

ALCOHOLISM HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH OF WOMAN

Seattle, Wash., July 16.—Mrs. Clementine Cash, whose body was found in a hotel here, died as a result of alcoholism, is the conclusion reached by the coroner here today after receiving a partial report on a chemical analysis made of the contents of the woman's stomach.

The report shows alcohol of an inferior grade was found in the stomach.

The police have been unable to find any trace of E. F. Jacobs, who was with Mrs. Cash and who left the hotel some time before the body was discovered. Mrs. Cash lived in Ashland, Or.

CASH CLAIMS JACOBS PERSUED WIFE FOR YEARS

Ashland, July 16.—E. E. Cash of San Francisco, husband of the woman found dead in a Seattle hotel, is in Ashland. He had motored here and explained his wife was to follow on the train. Cash claimed that his wife was addicted to drugs. He said that E. A. Jacobs has for several years tried to make love to Mrs. Cash, but that his wife cared absolutely nothing for Jacobs.

Cash said he and his wife and two of her daughters worked in the O. W. E. & N. steamship service. For eight months before working there, he and his wife and the daughters worked for the Bridal Veil Lumbering company. He had charge of the butcher shop, his wife ran the boarding house and her two girls were waitresses there. The mother of Mrs. Cash is Mrs. Anna Ruggles of San Francisco. Jacobs was assistant superintendent at a Linnton sawmill in Portland. Cash expected his wife on the train in Ashland Thursday.

She remained in Portland to attend the Rose Carnival and Shrine convention. Cash fears Jacobs followed his wife to Seattle.

JACOBS' REPUTATION OF BEST AMONG ASSOCIATES

E. F. Jacobs worked for about four months at the Clark & Wilson Lumber company mill at Linnton, leaving there two weeks ago, supposedly for Puget Sound, where he intended to work in the mills.

Jacobs bore an excellent reputation at the mill and was considered a first-class workman, being employed as night foreman. Fellow employees said he had told of being married, but his wife was living somewhere away from him, the associates not knowing where.

That Jacobs was perfectly "steady" was the comment of his associates. He seldom left the vicinity, even in his hours off duty, and the other workmen expressed much surprise that he should have been mixed up in the trouble reported from Seattle.

shall go to Essen, where they will study the condition of the workers and supervise the feeding of the miners.

Germany, the answer declares, must be given the necessary credit to purchase food for her workers, and shall either be given an outright guarantee of 1,500,000 tons monthly for their own use, or else the entire output of upper Silesia.

GERMANS LATE, AS USUAL

That was Febrbach's final answer after a week of haggling. It came after a night of the wildest rumors, some that Germany had given in on every point, others that she would stand put on her refusal to consider the question further. As a matter of fact, the exact terms of Germany's reply were not known until they were formally delivered today.

The meeting of the premiers was scheduled for 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Their ultimatum had been perfected. It had been expected that the Germans would be on hand, but they failed to appear at the appointed time—which has lately been a habit with the delegates from Berlin—and again a new crop of rumors was afloat.

At noon, von Simons, in an interview, declared:

24 HOURS ALLOWED

"We have done all we can. I hope there will be an agreement. But if Marshal Foch wants an invasion, I suppose he will have it."

Throughout the night, Herr Stinnes, Rathenau and Dernburg were in conference over the situation. Their decision, it was understood, was that Germany accept the proposal, declaring that the occupation of Ruhr would be suicide, and its effects upon Germany far worse than to sign the engagement demanded by the allies.

At 7 o'clock last evening the allies sent a short and pointed note to the Germans, demanding that they make a definite reply on the coal demands, promising delivery of 2,000,000 tons monthly.

Upon receipt of this promise, the note declared, the allies would agree to take

Pittman Acquitted Of Murder Charge

Fresno, Cal., July 16.—Marion E. Pittman was acquitted by a jury Thursday of the slaying on March 23 of Andre W. Nicholson, a wealthy contractor. The verdict found Pittman not guilty "by reason of insanity." Pittman killed Nicholson when he found him in his home with Mrs. Pittman.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PORTLAND:

The promoters and salaried employes of the body calling itself the Dairymen's League has served notice upon us that it "MUST HAVE AN INCREASE IN THE PRICE FOR MILK."

Any further advance is NOT JUSTIFIED by ANY CONDITIONS NOW EXISTING.

The plans of these promoters are WHOLLY SELFISH and it is time the people of Portland know the truth about the tactics of the small group of manipulators that by misrepresentation and intimidation have attempted to gain control of Portland's milk supply to the detriment of both the real dairymen and the city's consumers.

We have no quarrel with the dairymen, but on the contrary are desirous of having the PRODUCER RECEIVE THE MARKET PRICE, WHICH WE ACTUALLY PAY, instead of, as now, having a considerable portion of the price retained by a so-called "League" which performs no useful service to the community.

We welcome the investigation being conducted by Mr. Lionel C. Mackay under the instructions of His Honor, the Mayor, and pledge our support to same, to the end that the real facts be known and the maintenance of a legitimate price for milk.

The promoters of the body calling itself the Dairymen's League by interjecting themselves into the normal chain of distribution, without benefit or necessity as a NEW KIND OF "MIDDLEMEN" PERFORMING NO USEFUL SERVICE, have already done a grave injustice to the real producers of milk and caused a large loss to the people.

The constantly increasing expenses of this promotion, its excessive overhead large "legal fees" and cost of propaganda have all been added to the price charged us for milk and deducted from the amount the dairyman should receive.

But the most INDEFENSIBLE FEATURE of these promoters' tactics is the scheme whereby in order to raise prices sufficiently to cover the above unnecessary expenses, they are DELIBERATELY WITHHOLDING FROM THE MARKET A LARGE QUANTITY OF MILK. This ARTIFICIAL "SURPLUS" they refuse to sell the people of Portland through us, preferring to take a loss on same. The losses sustained on the diversion of this milk which these promoters admit if offered for sale here would cause the price "to be broken very quickly," are of absolutely no benefit to the people of Portland and are actually deducted from the amount the dairyman receives for his higher priced milk that is sold here.

TO THE DAIRYMEN THEMSELVES, OUR PATRONS, we say: We are desirous of maintaining the pleasant relations between us and are willing at all times to pay the top market price for your milk, based on the law of supply and demand and to continue our functions of receiving, pasteurizing, bottling, distributing, manufacturing or processing and accounting for your product, but we refuse longer to be "HELD UP" by any group of SELFISH PROMOTERS who have shown such a disregard for your rights and ours. We will gladly deal directly with any and all actual dairymen, but we refuse longer to attempt to do business with the self-styled leaders of the body calling itself the Dairymen's League.
