant district forester, Friday night. Saturday morning, accompanied by Munger and District Forester George Cecil, they will go over the Columbia river highway, giving special attention to the Larch mountain addition to the Oregon National forest. They will visit the Eagle creek camp grounds, after which they will ferry across the river at Cascade Locks and take the boat to the Larch mountain River Lumber company, timber sales, road construction, fire protection and the work at the Wind River experiment station.

Their itinerary from Wind River takes them to White Salmon, where they will ferry across the river, visiting Baker, Batesville, Whitney and Grant, where they will visit timber sales, logging operations and grazing, returning by trail to the mountain fire lookout. They will go to Baker, where Greeley and Haugen will entrain for Ogden, Utah.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

and the body was thrown into the Willamette river from the Oregon City suspension bridge, according to the startlingly gruesome confession of Moore.

Dubinsky's murder was accomplished at a point on the Oregon City-Portland road designated by Moore as near Clark's Shoddy, 521 Irving street in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

COAST SIGN CRAFT ASSOCIATION OPENS MEETING

The Pacific Coast Sign Craft association opened its second annual convention this morning at the Benson hotel with a reception given to delegates and visitors. About 400 members were present. At noon a luncheon was held in the Crystal room, with George Weber, president of the association, presiding. Mayor George L. Baker, delivered the address of welcome, after which there was an old-fashioned roll call, followed by songs, led by Walter Jenkins. There were several informal talks. Miss Leota Ryan played the piano and Herbert Pohn the violin.

At 3 o'clock the visitors were taken on an inspection trip of sign shops and window displays. At 4:30 p. m. they will visit headquarters of the Portland Sign Craft, where refreshments and an smoker will be served. Tonight while the women visit the Oaks, the men will hold their first business meeting in the Tyrolean room of the Benson. The formation of an international sign craft association will be discussed.

On Sunday the sign painters will spend the morning in the Columbia river highway, leaving the city at 9 a. m., lunching at Eagle creek and inspecting the fish hatchery at Bonville on their return trip.

Their business session will be held Monday morning in the Tyrolean room of the Benson. Monday afternoon the delegates and families will auto ride over the city, visiting Washington park, Court Street, Terwilliger and Skyline boulevards.

A theatre party will be held for the women on Sunday while the men will have a stag banquet and entertainment in the Crystal room of the Benson.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

COAST SIGN CRAFT ASSOCIATION OPENS MEETING

The Pacific Coast Sign Craft association opened its second annual convention this morning at the Benson hotel with a reception given to delegates and visitors. About 400 members were present. At noon a luncheon was held in the Crystal room, with George Weber, president of the association, presiding. Mayor George L. Baker, delivered the address of welcome, after which there was an old-fashioned roll call, followed by songs, led by Walter Jenkins. There were several informal talks. Miss Leota Ryan played the piano and Herbert Pohn the violin.

At 3 o'clock the visitors were taken on an inspection trip of sign shops and window displays. At 4:30 p. m. they will visit headquarters of the Portland Sign Craft, where refreshments and an smoker will be served. Tonight while the women visit the Oaks, the men will hold their first business meeting in the Tyrolean room of the Benson. The formation of an international sign craft association will be discussed.

On Sunday the sign painters will spend the morning in the Columbia river highway, leaving the city at 9 a. m., lunching at Eagle creek and inspecting the fish hatchery at Bonville on their return trip.

Their business session will be held Monday morning in the Tyrolean room of the Benson. Monday afternoon the delegates and families will auto ride over the city, visiting Washington park, Court Street, Terwilliger and Skyline boulevards.

A theatre party will be held for the women on Sunday while the men will have a stag banquet and entertainment in the Crystal room of the Benson.

ELIWELL'S MURDER MYSTERY

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

Clues involving "the man in gray" and other odd angles came to naught in the hands of the police until Miss Bertha Shoddy, 521 Irving street, informed police inspectors that her "friend," Brake, had purchased a car in which he later found blood in the trunk, she reported. It is said, the story told her by Brake.

Both Brake and Moore lived at 216 Folk street, St. Johns, and had been helped each other. Moore said that his last place of employment was at the Western Cooperative building, where he had been employed during the cross-questioning. Brake appeared to be cool, and said that he had given Dubinsky a check for $2500 when he returned from the car in consideration of this amount. Brake said that he had given the check to Dubinsky in Akron, Ohio, and secured the money in Portland Monday morning. Records show that no wire had been sent to the accused's home in Akron, Ohio, for about June 12, the date of the murder.

COAST SIGN CRAFT ASSOCIATION OPENS MEETING

The Pacific Coast Sign Craft association opened its second annual convention this morning at the Benson hotel with a reception given to delegates and visitors. About 400 members were present. At noon a luncheon was held in the Crystal room, with George Weber, president of the association, presiding. Mayor George L. Baker, delivered the address of welcome, after which there was an old-fashioned roll call, followed by songs, led by Walter Jenkins. There were several informal talks. Miss Leota Ryan played the piano and Herbert Pohn the violin.

At 3 o'clock the visitors were taken on an inspection trip of sign shops and window displays. At 4:30 p. m. they will visit headquarters of the Portland Sign Craft, where refreshments and an smoker will be served. Tonight while the women visit the Oaks, the men will hold their first business meeting in the Tyrolean room of the Benson. The formation of an international sign craft association will be discussed.