

OUTDOOR CHURCH MEETING RECALLS CHRIST'S MISSION

"I am reminded that the first temples men worshipped in were temples similar to this one," said Dr. Eugene C. Hickman of Wilbur Methodist church, in opening his sermon at Laurelhurst park Sunday afternoon. "The church has been slow in going out into the highways, byways, hillsides and other places where people gather, and bringing them the gospel message. If our Lord and Master had gone to the synagogues only to preach to the people, many of our best messages would never have been given."

More than 600 people sat on benches, tables or on the green grass under the giant trees in a natural amphitheatre, while little children played nearby on the green and white butterflies flitted overhead. A peculiar reverence seemed to spread itself over the gathering.

SINGING IS FEATURE
The congregation did much better singing in the park without the aid of song-books than is sometimes heard in church. Motets singing the park stopped their machines and listened to the music and sermon from the roadway.

An "old-fashioned" Methodist sermon was given by Dr. Hickman. He chose Bible passages referring to repentance for his theme and said in part: "The heart needs to be made right and then all else will be right. The first message of all the prophets and all the apostles throughout the entire Bible is to repent and get right with God. Christ instructed the disciples to preach a gospel of repentance. I tell you there has never been such a need of preaching the straight from the shoulder gospel of repentance as there is today. Folks are drifting away from God. If you could stand here where I am and see not over a score of young folks in this fine congregation you would get excited also. Where are our young men and girls? They were not in church this morning. They are not here now and they will not be in church tonight. It's time us pious church folks were searching out hearts."

YOUNG PEOPLE URGED
The preacher addressed his closing remarks to the few young people in the audience, urging them to live for Christ. "Oh, that I might bring to you the glory of living a whole life for God," he said. The Rev. Ralph McAfee, executive secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, presided. Dr. J. J. Staub of Sunnyside Congregational church and the Rev. Homer L. Cox of the First Methodist church led in the prayers. Prof. J. A. Hollingsworth directed the singing, being supported by C. J. Selfarth on the cornet and a chorus choir composed of singers from nearby churches. Gordon O. Onstad sang "This is My Task." The Rev. S. Earl Du Bois, chairman of the committee in charge of the open air service, announced that as soon as arrangements had been made with city officials services would be held in several of the parks each Sunday.

"Mothers and fathers spend too much time fussing about what clothes their children shall wear rather than insisting and seeing to it that these children are trained to live for God and for others," said the Rev. Thomas Jenkins at St. David's Episcopal church Sunday morning. "In our churches we have priests short of normal requirements. It is next to impossible to get young men to enter the priesthood to save souls. They prefer instead to enter business careers where money is made quickly."

Removal of a wisdom tooth and contracting a cold after the operation forced the Rev. H. H. Griffith of the First Christian church to refrain from preaching Sunday. The Rev. S. M. Connors, pastor emeritus, occupied the pulpit in the morning, and also took charge of the communion service. Following the communion he gave a brief message covering the same text Dr. Griffith had announced, the story of the rich man and Lazarus.

The Rev. H. T. Cash, associate pastor of the East Side Baptist church, gave his closing message Sunday night before leaving on a month's vacation. He spoke on "The Vision Splendid," contrasting the difference of vision through the natural and spiritual eye. "We see much of beauty with these natural eyes," he said, "but, oh what we see through the spiritual eye. Culture and art without the Christ of the New Testament is like the scentless rose. Men may be eloquent or eloquent in the pulpit but yet be blind as to what Jesus Christ is and what he asks of the souls of men. Higher critics are refashioning this lamp (the Bible) of ours and handing it back to us, but after they hand it back the light is gone."

During August the pulpit will be occupied Sunday mornings and evenings and on Thursday nights by Dr. S. J. Reid, state evangelist for the Baptist church. Dr. W. B. Hinson, pastor, is lecturing this week at the Moody Bible Institute at Gladstone Chautauqua grounds.

Dorothy Riley Gets Freedom After Nine Months as Prisoner

The iron doors of the Multnomah county jail opened Sunday to give freedom to 25-year-old Dorothy Riley after she had served 9 months behind the bars for counterfeiting. She was taken away by a relative, and soon thereafter left for Oakland, Cal., where she says she will start life anew.

"I am going straight after this; you can bank on that," declared the pretty young woman as she bid farewell to the jail matron and officers. "I'm still young and have a long time before me; I'm going to make good."

John Riley and his wife, Dorothy Riley, were apprehended in Portland by government operatives early last fall after they had scattered bogus money through various sections of California and Oregon. A portion of a counterfeit outfit was found in their apartments on Fifth street. After maintaining a defiant attitude for some time, they finally pleaded guilty. Riley was sentenced to McNellis island, but made his escape from there and is still at liberty.

Thief Leaves Cash; Takes Half Cheese

Cottage Grove, July 26.—The W. C. Johnson & Co. general store was broken into early Sunday morning. The thief was evidently hungry as $5 in the cash drawer was not touched. Half a cheese is the only thing missed.

"It Always Pays to Shop at Meier & Frank's"

WE HAD planned long since a notable series of events for this closing week of July. We had planned surely and well—in MEIER & FRANK fashion. Things developed splendidly and new fortunate circumstances came to strengthen our hands—special purchases were consummated—and we were more than ever determined to make this a banner week. Then, a happy thought: Make the occasion even more memorable—do things on a still greater scale—go through stocks carefully and select more merchandise of the wanted kind for special offerings—summon up the resources of every section of the store and utilize these contributions, all these energies and plans in an intensive drive to demonstrate anew in striking fashion that "It Always Pays to Shop at Meier & Frank's."

NO SOONER said than done. Department heads forthwith notified to bend every effort to provide merchandise at a price in accordance with this slogan and our determination to make its power felt. First result:

Five Whole Pages in Yesterday's Papers

Five pages telling a wonderful story of splendid merchandise at reduced prices and then not room for all. For every one of the eighty-odd Meier & Frank departments has entered heartily into the spirit of this occasion and VALUES of the most astonishing order are the result.
