Soldier Weds Portland Woman

By Helen B. Hutchison

OF WIDE interest to Portland friends is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Mildred Grindstaff Howard to Captain George Sheppard Clarke, which took place Saturday at 6 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church. The service was read in the presence of immediate family relatives, the Rev. Levi Johnson officiating. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. L. D. Grindstaff, on Portland Heights.

Captain Clarke is stationed at Camp Lewis with the First U. S. infantry. He is a son of Ralph Lincoln Clarke of this city. Captain and Mrs. Clarke will make their home in quarters at Camp Lewis for the present.

A wedding of interest to Portland friends took place in Trinity church, New York city, at noon Saturday, June 26, when Miss Gertrude Wylie of Portland was married to William D. Clark of Stamford, Conn. The Rev J. Wilson Sutton, vicar of Trinity chapel, read the Episcopal marriage service. The bride was becomingly gowned in an Eton suit of white baronette satin, with large white hat trimmed with flowers, and wore a corsage bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. She was given in marriage by her aunt, Mrs. Edwin B. Wadsworth of Brooklyn, N. Y., and attended by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Stamford, Conn. The bride was at one time a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., but for the past 14 years has made her home in Portland with her mother, Mrs. Mary G. Wylie of 865 East Franklin street. The wedding followed a war romance that began in Portland in 1918 while Mr. Clark was stationed at Vancouver barracks. He was graduated from Columbia university and is a fraternity man. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Wadsworth, Miss Lydia Wylie, Mrs. W. S. Wylie, Miss Alice Wylie, Mrs. Louise Stanley, Miss Lillian Stanley, Mrs. Harry Stanley, Little Ruth Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holmes, Mrs. Frank Bracken, Mrs. William Bracken, Mrs. Emma Conrad, Miss Jessie Conrad, all of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Stamford, Conn.; Miss Carin H. Degermark of Portland. Just as the wedding service began, a party of sight-seeing Rotarian delegates representing almost every state in the union, entered the church and remained during the ceremony. The young people will soon be at home to their many friends in Stamford, Conn., where Mr. Clark is in business.

Ashland, July 13. — Word has just reached Ashland of the marriage of Miss Minnie Bernice Jackson and Charles W. Koyl in Portland during Shriners' week. The marriage was solemnized at White Temple, in the presence of the immediate families, after which a dinner was served at the Portland hotel. The bride is one of Ashland's most popular girls and the bridegroom is an ex-service man and general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Payette, Idaho, in which city the young couple will make their home.

An interesting visitor in the city was Miss Mary E. De Venny of Taunton, Mass., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Donaldson for the past week. Miss De Venny was a member of the staff of the city hall employes at Taunton for nine years and is touring the West for a few months. She left Friday for California and will visit in New Mexico on her way home.

THE Stroller notices

THAT the best part of vacation time to some girls and young women seems to be that it gives them opportunity to dress up in men's clothes.

That some of them look real chic in khaki shirts and riding breeches.

That others make themselves ridiculous by doiling all up in hiking and camping outfits and then spoiling the effect by wearing French heeled shoes.

That you can't beat it.

That there are still a few Shriner "headquarters" signs decorating "automobile row."

That it may be that automobile dealers are so worried about the gasoline shortage that they can't think of anything else.

That a gentleman flattered us yesterday by trying to interest us in a security investment proposition.

That you can't squeeze blood from a turnip.

The Little Titian Says

That the young woman next door isn't used to staying alone yet because she has been married only two weeks.

Six Little Calves in a Dirty Wet Shed, Yo Ho, and a Bottle of Milk

Portland, July 12.

To The Oregon Journal:

Sir: If the Stroller should stroll over on Hawthorne avenue, and turn up Forty-third street south, I think he would observe a good case for the humane society. Six little calves in a dirty wet shed, and the sun hasn't shone on them for a month.

Subscriber.

Dear Sub:

We haven't had opportunity to stroll out quite to Forty-third this week, but we're sure that no sooner will Mrs. Frank Swanton or some other good person interested in animal welfare see this than she will be on the job directly, and soon have the unsatisfactory condition cleared up.

If it isn't, please let us know and we'll start something ourselves. Thank you for your interest.

Girl Pickets on Duty at J. & V. 'Movie' Theatres

Girl pickets in front of the Liberty and Majestic theatres, and the presence at each of the Jensen & Von Herberg houses of a policeman at the outer gate, add a little zest to the sympathetic strike of motion picture machine operators, musicians and stage hands directed against J. & V. theatres in Portland. The men are out in sympathy with strikers in Tacoma who are asking a raise of from 85 cents to $1.25 an hour.

Local managers say the pickets are not keeping any business out of the theatres.

Bootlegger Is Jailed

Kelso, Wash., July 13.—Lloyd Fisher of Toutle was fined $250 and sentenced to 10 days in jail for bootlegging at Castlerock.

Educators to Stress Three Topics

By Vella Winner

"THE three big general topics that will be stressed during the coming year by the National Education association are: School revenue, teacher shortage and public health," said Mrs. George W. McMath, president of the patron's department of the N. E. A., who returned Friday from Salt Lake, where she attended the annual convention.

"School revenue and teacher shortage are so inter-related and so vital to the future of the public school system of this country that the patron's department will focus its attention upon them. As has already been published, the entire N. E. A. will be organized during the coming year on a representative basis and I have already wired Mr. Hunter, the new president of the association, for suggestions for reorganizing the department on the same basis. In a general way I know that each state will be asked to take up the work by appointing representatives from the various state bodies which are either directly or indirectly interested in the work at hand. The board of directors of the patron's department consists of representatives of the General Federation of Women's clubs, the National Congress of Mothers, the National Council of Jewish Women and kindred bodies. Our aim through the state organization will be to arouse an interest in the shortage of teachers and connect it up with the lack of revenue; for that is the largest single factor in the shortage. Housing conditions and social conditions in rural communities are other elements entering into the shortage problem. Dr. Margaret McNaught of Sacramento, supervisor of elementary education for California, will be one of the prominent workers of the department in this matter.

"The patron's department has had the rare good fortune to have during the past year among its distinguished members Sally Lucas Jean and Dr. Thomas D. Wood of New York, experts in matters of public health, and they will continue to be prominent in our health work. Miss Jean made one of the most inspiring addresses at the patron's section, stressing the point that health is not successfully taught by the old negative method; that is, the lesson is not so successfully driven home by telling a child that he must not eat pie because it will make him sick, as by telling him to eat carrots because they will make him well and strong. Health education is being carried on successfully in New York by means of little plays in which good health, happiness, cleanliness and other elements in the matter of personal hygiene and health are impersonated by real live people. A sample of one of these plays was given at one of the sessions of the N. E. A. and proved most impressive even upon the adults.

Mrs. McMath was appointed by Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston to fill out an unexpired term as president of the patron's department a few weeks ago. At the regular election Mrs. McMath was elected the head of the department for the ensuing year.

Miss Cornelia Marvin, state librarian, has shipped 500 books from Salem and is setting up a model library at the Gladstone Park Chautauqua, where all the thousands that throng that annual assembly may become familiar with their own state library. Many people are not yet aware that any time any book in desired it can be obtained from the state library by the simple process of paying the postage. Miss Marvin will also lecture July 14 at 5 p. m. on her recent trip to the Orient, when she explored libraries at every port she touched from Honolulu to Hongkong. Not only will Miss Marvin conduct a model library at the Chautauqua, but Miss Kostomiatsky, acting head of the Portland public library, will have a library exhibit of posters, placards and other advertising paraphernalia, and will lecture on "How to Advertise a Library." Miss Kostomiatsky is a convincing talker. On the same program Miss Jessie Millard, the children's librarian, will tell a tale of "The Story Hour."

Wednesday will be Parent-Teacher day at the Gladstone Chautauqua. Dr. Ralph P. Boas of Reed college will speak on some phase of Americanization and there will be other interesting features. A basket luncheon will be served at noon. July 21 the Parent-Teachers will be in charge of the 5 o'clock session at which time Frences Hays will present some national phases of the Parent-Teacher work and Mrs. Helen Ekin Starrett will speak on "A Message from the East to the West." The sessions will be presided over by Mrs. C. W. Hayhurst, president of the State Parent-Teacher association.

Mrs. Charles E. Runyon, president of the Portland Woman's club entertained the directors of the club with a delightful buffet luncheon Monday afternoon. The rooms were charming in their decorations of sweet peas, Dorothy Perkins roses and delicate greenery. Covers were placed for Mrs. Frank M. Taylor, Mrs. F. C. Whitten, Mrs. J. C. Bryant, Mrs. G. M. Glines, Mrs. G. H. Pettinger, Mrs. G. B. McLeod, Mrs. D. L. Pover, Mrs. A. L. Jackson, Mrs. U. G. Smith, Mrs. W. S. Hufford, Mrs. C. W. Hopking, Miss Vella Winner and the hostess. Following the luncheon the regular meeting of the board was held at which time Mrs. Runyon outlined the program which the club will present at federation day, Saturday, July 17, at the Chautauqua. Plans were also made for the presentation of an eminent Eastern lecturer in a series of lectures next winter.

WILLIAM FARNUM, well known screen actor, who is featured at the Liberty this week in his newest photodrama, "The Orphan."

FRATERNAL

Laurelhurst lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood met in Orient hall, East Sixth and East Alder streets, Saturday evening and after receiving a class of seven members, a social program was given to members and visitors. The juvenile group gave an interesting program of songs, fancy dances and recitations. A banquet closed the enjoyable gathering. Laurelhurst was the guest of Oregon City branch on July 2 and officers were installed by M. M. Houghton, district deputy, after which refreshments were served.

Members of the Woodmen of the World will be guests of Portland camp No. 107, Wednesday evening, at 128 Eleventh street, upon the occasion of the joint installation of officers of Webfoot, Multnomah, Portland, Prospect, Rose City, St. Johns, George Washington and Arleta camps. W. W. Garrow, past consul commander of Portland camp, will act as installing officer. Captain J. R. Gladwin will command the Portland camp degree team. Following the ceremony the 10 delegates from Portland at the head camp session last month in the Yosemite valley will report. Head Camp Manager J. O. Wilson, Merman Schada, and other prominent members of the order will speak.

A ventilated spark plug is provided with a ball check valve through which air is drawn to keep the center electrode free from carbon and oil.

Jerry Muskrat Explains

By Thornton W. Burgess

Little things that go unheeded
Often are the things most needed.
Peter Rabbit.

THE big things of life are important. Of course. Everybody knows that. But queer as it may seem, the little things of life often are even more important, for without them the big things of life cannot be secured. The trouble is that folks are apt not to heed the little things. Just take the case of Old Man Coyote and Peter Rabbit. Old Man Coyote was sure that he had Peter trapped in the home of Jerry Muskrat. He was sure that the only way Peter could get out was by the way he went in. So he hid near that hole to wait for Peter to come out and in his mind there wasn't a doubt that he would have that postponed Rabbit dinner. He had overlooked a matter which, in itself, seemed a mere trifle and unimportant. He had failed to notice how very low the Laughing Brook was.

So far as that was concerned Peter Rabbit himself had been quite as heedless. But for Jerry Muskrat he would have been trapped just as Old Man Coyote had thought he was. Jerry had led him down a long hall and out on the very edge of the Laughing Brook and then up along the edge of the Laughing Brook far enough away from where Old Man Coyote was hiding for them to feel quite safe. There they sat down to talk it over. Even then Peter didn't understand it.

"I'm ever and ever so thankful to you, Jerry," said he. "But for you I would still be a prisoner. I always supposed the doorways to your home were under water and I wouldn't have thought of even trying to get out that way. When did you make those doorways just above the water?"

Jerry chuckled. "I didn't make them above water," said he. "I made them under water. But the Laughing Brook played a trick on me. Fortunately I have that house out in the Smiling Pool, so it didn't matter. I gave up using that house in the bank. But the trick the Laughing Brook played me was a good thing for you, Peter, a mighty good thing for you."

Peter wrinkled his brows and scratched a long ear with a long hind-foot. He was puzzled. "What was the trick the Laughing Brook played on you?" he asked finally.

Again Jerry Muskrat chuckled. "Look at it, Peter," said he. "Just look at it."

Peter stared at the Laughing Brook. "Well," said he, a wee bit crossly, "I don't see anything queer about the Laughing Brook. There isn't as much water in it as there is sometimes. That's all the difference I see."

"And that has made all the difference in the world to you, Peter," retorted Jerry Muskrat. "You know what a long time it has been since we have had a good rain. The Laughing Brook has been growing smaller and smaller. I've watched it getting lower and lower between its banks. Yesterday it got so low that those doorways of mine, which had been under water, were no longer under water, so that any one looking for them could find them. That house of mine was no longer safe for me. But you never once thought of that. Neither did Old Man Coyote, which you ought to be thankful for. He knows that those doorways always have been under water, and he didn't stop to think that with the Laughing Brook as low as it now is they would be above water. So there he is back there watching for you and here you are safe and sound and free.

"I'm ever and ever thankful to you, Jerry," said he.

"I didn't know you were in my house. I went over there just to see that everything was all right. It is a lucky thing for you I did. My, but this is a joke on Old Man Coyote! I wonder how long he will wait for you." Jerry began to chuckle again and Peter chuckled with him. It certainly was a joke, a great joke.
