

HARDING WOULD BRING TARIFF TO FRONT AS ISSUE

Republican Nominee Says Europe Will Strive to Regain Trade With America as Best Buyer.

By Raymond Clapper
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Marion, Ohio, Aug. 14.—A prediction that the tariff will be one of the foremost issues of the campaign was made by Senator Warren G. Harding here tonight.

"Mark my word, this will be an issue," he said, discussing the tariff question. "People can smile now, but you will hear a lot of shouting about the tariff before the campaign is over."

BOOKED FOR LABOR DAY TALK

Harding officially announced his acceptance of an invitation to speak at the Minnesota State fair at the Twin Cities Wednesday, September 8. A Labor day speech had been requested, but Harding wants to discuss agricultural issues at the State fair and will make a Labor day speech from the front porch here. He will travel to Minnesota in a regular sleeping car.

A heavy rainstorm broke up Harding's plans for a golf game at Mansfield today.

He conferred several hours with ex-Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, Congressman Nicholas Longworth, and his wife Alice at the Harding home, spent last night at the Harding home.

WANTS TARIFF COMMISSION

"I do not know whether I am in agreement with others in this, but I favor a tariff commission. No congress can have all the information necessary as to differentials and rates. I regard a tariff commission as a necessary adjunct to protective policies."

"I do not mean an old time prohibitive tariff, but a tariff which protects American interests."

"Do you regard the present tariff commission as inefficient?" Harding was asked.

"I won't say inefficient," he replied. "It is not functioning."

SENATORIAL RING IS SUBJECT OF COX TALK

and now we intend to establish protection against another such ring," he declared, adding that the Republicans have failed to present any concrete plan for permanent peace.

The address tonight, delivered before a large crowd at the river front park, probably was the most vigorous and direct the nominee has flung at the republican party since his nomination. His address this afternoon before the Democratic state convention often was interrupted by demonstrations of approval.

SCORES SENATORIAL RING

"I was not nominated by a senatorial ring nor any kind of a ring," Cox said tonight. "I decline to be tied to my front porch by a senatorial ring. I deny it the right to hold me there, nestled in the face of grave public emergency, and when I am elected, I don't intend that a senatorial ring nor any other kind of ring shall own me."

Mention of President Wilson's name by Cox at the convention drew a big demonstration.

"The outstanding impression of my visit to the White House," Cox said, "was this: 'The president gave a promise to the mothers of the country when he asked for their sons and he kept it. He kept it long enough to see that pledge fulfilled.'"

The greatest applause came when Cox shouted to the Democratic delegation: "Senator Harding will not make a peace with Germany because he will not be given an opportunity. He will not be a separate peace because I will not make it."

DR. LOVEJOY GETS DRY NOMINATION

tion for the naming of a candidate for congress. Because there was no Prohibition party nominee for congress from this district at the last election it became necessary, in conformity with the election laws, to have 100 persons signed up on the roll of the mass convention.

NAMES ARE OBTAINED

One by one signatures were secured, after various appeals, but finally it was announced that only 99 names had been obtained. Then John W. Kelly, political writer on a Republican paper, stepped into the breach and signed his own name as the one hundredth person, amidst applause and laughter.

In discussing the purpose of the convention one of the speakers said: "We make no secret of it that it is our intention to put over one of the old party candidates by allowing to her the support of the Prohibition party. Multinomial county is for prohibition, and it has been misrepresented in congress by Pat McArthur, Dr. Fisher, Fohl Lovejoy is unequivocally committed to the support of prohibition and the Volstead enforcement law."

The nomination and second, through several addresses, followed, and the career of Dr. Lovejoy was reviewed.

"We have had a woman in congress who simply wept when matters of grave importance were before that body. In Dr. Lovejoy we will have a representative of Multinomial county with an international reputation, and who will work and not weep at important moments," said one speaker. Others reviewed her 30 years of public life, during all of which time she was an ardent supporter of equal suffrage.

It was announced that a public reception in honor of Dr. Lovejoy will be held on the lawn at the residence of Dr. Mae Cardwell, 181 Bancroft street, next Friday evening.

MORE TEETH NEEDED

"The Volstead act has not to have more teeth in it or it isn't worth a whoop."

Such was the declaration made by Prohibition Director Johnson S. Smith before the party convention of the Prohibition party Saturday afternoon, in which he gave some interesting information regarding the work of enforcement under the Volstead law in Portland and vicinity.

The Volstead law is a step, but it must "We've got to have more power, in the enforcement of the law," continued Smith. "The old revenue law on search was much broader. At present it is very hard to get evidence required before we can search premises, although we may be really certain that illegal operations are carried on in certain places."

FOREIGN NAMES LISTED

The Volstead law is a step, but it must be improved if there is to be rigid enforcement of prohibition.

"The class of people generally engaged in the violation of the prohibition law is disclosed by the names of those who have been indicted or found guilty," he said. His then read a list of names unmistakably middle European in their character, and declared that a majority of these never were and never intended to become American citizens.

"Austrians are making money out of the moonshine business—taking it away from Americans and sending it to the Old Country," he declared.

Numerous pertinent questions were propounded to Smith by his auditors. The complaint about free sale of liquor at Salons during the Elks' convention was discussed, and Smith said the source of this was the uncovering of one of the largest stills yet found in the state.

GATHERING TERMED CLEAN

Someone wanted to know how about the free dispensing of liquors in Portland during the Elks' conclave.

"I think the Shriners' gathering was very clean, considering its size," responded Smith. "I think the amount of liquor sold has been grossly exaggerated, for the very reason that I know liquor was sold at from $25 to $30 a quart. If it had been plentiful such prices could not have been obtained."

He pleaded for the necessity of creating a sustaining sentiment in every district for the enforcement of the prohibition law, and cited certain instances where federal officers were morally certain that practically the entire community knew of gross violations, but refrained from aiding the officers of the government in unearthing the plague spots.

"The administration's secret purpose in financing the Polish attempt to annex a large and valuable portion of Russian territory was the destruction of the Russian soviet government," Christensen said.

QUOTES HARDING SPEECH

"Senator Harding on March 6, 1920, said that 'it is no business of ours what form of government the Russian people choose' and that the allied invasion of Russia was one of the worst blunders the present generation of statesmen ever committed. His silence at this time while President Wilson commits this nation to a policy of slaughter and starvation of the Russian people and financial support of Polish imperialism is tantamount to approval of that policy."

"I do not understand that my candidacy justifies a detailed discussion of administrative acts, concerning which there is no official information. The Republican concern is for our republic and its freedom from that involvement which is the cherished inheritance of our people."

REPLIES TO CHRISTENSEN

The telegram was in reply to a message Christensen sent to Harding on July 24, in which the former charged the administration with having "secretly provided the Polish government with at least $70,000,000 in armaments, food, munitions and cash with which to carry on the offensive against Russia on Russian soil."

When Christensen made public Harding's reply tonight, he declared he could not "reconcile Senator Harding's desire to keep the republic free from involvement with his decision to remain silent while the administration involves the republic itself, and probably $100,000,000 of the republic's money, in the fate of a foreign government that gambles life away on the slim chance of a military victory over Russia."
