quarters and roses are received daily from loyal grade teachers of Portland.

DAUGHTER JOYOUS WHEN HER 'DAD' GETS NOMINATION

By William G. Shepherd
San Francisco, July 6.—(I. N. S.)—At 1:30 this morning Mrs. Dan J. Mahoney sat in the convention press stand and saw her father nominated for the presidency, keeping tally with the rest of us.

She is young and pretty, and when the great moment came she was yelling like everyone else. A few moments later she was saying: "Oh, I'm tired, but this is heavenly! I am glad it is over. But we have just started the fight—haven't we? We will not have ears for anything at home now but politics. If women get the vote before election and dad is elected, he'll be the first woman suffrage president of the United States—won't he? We'll be proud of that in our family for generations to come."

"Where's my handbag?" she exclaimed to her smiling husband. "Dan, what did you do with it? Oh, here it is. Well, I haven't had a decent meal for a week, and you, Dan, have been running around so much with politics that I have not had a moment with you. Please take me to a restaurant."

Away they went, and between courses she danced with the merry-makers.

Man Who Tried to Keep Order at S. F. Arrives Exhausted

"Yes, this is Mr. Cantfield, or rather what's left of him," George Cantfield of Spokane, Wash., teased himself back into his chair at the Hotel Portland Monday morning "and ten days of conventioning hasn't left very much," he sighed.

"I have been serving as one of the assistant sergeants at arms in the Democratic convention at San Francisco and my specialty has been convention committee work, as well as officiating during the actual convening of the delegates. I tried to preserve order at most of the big fights down there this year. I was in on the contest of the credentials committee, and acted as peacekeeper during the platform committee meetings."

"I certainly was a strenuous time. When I got through the session Sunday, Mr. Cummings looked at me, and then told me I had better go home and rest. So here I am. I shall probably stay here until the nomination is made."

Titled Bookmaker Recovers Fortune

London, July 6.—(U. P.)—England's first titled bookmaker, Sir Miles Talbot Stapleton, whose fortune was wiped out during the war, has made a profit of nearly $100,000 during the present racing season, according to jockey club gossip. Sir Miles, who served in the infantry during the war, began "making a book" at the beginning of the present season. His success has been phenomenal and he has amassed enough to regain his beautiful country seat, Greys Court, Henley-on-Thames. His wife, Lady Doris Stapleton, holds the distinction of being the first titled Englishwoman to star in a British-made film production.

Fired for Wearing Georgette Waist

Omaha, Neb., July 6.—(I. N. S.)—Following her discharge as elevator operator in the Union Pacific headquarters when she came to work wearing a georgette crepe waist which her employer asserted was "no waist at all," Miss Tillie Hoffman appealed to Mayor Ed Smith in behalf of the working girls of Omaha to officially sanction the waist as hot weather garb. "I don't want to be an elevator operator all my life," she explained, in urging the right of every working girl to wear a georgette crepe creation instead of the regulation white shirtwaist. The mayor, after examining the waist, issued a statement approving it.

A Tube that Holds Air Unfailingly

A good inner tube is something vastly different than a piece of rubber tubing shaped to fit a casing—it is the studied solution of the problem of inflation.

In the manufacture of balloon fabrics we encountered the inflation problem in its most difficult aspects, for balloon gas is much more elusive than air.

The making of a gas-tight balloon-wall required the development of a layer-upon-layer construction so delicate that 32 layers are necessary to spread 4 ounces of rubber on a square yard of fabric.

This layer-upon-layer principle of construction, with its freedom from porosity and imperfections, is embodied in the thick, powerful and elastic Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tube.

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes hold air unfailingly—you can get them, packed in sturdy waterproof bags, from your Goodyear Service Station Dealer.

Their initial cost is no more than the price you are asked for tubes of less merit—why risk costly casings when such sure protection is available?
