

"Babe" Ruth Makes His Home Run Total Reach 34.:Semi-Pros Play Two Games Today

SEMI-PROS TO PLAY AT VAUGHN ST.

Two Games Set for P. C. L. Grounds This Afternoon Starting at 1:30 o'clock.

WITH two games scheduled for this afternoon, Vaughn street grounds promise to be a lively place when the four teams of Class AA league of the Portland Baseball association swing into action. The first engagement is set for 1:30 o'clock with Hesse-Martin Iron Works and the American Can company representatives in the stellar role while the second set to be between Kendall Station and the Arleta "WOWS."

"Pink" Deardorff will be Manager Lowry's selection for the Iron Workers and inasmuch as he worked yesterday afternoon in the Chautauque league it means that "Pink" will have to be in grand condition to get by with them. He likes work and he certainly has been getting it the last 10 days or two weeks.

Umpire Garrison will be President Jack Routledge's nominee to handle the two contests.

Kendall Station and Arleta are out to keep in the league race and each knows that a defeat this afternoon will throw them out of the running, unless some miracle takes place. The Hesse-Martin team is confident that the Canos will be walloped and walloped decisively and this means that Crown-Williams's squad will be in for a hard battle when the Iron Workers and Pulp Makers get to swinging bats.

PAPER MAKERS LEADING

At present Crown-Williams of Oregon City leads the Class AA circuit and no team has been able to take a defeat.

The final games of all leagues of the Portland Baseball association will take place on Labor day, says President Jack Routledge and after that date the proposed intercity games between Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane will be on the schedule. Between now and then Prexy Jack is going to line up a bunch of outside games for the 1920 champions of Oregon.

Already he has received word from Spokane that the leaders of the Inland Empire will be in for a hot battle against the Rose City and Seattle is expected to answer within a few days.

A very important bout of town matters B. A. will be held tomorrow night in the Multnomah Guard club rooms, second floor of the Chamber of Commerce building, and President Routledge urges that all managers and captains report and be on hand promptly at 7:45 o'clock. Besides settling out of town matters the board of managers will take up the picnic program. The bushers have planned a picnic for next month but as yet the exact date and place for holding it have not been determined. It is expected to be closed after Monday's session. From the west things look now, Crystal lake will be the scene inasmuch as it is close to Portland.

SPORT NOTES

A BIG professional ice hockey league next season will probably include New York City, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, and possibly Toronto and Montreal.

All-American soccer team will play in Norway, Denmark, Finland, Czechoslovakia, Holland and Belgium during August and early September. The squad includes 22 experts.

Again in 1920-21 the survivors of the semi-finals in the East and Middle West will play for the national cup, the $1000 trophy emblematic of the kicking style of football championship. Entries close Sept. 25 and the draw for the first games will occur Sept. 26 in New York City.

Point Judith polo club, Narragansett pier will be the scene of important tournaments, August 2 to 14.

Bobby Walthour, the 16-year-old son of the famous bicyclist, has taken up the sport. In a recent appearance at Philadelphia the youthful aspirant won two races easily.

California state golf championship will be contested September 4 to 12 at Del Monte on two courses.

China and British India are among 30 nations entered in the Olympic games at Antwerp, August 15 to 23.

Baseball Brings $150 at Auction

Sam Shortridge, San Francisco possesses the first ball Bambino Ruth hit into the grandstand at the polo grounds this year. The ball, auctioned off last week at Los Angeles for the benefit of the child's welfare fund and it cost Sam $150. It was autographed by the "Babe" himself along with a bunch of other motion picture stars of Sunny California.

Japanese Tennis Player Dances AND SMILES When He Meets an Opponent

LONDON, July 24.—(L. N. S.)—Mlle. L. Susanne Lenglen, holder of the women's tennis championship of the world, has solved the style of play of the little Japanese wonder, Shimidzu, who soon will go to the United States to play.

Mlle. Lenglen takes the match between the Japanese and Gobert, the French champion, in which the latter was defeated.

"Although five sets were played before an end could be made, the game was not so good as that," says Mlle. Lenglen. "Gobert would be the last in the world to wish anyone to make excuses for him, but although he said before the match that he was 'all right,' I knew that he was not."

"Twice he fell and after that he went to the net no more.

DIDN'T SMILE TWICE

"Gobert smiling from the back of the court all the time is not Gobert at all."

"But Shimidzu—he is delightful. Only twice did he not smile. Gobert's fall worried him as much as they did our champion himself."

"The little Japanese's service is so funny that he laughs at it himself. Monsieur Zeno looks as if he is going to apologize about it all the time. And yet it seems to trouble everybody."

"Surely, I think, as I see a big drive crossing the court, surely he will not get it."

"Yet he is there, smiling, as though to say: 'Thank you very much for sending this one to me.'"

"He might have been waiting in that spot for a year to judge from his face, but he was certainly on the other side of the court a moment ago."

"How does he do it? I was quite a long time in finding out, because he does not run."

HE CAN DANCE

"This is the secret. He dances. I do not know what is the national dance of Japan, but Shimidzu seems to dance all in one piece while the court moves under him."

"And then he smiles."

"His shot begins at his toes and ends by his trying to hide his head behind his right shoulder, and all the time he smiles."

"It all looks so simple, so impossibly simple. His smash is a push stroke."

"He almost plays it with his racket in both hands. Holding the frame before his face with his left hand, he peeps through the strings and pushes."

CHEHALIS, Wash., July 24.—Secretary and Manager George R. Walker of the Southwest Washington Fair association states that the racing program for the fair this year, August 23 to 29, will probably be the best offered in the 12 years of the fair. The local track is considered the best half mile track in the West. At present 35 or more horses are being trained on the local oval for the race event. A number of others are coming from Oregon and Southern California.

The entries for all harness events close August 1.

Four entire days of racing begins August 24. Purse include $600 for trotting and pacing races and $75 to $125 for running races. Tuesday's card includes the 2:14 trot and 2:24 pace; Wednesday, 2:15 trot and 2:15 pace; Thursday, 2:15 trot and 2:15 pace; Friday, free-for-all trot and pace. On Saturday will be held the automobile race program, in charge of P. W. Kane of Centralia, who has been lining up some of the leading auto racers of the Northwest.

Walker also has been assured of exhibits of all kinds of livestock from all parts of the Northwest. More than 150 head of local livestock have been signed up, and inquiries being received daily indicate the largest exhibit of local stock ever shown here.

Owing to fine weather conditions, an unusually fine display of grains and grasses will be shown under the supervision of Theodore Albert, district horticulturist. Exhibitors are urged to make two entries in all classes, so they may compete for first and second prizes.

Added water facilities have been made this year, so that an ample supply of water may be had in all parts of the fair grounds.

Demand for commercial space has been very brisk, and every inch of available space will be used. Those desiring to make commercial exhibits should notify Secretary Walker at once. The fair management has rented additional space north of the fair grounds for automobile parking during fair week. The south automobile park used as such in 1919 this year will be used for additional exhibits.

Dodgers' Mascot Drowns at Columbus

Columbus, Ohio, July 24.—While playing in the swimming pool at a local amusement park, Benjamin W. Lewis, 16, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was drowned here Monday. Hundreds of bathers, including his little sisters, Dorothy 12 and Jane 9, saw him drown. Benjamin was the mascot of the Brooklyn National league baseball team and was a "pal" to all the players.

COAST LEAGUE CORPS OF UMPIRES FAIL TO IMPRESS BALL FANS

Work of Indicator Holders in Local Series Poor—Players Allowed to Loaf

PRESIDENT MCARTHUR'S staff of Pacific Coast league umpires is the poorest one that the followers of baseball have had to contend with for a number of years.

The work of the indicator holders in the local series has been very poor. They have allowed players to loaf on the sidelines and pitchers have been made dissatisfied with the umpires but the kick seems to be general all over the coast. There is hardly a game played in which there is not a lot of kicking by the players on both teams on both the work of the officials. In the last local series, the Tigers and Beavers were continually ragging Umpires McGraw and Holmes on their ball and strike decisions.

WHITMAN COACH IS KEEPING IN SHAPE WITH HIS ATHLETES

Vince Borleske Working as Laborer With Road Gang; Portlanders Help Harvest.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 24.—Coach Vincent ("Nig") Borleske of Whitman believes in keeping fit with his men. The Missionary mentor is now employed as a common laborer on a road gang building a concrete road just east of Walla Walla, and every day this summer the big ex-All North-west football star can be seen wielding a shovel or a leveler to get himself into condition to show his huskies this fall a few tricks of his trade.

Not satisfied getting himself into a husky job, Borleske has succeeded in dragging two of his veteran gridiron stars along with him and is getting them hardened in for this fall's grilling at the same time. These are Benny Comrada of Seattle, football captain for 1920 and tackle of Northwest repute, and "Dutch" Garver, fullback on the 1919 Whitman team.

This spirit of hard work has apparently gripped the rest of the Whitman athletes in various ways, for Ralph Knudsen and diminutive Jack Gurian of Portland have been putting in the last six weeks wrestling a pitchfork in the alfalfa, wheat and hay fields. They will both accept jobs in the wheat harvest, together with Bell Coffey, first sacker on the Whitman nine this year.

British Champion Will Face Handicap In U. S. Golf Event

When the national amateur golf championship tournament gets under way at the Engineers' Country club, Long Island, the first week in September, it is expected that C. J. H. Tolley, the new British champion, will be among the competitors. Some time since word was received from the other side to the effect that this Oxford golfer and R. H. Wethered, captain of the varsity team, were making plans to play at Roslyn this year in company with T. H. Armour, runner-up in the Irish tournament at Portrush.

Now that Tolley has annexed the British title he will make every effort to come to this country. The Engineers' layout is one exactly suited to Tolley's game, for he is a powerful driver and enjoys the reputation of being the longest hitter in Great Britain, not even excepting Abe Mitchell, the sensational professional.

Should the British champion put in an appearance in the United States title event and Walter Hagen says he is coming, he will find himself playing under the same handicap as that enjoyed by Robert Gardner in the recent Muirfield gathering. Gardner, it will be recalled, lost to Tolley in the final round after an extra-hole playoff and the former Yale golfer in getting to that stage accomplished more than any other American has been able to do in a

WORLD'S HOME RUN KING

Here is the latest photograph of Babe Ruth, the New York Yankee slugger, taken just after he had broken his own major league record for long distance clouting. Bambino knocked out 29 homers during the campaign of 1919, but so far this year he has negotiated the four bases on one hit on 34 occasions. He wants to make it at least a half hundred before the curtain is rung down.

British amateur championship, with the exception of Walter Travis, who won the title in 1904.

Christy Mathewson Quits the Diamond

The "Old Master" is through.

Christy Mathewson, for years the idol of New York fans, a player whose name was long a household word throughout the realm of baseball, has decided to quit the pastime for good and all.

The coming of Johnny Evers to the Giants foreboded one of two things—the retirement of Matty or the stepping down of McGraw as active manager of the team. And now Matty has made his move.

For some weeks prior to the announcement that he would retire, Matty suffered with bronchial trouble, and this hastened his plans to sever relations with the team he helped make so famous and arrange for an extended vacation at Lake Placid in the Adirondacks.

The decision of the "Old Master" was learned with regret by New York fans, not to mention fans throughout the country, for he is one of baseball's best liked and most picturesque veterans.

Matty has not been active as a player since 1916, yet he will be missed, and the best wishes of the fans will follow him wherever he goes.

Wild Horses Will Cavort In Portland

Rose City Speedway Promises to Be Scene of Wild Time August 11-15.

UPWARDS of 100 horses, included in which are thoroughbred mounts, trick and fancy nags and Wild West stock are now quartered in Portland in anticipation of the Wild West show and annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Racing association to be held August 11 to 15 at the Rose City speedway. Among the classy ones are Joe Cantrell's pair of trained horses which participate in the Roman steeplechase, a daily feature of the proposed program. Wiley Blanchard, famous bull-dogger, is also among those present and is having his hands full caring for 25 head of bucking horses, many of which will feel the cinch of a saddle for the first time at the coming exhibition.

W. M. Byers has 14 head of horses stabled at Gresham, which he intends to enter in the pony express, standing and chariot races. He also has some thoroughbred stock for the feature events.

BULL-DOGGING ON PROGRAM

Bob Hall, all-around artist of Wild West fame, is at the present time touring the eastern part of the state with a pocketful of contracts. He will sign up many performers before he returns to Portland.

Jackson Sundown, Indian bull-dogger and a former winner of the Round-Up championship at Pendleton, as well as John Spain, the one-handed buckaroo and another Pendleton champ have signified their intentions of competing at the Speedway meet and should furnish plenty of competition for their opponents in the various events.

Bertha Blanchard, famous woman rider, is already in Portland and three other maidens, Marie Hall, Iris Hall and Jessie Farrow are coming.

Indians Regain League Leadership

Polo Grounds, New York, July 24.—(L. N. S.)—The Indians went back into the lead in the American league race this afternoon by defeating the Yanks, 4 to 2 in a hotly contested 11-inning game. Ruth added another homer to his string, getting one in the fourth inning. The makes his total 34—another new world's record.

Irish Horses Are Winners

Irish horses have won all the big races in England and France this year. Troytown won the Grand National; Tetrate, the Two Thousand; Spion Kop the English derby; Charibelle, the Oaks, and Comrade the Grand Prix, the French classic.
