ALLIED COAL ULTIMATUM IS ACCEPTED

German Delegation Gives in to Demands After Four-Hour Session and After Serious Deadlock Had Threatened Hearing.

Spa, July 15.—(I. N. S.)—The German delegation signed the allied coal ultimatum at 8:45 tonight after having been in session with the allied statesmen for more than four hours. A serious deadlock developed early in the evening, but the Germans suddenly collapsed in their opposition to the allied terms.

By Newton C. Parks Spa, Belgium, July 16.—(I. N. S.)—New counter proposals dealing with the delivery of coal by Germany to the allies were presented to the allied statesmen by the German delegation early today.

After the meeting of allied premiers broke up it was announced that the new German counter plan had been refused. A fresh proposal providing for the acceptance of German coal at the German market price was then presented to the Germans. The allied statesmen were said to be in complete agreement that the military occupation of Germany would be extended to the Ruhr basin if Germany delivers less than 6,000,000 tons of coal before November 1. Premier Delacour of Belgium said that Germany must give a final decision before the day is over.

Confusion and some mystery have surrounded the coal discussions since Wednesday night when it was reported that the Germans, under threat of an allied ultimatum, decided to accept the allied terms providing for the delivery of 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly. The allied ultimatum was said to have threatened the occupation of the Ruhr district unless the Germans accepted the allied terms by noon Thursday. The Germans, in the meantime, made a counter offer to the allies accepting the allied terms under certain conditions. It was declared last night that the Germans had again been given an extension of time until noon today to accept the allied terms. The fate of the German conditions was not made plain. Then followed the latest development—the new counter offer by the Germans early today. There are indications that discussions have developed in the German delegation over the allied coal protocol, which may have influenced the allies granting the Germans more time for discussion among themselves.

GERMANS PROPOSE COUNTER OFFER: LIMIT IS UP TODAY

Spa, July 16.—The new German proposals to settle the question of delivery of coal to the allies, received by the premiers at Thursday's meeting as an answer to the allies' ultimatum, are hedged with conditions. She proposed to furnish 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly as against the 4,000,000 which the allies had demanded, but in order to obtain this amount, the Germans insist that a mixed commission (Concluded on Page Four, Column Two)

Despite Dead Calm Air Handicap Journal Seaplane Makes Delivery

Seaside readers of The Journal had their copies of the first afternoon edition Thursday at 4 p. m. as a result of The Journal's seaplane express delivery system. Despite delays in starting from Lewis and Clark field, the papers were at the beach hours before copies of other afternoon papers had been dispatched to the coast. A dead calm prevailed over the river.

There May Be Slighton Between Cup and Lipton, Ring Declares

By Ring W. Lardner New York, July 16.—The first heat went to the Shamrock, but they're many a slighton between the cup and the Lipton. I didn't know if that gag's been used before, but it's my own idea. As I couldn't stand the excitement of continuously watching the two catboats as they sped forwards in the teeth of a 3-mile calm I happened to be down in L. T. Annotyn's room when the Resolute done a Willard.

Word was rushed in that the rest of the race would be a monotonous, as the Resolute's sails had flopped and I couldn't help from feeling sorry for her as I went to an evening dress suit dance one night and broke a suspender.

I went out on the porch and asked one of the newspaper boys how it could have happened and he said she had broke a gaff, you know how a woman feels these days when she breaks a gaff at the present price of gaffs but anyway I went and seen Captain Norton of our destroyer that use to play football at the navy in Annapolis and made all American but treated us fine and he said he didn't think it was a broken gaff but he thought it was a broken throat halyard and may be she had died of tonsillitis. Well I would be satisfied with the broken throat diagnosis only Lieut. Comdr. Douse he thought it was a combination of broken gaff jaw and a busted spinnaker. Personally I come to the conclusion that I might as well use my own judgment as I once rowed a row boat out on lake Michigan. So I borrowed a pair of opera glasses off of (Concluded on Page Two, Column Three)

TEAL WARNS OF SHARP ADVANCES

J. N. Teal warned Portland business men to prepare for sharp advances in both freight and passenger rates in an exhaustive discussion before the Portland Traffic and Transportation association Thursday evening, of what he termed the "billion dollar rate" hearing before the interstate commerce commission.

Teal has just returned from Washington, where he attended this hearing, representing Northwestern lumber interests, some of the California lumber manufacturers and the general interests of the city of Portland. The railroads ask for an increase in net revenue of $1,917,778,995, of which amount $352,893,265 is sought from the western group of carriers. He suggested that the Columbia basin rate decision will be deferred by the commerce commission until it has passed upon the general application for increase. That large increases in rates, especially on the percentage basis proposed, would have the effect of stimulating plans for increased use of water transportation between the two coasts, was another of the rate expert's suggestions.

He was frank to declare that the future operation of the railroads of the nation is at stake in the issue and he urged that shippers, transportation men and the public generally cooperate in the fullest possible measure in order to counteract the proposed rate increases. ACREAGE IS LACKING, BUT CROPS ARE FINE

Total Wheat Production Will Go Below 1919, but Acre for Acre Yield Will Be Recorded as Most Remarkable in Years.

NORTHWEST GRAIN CROP ESTIMATE - Bushels

	Wheat	Oats	Barley
Or.	21,452,000	8,000,000	2,913,000
Wash.	24,312,000	6,000,000	3,900,000
Idaho	14,715,000	6,000,000	2,785,000
1919	70,580,000	19,000,000	7,750,000
1920	80,425,000	24,100,000	10,800,000
1918	58,000,000	25,401,000	12,250,000

By Hyman H. Cohen Oregon, Washington and Idaho's 1920 wheat crop will not show the greatest total production that the three Pacific Northwest states have ever produced, but it is a very good year will go down into wheat prop history as one of the most remarkable that the Pacific Northwest has ever produced.

It has been a remarkable crop in every particular. Facing the most acute shortage of sown acre as compared with the previous year, the three states have ever known, there was in sight up to very short time ago prospects for the greatest total production.

For 1920 the present prospect is for a crop of at least 70,000,000 bushels, of which the three states as compared with 80,425,000 bushels a year ago. First glance at these figures would indicate that the season has not been nearly as good as initial remarks would indicate but that is not actually the case. Fact of the matter is that the 1920 wheat crop of the Pacific Northwest has faced most unusual conditions. Owing to war conditions it was absolutely necessary that a large percentage of the previous acreage be eliminated this season. In other words much area in summer-fallow. The planting with its serious decrease was the first adverse condition. Then followed extremely dry weather for a long period which compelled growers in many sections to put their seed in dust with the consequent rapid growing of mustard and other weeds.

Then followed very severe weather conditions, the cold being so intense in leading producing centers that fears were expressed that the greater bulk of the area must be replanted. This cold weather extended so long that the crops clearly showed its effect by turning yellow. Real growing weather appeared late in the spring and this was continued until the end. It was the very liberal precipitation in most of the districts that gave to the Pacific Northwest the excellent prospects recently shown. Had it not been for these timely showers there is not the slightest doubt but that (Concluded on Page Sixteen, Column One)

POLISH COUNCIL TO ACCEPT ARMISTICE

Paris Gets Glimpse Of Mary and Doug.

Paris, July 16.—(U. P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks arrived here practically unnoticed today. News of their arrival spread, and in a few moments a crowd had collected in front of the hotel, seeking a glimpse of the screen stars.

Thursday and several pilots of the Oregon, Washington & Idaho Airplane company started out with the papers, but were unable to get into the air. It finally remained for Captain F. E. Harding to take the F-boat and set forth. He finally got started at 2:15 and at 3:40 was running through fog at the river's mouth, landed in the Nocomium. Captain Harding returned from the coast with a passenger, leaving up at 5:30. For almost 2 1/2 hours he sailed around in the fog off the mouth of the river but finally emerged over Astoria and had clear sailing on through to Portland, reaching the landing basin at 7 o'clock. In reporting the criticism pilots make of the manner Thursday, the name of The Dalles was prominently mentioned in The Journal Thursday. The city where Pilot Archie Roth had trouble in rising from the ground was Pendleton. Roth damaged his plane while trying to get away from a field 2 1/2 miles from Pendleton, the nearest available flying to the city. Although The Dalles can be reached by hydroplane, it has no landing field.

SHAMROCK WINS BUT LACKS SPEED

When Green Boat Glides Smoothly Over Line and Catches Up and Slides by Resolute, Sea Writer Says, 'There Goes Cup.'

(Here is James B. Connolly's story of the first day out on the race course just off New York, where the two great yachts fought their first engagement. It gets down to the real spirit behind the race contest and it is written in the famous virile style of American sportsmen. It tells you what you want to know about the race—but it also gives you the picture from the stand-point of a man who knows and loves the sea and who knows and loves all ships, from little dingies, trail boats, merrims, such as Resolute and Shamrock, to the great liners plowing their way past the sporting event, bound for ports across the sea.)

By James B. Connolly (Copyright, 1920) New York, July 16.—The government requirement of lifebelts, lifeboats and rafts for passengers may have held some craft in the harbor Thursday, and the crew of who followed the race took notice of it.

They seemed to be all there—the good old harbor steamers with their stinging lead topsides, the ocean steamers, the big steam yachts, the little steam yachts, the sailing craft of the kind you see anchored off Bar Harbor, and the other kind that you wonder why they ever left their little old moorings to come across the water.

SCARES ONLOOKERS

The war craft there, the destroyers and revenue cutters, as of old, and the sub-chasers—these last making their first appearance on any race course—did not seem to be of the same sort to whistle while the two yachts were crossing between the yellow lightship and the black official tug. There was the usual fiddling around, tacking back and forth to get advantage of position, no doubt; but they both seemed to go over the line when the time came. Much to her own satisfaction, the Resolute crossed first, taking the southwestern breeze, such breeze as there was. The Shamrock may have been a half behind, seeming to be in no great hurry before crossing, but looking to the important business of the race she got over the line right after the Resolute, caught up with her, slid by, and kept sliding by, and most of us looking on did not like it at all. More than one, watching her in that first 20 minutes, said: "There goes the cup!"

HIDDEN IN DRIZZLE

She was to the leeward of the green boat, all this time, and kept working to leeward, but she was sailing with so much more of a full that it looked as though she were going to leeward, so that they got over the water. Then came big blobs of rain, and a drizzle which hid them both from us. From our distance we could see the Shamrock dimly, the Resolute not at all in the drizzle, and thought of nothing but how far ahead the green lady would be when she got over the water.

BUT PRESENT AT G. VON HERBERG

Seattle, Wash., July 16.—(I. N. S.)—John C. Von Herberg, treasurer of the Greater Theatre company, owning and operating a string of moving picture houses in Seattle, Portland and other Northwest cities, was fired on while in front of the Liberty theatre here today.

Girl 15 Years Old Drowned in Creek While in Swimming

Albany, Or., July 15.—Vivian Griffin, 15-year-old Thomas girl and daughter of Mrs. Henry Preever, was drowned Thursday in Thomas creek while swimming in company with her sister. The sister summoned help and the body was recovered three quarters of an hour after the girl had uttered her first screams for help. The drowning occurred at a point nearly a mile above where Thomas creek enters the Santiam river, eight miles from Albany. A physician from Seilo rushed to the scene and futilely applied first aid. He took the body to Albany, where a pulmoner was used without result.

LUCKY BOARD ENDS WOMAN FULLY SANE

Mrs. A. A. Mathus, Charged With Assault and Battery on Children, Declared Competent by Doctors; Aid Offered Babies.

Two offers of assistance reached the Oregon Humane society before 9 o'clock Friday morning for little Edna and Verna Felton Ross, rescued from the home of Mrs. A. A. Mathus Thursday, after having been beaten black and blue. The little boy, Ernest White, was taken in charge by his grandmother, Mrs. J. T. Friel, Thursday.

A lunacy commission composed of Dr. Sarah Whiteside and Dr. S. E. Joseph Friday found Mrs. Mathus perfectly sane. One woman telephoned the humane society early Friday, offering to take both the Ross children into her home and also to take the mother into her business and thus help her financially to support the babies. Mrs. Ross had placed the children in charge of Mrs. Mathus while she tried to obtain employment in a department store.

Another woman offered to take the youngest baby into her home and not adopt her, but care for her and give her a home until the mother is able to care for her. Ernest White was to have been removed from the Matthews' home within a few days. The mother, who is attending business college, had placed the child in the home so that he might be near his mother. The Matthews place a week ago convinced her, however, that he should be removed, and she wrote her mother who arrived in the city Thursday for the express purpose of taking the baby home with her.

MURDER CHARGES FACING WOMAN

Corvallis, July 16.—Frank E. Selts, Alaska crammer, station manager, who was shot Wednesday by Mrs. Zina Peters, died Thursday afternoon at his home in Alaska. The bullet penetrated his abdomen. Mrs. Peters faces a charge of murder. She is calm and apparently without regret. Jealousy of another woman and failure of Selts to marry her caused the tragedy, Mrs. Peters asserts. Mrs. Peters told District Attorney Arthur Clarke that after she shot Selts he seized the revolver and walked away, but fell after a few steps. She said she ran away, but was suspected because she had borrowed from Deputy Sheriff Shough the revolver with which Selts was shot. She was arrested three miles from Aisea. That she intended to commit suicide was Mrs. Peters' statement, being prevented because Selts took the revolver from her. Selts and Mrs. Peters were childhood friends. He was 42 years old and single. Mrs. Peters is 40 years old and has three daughters, the youngest 13 years old.

Cox, Democratic nominee for the presidency, will arrive in Washington at 1:20 Saturday afternoon for his conference with President Wilson at the White House Sunday morning. The candidate will be accompanied by George White of Ohio, one of his campaign managers, and will be the guest of James C. Cox, Democratic nominee for the presidency. Poling of Oregon May Be Nominee On Dry Ticket For Presidency

William Jennings Bryan is to be drafted as a presidential candidate by the Prohibition party at its national convention to be held at Lincoln, Neb., July 21, 22 and 23, if he will consent to being made the nominee. Should Bryan refuse to take the leadership it is expected that Dan Poling, born in Oregon and now for some time the acting president of the World's Christian Endeavor with headquarters at Boston, will be given the nomination.

The leaders of the Prohibition party are dissatisfied both with the platform and with the nominees of the two major parties. They had planned to endorse the platform and the candidacy of either the one or the other of those parties in the event that a dry plank and a dry candidate had been put up at Chicago or at San Francisco. But both conventions passed that question by, and as a result the Prohibitionists have called their convention to meet at Lincoln, nominate a presidential and vice presidential candidate, adopt a platform pointing to the crisis which they say now confronts the home dry cause and again go forth to give battle to the friends and sympathizers of the Demon Rum when they may be found or suspected to be.

Oregon will send two delegates to the Lincoln meeting, Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh and the Rev. Hiram Gould, pastor of the Montaville Methodist church. The two delegates will leave Saturday night for the convention city. In addition Dr. Clarence Trus Wilson will be at the convention and will have a seat there as an Oregon delegate. The state committee under date of July 12 sent out a call for funds to aid in financing the Oregon delegates to the convention. The call was modest in the minimum needed at $300, but it handed a wallop both to the Republican and to the Democratic candidates for the presidency.

The call said that Senator Harding seemed an unknown quantity and an acknowledged owner of brewery stock, while Governor Cox, it said, was "a notorious wet sympathizer." Both candidates were attacked by conventions that spurned urgent appeals to endorse the cause of prohibition. "This set of facts, the call sets out, has caused a general feeling of uneasiness among our best citizens are practically disfranchised and without opportunity to express their convictions or support a satisfactory candidate in the coming election."

TRAFFIC DEMORALIZED

Several downtown buildings suffered damage to cornices and mortar work. The industrial district of the city seemed to feel the temblors with greater intensity. It was reported that several persons from that section said that almost every window in that district is shattered. A stone pedestal was hurled from the top of the county courthouse and plunged through the balcony below where a number of persons were assembled, but none was injured. A number of cracks in the courthouse caused by other temblors were split wide open.

TEMBLORS APPEAR LOCAL

According to the best survey possible at this time the later temblors appeared again to be local. The building occupied by the Zellerbach Paper company caught on fire, but was not seriously damaged. This was the source of the first fire alarm. The water supply in several buildings is reported to have failed. Early reports indicate damage from the two shocks this afternoon was possibly more serious than from the shock this morning. The front of a jewelry store and pawnshop on Broadway collapsed. Reports to police headquarters already have detailed several instances where brick were shaken from cornices and ledges of buildings. No instances of buildings collapsing have been found, although many, including the old courthouse and the city jail, have suffered heavily from plaster being shaken off the walls. Some rooms in the courthouse are said to be nearly devoid of plaster.

WAXY LEG CRUSHED

The last quakes injured at least one man whose leg was crushed by bricks falling from a building near Second and Hill streets. He is in the receiving hospital as yet unidentified. Telephone service again is uncertain but indications are that the quakes this afternoon were felt only slightly beyond the limits of this morning's shake.

MAY YOHE RELATES HOPE DIAMOND CURSE

Through marriage a poor American girl found herself a member of the British titled aristocracy, with all the future seemed promise—wealth, title, social position, castles, estates, jewels—she became a princess. Her life and influence that ruined everything. "Was it the 'curse' of the great, the famous, the malevolent Hope diamond? Can a gem, an insignificant object, a 1.560-carat, a curse, or a human life? Our intelligence tells us "No." May Yohe's intelligence told her "No," she writes in the accompanying article in the story and of the Hope diamond, in next Sunday's Journal Magazine, "and yet, in the years I have pondered this strange question, something within me always stirs me to think that there may be veiled forces at work which we do not understand and which influence our lives." May Yohe, once an international celebrity, is well known locally, having lived in Portland for some years not so very long ago, and on Sunday July 25, The Journal Magazine feature of "The Hope Diamond Mystery" will be accompanied by an illustrated article on the Portland angle of Miss Yohe's story.

BUSINESS HALTS AS SOUTHERN CITY IS ROCKED BY TEMBLORS

Water Mains Are Damaged; Small Fires Menace Community; All Places of Industry Are Emptied of Employees; Thousands Go From Heart of City to Parks and Open Spaces; No Buildings, So Far as Known, Give Way; Falling Brick and Glass Injure.

Los Angeles, July 16.—(I. N. S.)—Damage to water mains, not regarded as grave, and damage from two small fires, with four persons injured, industrial houses closing business to allow women employees to go to their homes until Monday, and general demoralization of business are the results in Los Angeles today of three severe earthquake shocks which rocked the city at 10:08, 1:27 and 1:29 o'clock. Nearly every business building in the city is empty this afternoon. People poured into the streets by thousands and made for open places. Pershing square, a downtown park in the heart of the city, is a milling mass of humanity, harboring thousands who rush there to seek shelter from possible falling debris.

However, as far as can be learned, not a single building in the city gave way under the shocks and the damage, unless that to the water mains proves more serious than present indications show, appear to have been chiefly superficial and of a minor degree. The emergency hospital began receiving calls for the ambulance shortly after the second and third quakes subsided. Four more persons, making a total of eight injured thus far, were brought to the hospital suffering from minor cuts and bruises sustained from falling brick and glass.

FOUR ARE INJURED WHEN FIRST SHOCK HITS CITY

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—(I. N. S.)—Four persons are known to have been injured, with several others unreported, and considerable minor damage was done to property here, as the result of a severe earthquake which rocked Los Angeles about 10:08 a. m. today. The injured are: Kathryn Varnados, 11 years old, was struck on the head by a small piece of brick which fell from a roof gutter. A three inch laceration. Mrs. Emma Ryan, aged 45; lacerations, fainted and fell on broken glass. Mrs. Pauline Ficks, 25, of San Diego; sprained left ankle, falling down a small flight of stairs while running from the house. Mrs. Nettie Snyder, treated for bruises and hysteria; hit by falling brick.

OREGON MAINS IN DISCUS THROW

Harvard Stadium, Soldiers' Field, Cambridge, Mass., July 15.—(U. Bartlett of the University of Oregon won the discus throw with a heave of 136 feet 1/4 inch, breaking the previous record of 128 feet 3 inches made in 1913 by A. W. Kohler of the University of Michigan. R. G. Walker, New York Athletic club, finished second with 113 feet 7 1/2 inches.
