But cars that may be purchased with tassurance that the purchaser gets unusual valbecause the large factor of depreciation been absorbed by the first owner, while the trinsic value of the car—its possibilities [fing and satisfactory service—have not been in paired—cars that justify the pride of own ship, which is one of the chief elements of sisfaction in the purchase of a new car.

For months we have been taking in only the pick of the used cars offered us in trade, at prices which allow the second purchaser splendid value for every dollar invested. These cars have been overhauled and in many cases refinished and supplied with new tops.

That is why our used car business continues good in spite of all handicaps.
