son-in-law's arrest was communicated to her Wednesday. The family appeared not to be in want when the mother visited at San Diego.

The young woman's father, manager of the G. & R. Machinery company, 503 Gerlinger building, had heard nothing of his daughter's fate, but following a telephone call from Mrs. Riner Wednesday morning he pieced together a story of possibilities that led him to fear the worst.

"Until a week or so ago," Riner said, "we had been receiving hand written letters from Flash—every one of them so full of love for the health of his wife. He suddenly changed to typewriting, and that must have been the time of his arrest."

"He wrote such splendid letters, and especially so within the last month. It was early in July he wrote that Edna's health required that he send her to Arizona, where a sister would care for her during a season in a hospital there."

"Immediately thereafter we were told that we could not reach Edna by mail, but should address our letters to him and he would transfer them to her. Putting these facts together I have this morning woven the story carried on The Journal wires."

"Edna had been married to Flash about four years. By a former marriage she had a son whom we have raised here in Portland—a boy about 14 years old."

"I know that their financial condition was not the best, but I believe there was no actual privation."

"One of the last letters we had from Edna before her husband wrote that he was sending her to a hospital, she said she was planning a trip home. Thereafter her letters stopped and all we heard was through her husband."

CIVIL ENGINEERS IN CONTEST OVER AFFILIATION ISSUE

Whether the American Society of Civil Engineers affiliate with the recently organized National Engineering Council will depend upon its individual members, a motion having passed at the fiftieth annual convention Tuesday at the Multnomah hotel to submit the question to the members by ballot.

The issue was hotly contested, the chief opposition resting with the New York delegation, which maintained the organization would lose its prestige by such affiliation. The union of all the national engineering societies, it was argued, would result in a broader scope of activities along the lines of civic and welfare work.

Fourteen amendments to the constitution were considered. Part of these, because of inability to agree at the convention, will be carried over until the next meeting in January. Those which passed provide for the cutting of New York's representation of six directors in half and the organization of local sections in each district which will take part in selecting members and will send representatives to nominate officers in place of the nominating committee.

The engineers are spending Wednesday going over the Columbia river highway, stopping at Eagle Creek for luncheon. Wednesday night a smoker will be given in the grand ballroom at which the women are expected to be present. Frank Branch Riley will give an illustrated talk on the scenery of the Northwest.

Thursday will be spent in inspection and sight-seeing trips.

Druggists of Oregon Picnic at The Oaks

More than 300 druggists of Oregon and their wives, in Portland attending the four day convention of the State Pharmaceutical association, spent Wednesday at the Oaks where a picnic was in progress during the afternoon and evening for their entertainment. Business sessions will be resumed Thursday at the Multnomah hotel and a dance will be given in the evening on the floating pavilion Swan.
