

Dr. Southwick Makes Several Addresses Here

By Vella Winner

SPONSORED by the Portland Shakespeare study club and a representative of the patron and patroness, Henry Lawrence Southwick, president of the Emerson School of Oratory, was heard in a program of surpassing dramatic and literary interest, June 19, at Multnomah hotel. The affair was a benefit for the woman's club building fund of the University of Oregon, and on this occasion Dr. Southwick read Shakespeare's King Richard III, and in vivid portrayal of this interesting, though diabolical character, deformed of body, possessed of insatiable ambition, but with admirable fighting qualities, Dr. Southwick clearly evidenced the artistry and genius that have placed him in the foremost rank as an interpreter of literature. The speaker was introduced in graceful manner by Mrs. Herbert Garr Reed.

As honor guest of the City club at the noonday luncheon, Hotel Benson, Dr. Southwick again addressed a Portland audience, and this time, under the auspices of the Press club, on behalf of the Service league as one of their series of Americanization programs, he gave his brilliant and masterly lecture, "Some Practical Lessons From the Life of Theodore Roosevelt, American."

Touching upon the talents of Theodore Roosevelt, his rugged honesty, his love for mankind, his magnetism and clean moral character in his position as a self-made man, Dr. Southwick presented his audience with a forceful and memorable picture of this great leader of men and left with his hearers a wonderful message of inspiration and courage. The lecture in point of oratory, use of language, good taste and style of delivery was a masterpiece of scholarly literature and displayed Dr. Southwick's rare charm and varied literary talents. He was graciously introduced by William Wheelwright, who is a warm personal friend of Dr. Southwick and who entertained him during his stay in Portland.

One of the largest and most active Parent-Teacher associations in the city is that of the Woodstock school. Mrs. D. B. Kelly has just been re-elected to the presidency, and next year will be the third year of service as the executive of this organization. The membership now totals 165. During the past year a 15 acre tract near the school was secured for the use of the association for a play park for the children of the school. An emergency room for indisposed teachers or pupils has been fitted up, and many other good things have been accomplished. The officers recently elected were: President, Mrs. Kelly; first vice president, Mrs. James Rice; second vice president, Miss Ethel Smith; secretary, Mrs. T. F. Murray; treasurer, Mrs. A. N. Stanton; auditor, A. J. Priddy.

Frances Jordan and John H. Bagley Jr. will be hostess and host to the Carle Jacobson Musical club at the Jordan residence, 438 East Portland street north, Thursday. The business session, with election of officers and program, will be held in the morning. After the picnic luncheon, the afternoon will be given over to out-of-door sports.

girls' exhibit which was a feature of the industrial parade, Monday, June 14. You were no doubt informed that various clubs of this city entered a protest against this bathing girls' exhibit as a part of the Shriner's convention program. By entering this exhibit in the industrial parade you have ignored the request of hundreds of women of this city. We believe it is the desire of Portland to offer to her visitors only entertainment and amusement of the highest moral status, culture and refinement, and we believe that an advertisement such as you have just offered does not appeal to either through your method of advertising, you have gained more censure than you have won praise for your store. We are deeply interested in the civic welfare of our city, and we are sorry we could not have your cooperation in a matter of such vast importance and at a time when civic pride should be paramount."

Mrs. Mary K. Logan of Tualatin, newly elected state president of the P. E. O. Sisterhood, has been an active member of the organization for 17 years. She is also a talented musician and has been affiliated with club life and musical circles for many years. Mrs. Logan's life is closely connected with the sisterhood, having studied music with the sisterhood, Iowa, in the room where P. E. O. was first organized. For the past two years Mrs. Logan has served as first and second vice-president of the state organization and is also a member of the Eastern Star and the D. A. R.

In 1903 she first became a member of Chapter A, Eureka Springs, Ark., later moving to Fort Morgan, Colo., where she was a charter member of Chapter S. In 1913 Mrs. Logan came to Albany, and organized Chapter O on February 22, 1916, serving as president of the local organization for three years. She is still a member of the Albany chapter, though she expects to affiliate with one of the Portland chapters in the near future.

Mrs. John A. Keating, the new state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has returned from the national conference of the order, full of enthusiasm for the new work she will now begin. She visited many chapters in Washington, D. C., and in Georgia. Her native state, as well as Michigan. She has issued a call for the first board meeting of the fiscal year, when state officers and chapter officers of state committees will be the guests of Yamhill chapter, McMinnville, on Tuesday. A large attendance is expected, as much work of importance must be planned. Mrs. Keating will also give her account of important features, and measures of the national meeting.

The Alameda Park Parent-Teacher association, which has just closed a successful year under the leadership of Mrs. J. H. Gallagher, has elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Mrs. Robert F. Maguire; vice president, Mrs. H. G. Rice; secretary, Mrs. O. W. West; treasurer, Mrs. J. Q. Young. The people of this community, especially the members of the Parent-Teacher association, were consistent and hard workers on behalf of the measure providing for additional school buildings, and they feel much gratified over the success of the measure, which will mean a new schoolhouse for their district.

The Professional Woman's league has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Calvin B. Cady; vice president, Miss Nellie Fox; recording secretary, Miss Winnifred Yeager; corresponding secretary, Miss Edna Groves; treasurer, George N. Woodley; members of the executive board, Miss Anna Arnold and Miss Alice Quist.

Mrs. Fred M. Peters has been re-elected president of the Woodmen Parent-Teacher association. Other officers chosen are: Vice president, Mrs. George Stoner; secretary, Mrs. G. C. Griffith; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Clark.

Girls of Community Service who are interested in the organization of tennis classes are requested to meet at 438 Northwestern bank building, Monday evening at 7:30.

The Housewives' council will meet Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the story hour room of the Central library.

Suffrage Is to Witness Great Step Forward

"WHEN the thirty-sixth state ratifies the federal woman suffrage amendment, we shall see the greatest extension of suffrage that has ever been made at one time by any organized and orderly government," said Mrs. Maud Wood Park of Boston, president of the National League of Women Voters, in the course of her talk given at the tea at the University club Wednesday by the Oregon branch of the league.

"We shall also have given to us—the women of the United States—the greatest opportunity for public service that has ever been granted to the women of any country, because, by the strength of our members, we can, if we are worthy the opportunity, contribute enormously to righteous government in state and nation."

"The league proposes to work directly in the form of citizenship schools to make every woman an intelligent voter. It will work indirectly by spreading knowledge of great lacks in our social structure and by suggestions for improvement."

"The league has no intention of duplicating the work of other organizations or of interfering in any way with that work. Where plans are found to be similar, the league is glad to cooperate with other organizations. If its help is desired or to fill in gaps in places where the work has been undertaken."

"The question is sometimes asked whether the National League of Women Voters is an organization only of women who have been active in the suffrage movement. Of course, it is true that the league was organized by the National American Woman Suffrage association and therefore, as a child of that great and powerful association with 2,500,000 women organized in state branches throughout the country, in a sense, the league inherits its membership. Its loyalty to principle and its social structure and by suggestions for improvement."

"On the other hand, the league already has received considerable additional membership from the group of women who were indifferent or even opposed to suffrage in the past but who, now that the vote is assured, are anxious to do good and intelligent use of their ballots."

"As a matter of fact, the League of Women Voters, as foreseen by Mrs. Catt, is a method by which the women may be educated in the necessary intelligent use of the ballot. It also is a common meeting ground for women of all parties to come together to plan how they shall work for what they want."

"Our first woman's platform is the outcome of that coming together. It is essentially a woman's platform. That is, it includes the subjects on which women, because of their experience as mothers, home-makers and wage-earners, have a distinctive point of view. It should be clearly understood that the planks do not constitute the full legislative program of the league. The six planks are salient points that proper the subjects of national political parties, and all parties will have an equal opportunity given them to endorse our platform."

"Women recognize the opportunity before them and want to make the best use of it for the service of the nation. To this end we seek the help and welcome the cooperation of the men of the country. In an organization that takes no stand on partisan issues, but plans to unite women of all political faiths and of all sections of the country in a sisterhood working together through the vote to further whatever things are pure, whatever things are noble, whatever things are of service to mankind."

Multnomah chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold a special meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Griffith, 865 East Commercial street. Regent Mrs. John A. Keating brings a special message from the national society to all Daughters. Mrs. Pearson, chapter regent, requests a large attendance. Committee chairman and officers meet at 2 p. m. other members at 3 p. m.

The Daughters of Confederacy will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. B. Mackie, Garden Home. The affair will be in the nature of a picnic luncheon followed by the business session at which a full attendance is desired. The train will leave Tenth and Morrison street at 10:35 a. m.

The Business Women's club of Portland will hold its regular weekly luncheon meeting Thursday noon at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Elmer B. Colwell will be the chairman of the day and Miss Elizabeth Dickens will talk on "Suitable Dress for Business Women."

The Aurora Women's club has elected officers as follows for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Aurelia Powers; vice-president, Mrs. Nora Bloomer; secretary, Mrs. Albert Elbert; treasurer, Mrs. B. F. Glosy.

How to Can Without Sugar

[The following article, the second of a series to be published from time to time, was prepared under the direction of Dean A. B. Milam of the Agricultural college, at the request of The Journal.]

By Anna M. Turley

PROPERLY extracted fruit juices contain much of the sugar and the body-building and body-regulating constituents of the whole fruit, as well as much of its flavor and its pectin (jelly-making substance). Hence fruit juices have a real food value. They also furnish an easy and inexpensive means of variety in the daily meals, in both warm and cold weather. Fruit drinks, jellied desserts, pudding sauces, ice creams and ice pops easily made from bottled fruit juices, which may often be extracted from parts of the fruit that would otherwise be discarded.

Fruit juices may be canned and made into jelly later when the price of sugar is not prohibitive in the following manner. Extract and strain the fruit juices exactly as you would in making jelly. The pulp of most fruits will still yield two extractions of jelly-making pectin equal to that of the first extraction. To fruit which is least perfect in shape and extract the juice as for jelly making. This extracted juice is used for cooking the fruit in the can. This method of canning fruit makes use of the natural supply of sugar and does not make it necessary to depend upon the uncertain sugar supply of the future for sweetening.

extracted by the same general process from fruit pulp discarded after making jelly or marmalade.

If desired, add one cupful of sugar for each six cupfuls of fruit juice. In this case be sure to note on the label the proportion of sugar used.

Boil the strained juice for five minutes and pour it into jars or glass bottles that have been sterilized by boiling for 20 minutes. Fill the jars to overflowing. Seal the jars immediately. Stopper the bottles with corks sterilized and dried for shrinkage, and make an air-tight seal by dipping the cork and the lip of the bottle into hot paraffin.

Fruit juices thus preserved may be used for jelly making at a later date, if they contain the necessary pectin and simply add the amount of sugar still lacking, heat the juice, and boil until the jelly test may be obtained.

Juices from pineapples, rhubarb, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, blueberries, currants, cherries, peaches, plums, apples, pears, guineas, grapes (red, white and black) are especially good for drinks, gelatins and frozen desserts.

Any fruit which is sweet enough to be eaten in its raw state without sugar may be canned without sugar in its own juice. This method requires more fruit, but the product is a factory product, which does not need to be sweetened before being used.

To can fruit in its own juice, one should select a third or a half of the fruit which is least perfect in shape and extract the juice as for jelly making. This extracted juice is used for cooking the fruit in the can. This method of canning fruit makes use of the natural supply of sugar and does not make it necessary to depend upon the uncertain sugar supply of the future for sweetening.

The Macabees of Portland tent No. 1 are expecting an interesting meeting Thursday night at Pacific States hall, 168 Alder street. J. W. Sherwood, state commander, will outline the work of the order in Oregon and present plans for the carrying on of a summer campaign.

Eugene—"The High Jinks" picnic of the Elks order, which occupied the landscape and a part of the sky in the vicinity of Coburg bridge Sunday, attracted a crowd of from 1500 to 2000 people, representing all parts of the Willamette valley. The grand barbecue dinner at noon was calculated to amuse an Egyptian mummy. Dancing, with music by the Elks' band, filled up the afternoon and evening.

There will be an open reception and social program given Tuesday evening by Abd-uhl-Ater temple, Dramatic Order Knights of Khrouasan, at the Pythian building, in honor of Honorable H. W. Niece of Baltimore, imperial prince of the order, and his wife. With the imperial prince will be Dr. L. R. Snowden of Peoria, Ill., junior past imperial prince; Gus Meese of Spokane, imperial barban; C. F. Wellend of Dallas, Texas, imperial hawk; and Elmer A. Pitts, past master. Men are often seen within three months of their raising filling each official station in turn up to master."

The Masonic and Eastern Star home at Forest Grove is being built on a tract of 34 acres and is surrounded by a line of young walnut trees planted last February by officers and members of Mount Hood lodge of this city. W. C. Lindsay of Mount Hood lodge reports that the trees are thrifty and promise to be a beautiful frame to the picture of the state home. The building is being delayed by reason of lack of supplies, but it will be, when completed, one of the most substantial, convenient and up-to-date institutions of its kind in the world. The tract as well as the trees were the gift of Mount Hood lodge.

Tacoma Scottish Rite Masons are about to construct a temple at the cost of $350,000. Cincinnati Masons are to construct a Masonic temple to cost $2,000,000, and its plans indicate that it will be the finest edifice of its kind in the world. Birmingham, Ala., has a Masonic temple costing $1,000,000. Portland Masonic bodies will not be in a class by themselves with a million dollar temple facing on West Park and Main.

J. G. Tate, head auditor of the Modern Woodmen of America, has returned to his home in this city after a long visit to California. He helped build up the order in Southern California and left the local camps in excellent working condition. Neighbor Tate got back in time to some of the Shriner and Rose festival festivities.

J. O. Wilson, recently elected as head camp manager by the head camp session of the Woodmen of the World at Yosemite, Cal., is expected back July 11. It is expected that Dr. Wilson will be given him by Multnomah camp, of which he has been clerk for the past 10 years.

H. W. Smith, deputy district manager for the Security Benefit association, has assured State Manager L. M. Thomas that he will have a new council of the order established in Hillsboro next week. The exact date has not yet been set.

Colonel Joseph M. Griffith of Des Moines, Iowa, is said to be the oldest living member of the Masons in the United States. He is 97 years of age and was made a Mason in 1845.

Visiting Steward Of Moose Lodge Enters Business

E. M. FREYERMUTH, well known representative of Portland lodge No. 281, Loyal Order of Moose, has retired from the position of visiting and relief steward and is now engaged in business for himself.

Freyermuth was "lick receiver," investigator of delinquents, correspondent on behalf of the lodge with other lodges in all matters relating to sickness and funerals of their members. He was for a number of years director of the Junior Moose lodge, representing the L. O. O. M., at its meetings and always boosting for the youths. Many a feed and entertainment the young fellows received because of his representations made to the lodge of grown-up Moose.

Freyermuth is one of these fraternalists made so in his heart before ever approaching the door of a lodge. He is a member of Sunnyside lodge, A. F. and A. M.; a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite member of the "Valley of Portland, Oregon," and an active Shriner. His retirement from the work of the Moose lodge is to more closely identify himself with other organizations in the capacity of a lay member. The thousands who know him wish him success in his work.

The river excursion to be given members and friends by Multnomah camp, Woodmen of the World, will require two steamers, the Teal and the Kellogg, to convey the crowd to Government Island, July 5, and there will be something doing every minute from the time the lines are cast off at the Taylor street dock at 8 a. m. until their return at 8 p. m.

At Government Island there will be dancing, races, sports, prizes, barbecue and all manner of fun. Dancing will be conducted on the boats all day, and the ticket entitles the holder to everything free, including the barbecued beef, coffee, cream and sugar.

National Guard Inspection Takes Place on Monday

By Alfred D. Oridge

THIS quarterly muster will be held in the morning at 10 o'clock, and an officer possible is wanted in line. It will be an interesting sight from the balcony of the Armory to witness the different national guard units, come upon the floor and form one organization. The public is invited.

The militia bureau of the United States government has authorized the issuance of ammunition for small arms target practice. The rounds issued range from 150 for long distance target practice to 450 rounds for a qualification course. For each machine gun there will be 10,000 rounds issued. Other special issues are liberally provided for.

The Fifth regiment band is now organized with a number of members ranking as follows: P. M. Hicks, band master; Frank A. Douglas, assistant band master; Thomas A. Willett, sergeant; John W. Homery, sergeant; George D. Ingram, Albert J. Hyde, L. E. Farr, E. H. Wardle, corporals.

Captain L. A. Milner, adjutant of the regiment and commander of headquarters company, has filled his company and only will accept hereafter musicians for the regimental band. The Fifth Infantry Military Band is rapidly getting into shape and now has 29 men on its rolls under Band Master Phil M. Hicks.

Francis J. Clark, sergeant in Company B, Fifth Infantry, has been given honorable discharge because of his entrance into West Point. He is the thirty-seventh member of Company B, counting the old Third Oregon, to be named for West Point or given a commission as an officer.

Adjutant General Colonel George A. White has notified the national guard of Oregon of orders that will allow pay to reserve officers who attend national guard drills.

When William D. Jackson enlisted in Battery A, Oregon field artillery, some years ago, he was glad to be a private, and when it was on the border he was a sergeant. When it went overseas he was a second lieutenant, and when it came back he was a first lieutenant. Lieutenant Jackson was promoted for distinguished conduct in the field and in taking an active part in the reorganization of Battery A under the liberal provisions of the new law providing for the rehabilitation of the National Guard of the U. S. A.

The militia bureau at Washington has shipped to company commanders copies of the new work on "Platoon Training." It gives the latest form of this line of work. In the future platoons will form a more important subdivision of a company than before the big war.

Albert Gullikson, Clifford B. Hill and B. H. Pette, all privates in company E, have been on their own request reassigned to the headquarters company.

Labor Notes

BUILDING upon the Portland Labor temple is actively in progress at Fourth and Jefferson streets, and it will occupy, when completed, a site 100 by 150 feet, four stories in height and costing $300,000. Owing to difficulty in securing delivery of steel, concrete and other materials, the contractors and architects will not promise the completion before January next.

The occupation plan of representation in electing a legislature at W. O. W. temple 128 Eleventh street, Mrs. C. C. Grunden is president-elect and Mrs. O. E. Hibbs financial secretary. An excursion on the boat Swan will be given Monday evening.

Jack Rogan, well known business diplomat of the Seamen's union, is to represent the Oregon State Federation of Labor at Spokane Monday, when the Washington S. F. of A. opens its annual session.

Ed Rosenberg, secretary of the Seamen at San Francisco, and formerly a newspaper writer in this city, paid a flying visit last week to a few friends while en route from Seattle to San Francisco.

The District council of Carpenters has elected B. W. Sieman business agent, C. W. Eaton secretary and J. J. Stout organizer.

A. R. Brown, business agent of the auto-mechanics of Tacoma, spent several days last week studying the operations of the craft in this city.

The Typographical union auxiliary will give a luncheon Thursday afternoon at Ryan station at the home of Mrs. Palmer.

New Fashion

Mobile, Ala., June 26—French heels for milady's dancing pumps have gone up in price, also in height.

Artificial fruits for the adornment of the chapeaux for the fair sex are much sought by men.

Why? Thereby hangs the tale of the latest efforts of whiskey runners to evade the prohibition blockade.

It all became known when a group of loungers in the park became hilarious. Investigation showed that they had two large paper sacks, one filled with metal heels for women's shoes and the other with artificial cherries.

The heels were fully three inches in height and the cherries were large enough to furnish about half a swallow each. Six cherries or one heel—that's how they sold.

Our New Spat Pump

Something besides beautiful lines here. The soft black kid was stretched for 7 days on a last. The suggestion of a spat at the throat was fashioned by one craftsman, stitched on by another, inspected by a third. The covered Louis heel was made one firm piece by a long steel screw, then fastened in place for good by an expert. Skilled hands worked 22 days to endow this dainty Walk-Over pump with something more than just beautiful lines, and it fits feet not easily fitted.
