

Four American League Clubs Likely to Strike Against "Bean Ball" Delivery of Mays

Mays Object of Strike in American Set

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(U. P.)—Officials of organized baseball today were planning to prevent carrying out of the reported threat of Boston and Detroit players to take action in retaliation against Carl Mays, Yankee pitcher, as a result of the death of Ray Chapman, Cleveland American shortstop, whose skull was fractured by a ball thrown by Mays.

Members of the Washington and St. Louis teams of the American league were also reported to be considering a "strike" in protest against Mays' pitching. It was believed the four protesting teams might appeal to other American league clubs to join them in the threatened "strike."

Mays was exonerated by local authorities when he told the district attorney's office details of the accident to Chapman which resulted in the shortstop's death. Mays said he had pitched a fast straight ball with no intention of hitting the player. He said he looked at the ball after the accident and found that it was slightly roughened on one side.

Mrs. Chapman, her brother, Tris Speaker and Joe Wood formed a committee to remain in baseball.

New York, Aug. 18.—Grief-stricken Carl Mays declared here today he will face accusations that he is a "bean ball" pitcher on the diamond. The fact that Chapman died from injuries he received when struck by a ball pitched by Mays will not keep the Yankee star out of the game.

Mays, a college graduate, intelligent, made a calm analysis of his own case. "Any man who believes a pitcher would deliberately throw a ball at another's head in a ball game is foolish," he said. "Even if such a thing were done it is difficult for me to see how that pitcher could believe he would hit the man at whom he was aiming. I know, and so does anyone who gives the matter serious thought, that poor Chapman was killed because he didn't get out of the way of the ball that was certain to hit him. He crowded the plate. By standing close he made me pitch in a narrow space. The ball hit him. It was a fast one, not a curve. A slight move would have saved Chapman."

"My grief over the accident is great, but it is something that could not be helped. I intend to remain in baseball and show the fans that things which have been said of me are either malicious or ill-advised."

CLEVELAND FANS PAY TRIBUTE TO CHAPMAN

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 18.—(U. P.)—Hundreds of Cleveland fans gathered at Union station here this morning to pay tribute to the memory of Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop, whose body arrived from New York shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. Included in the throng were men from all walks of life, for the player numbered his friends among rich and poor alike.

Plans are already under way to make September 3, when the Indians return from their road trip, a memorial day for Chapman. A fund is being collected to purchase flowers for the funeral. Each contributor is limited to 10 cents and the floral fund will be accompanied by an inscription reading "Flowers From the Fans." Among the contributors to this are 50 newbies.

Manager Speaker denied himself to newspaper men upon his arrival, going with the widow to the Daily home. It is expected that he will issue a statement later in the day.

GRIFITH WOULD BACK MOVE TO BAR YANK STAR

Washington, Aug. 18.—Any movement to have Carl Mays put out of the game for all time will have the support of Griffith, president and manager of the Washington baseball club. Griffith said that at a recent game in Washington Mays threatened to "bean" Joe McBride, the National league shortstop. "He tried his best to do it," Griffith added, "but McBride was alert and managed to catch the ball on his elbow. I cannot say that Mays intentionally 'beaned' Chapman, but I believe that he has intentionally 'beaned' other players, and has bragged about it afterward."

TRACK RECORDS

LIKELY TO FALL IN FIRST MEET

AS a result of the work of an extra crew on the race track at Vancouver, Wash., new records will likely be being up in the trotting and pacing events in the four-day race meet which inaugurates the North Pacific fair circuit Thursday.

Crews have been working night and day on the track and it is—using the words of a horseman—as fast as a bullet. The present track records are being 2:11 flat by Hal McKinnis and trotting 2:14 by Judge Dillon.

Blowing out exercises are being continued at the track Wednesday and practically all the horses are in A-1 condition.

Great interest is being manifested in the running races, which feature each day's program.

The meet closes Sunday afternoon.

Beavers to Go to Salem to Play Local Team Next Monday

Arrangements were completed Tuesday whereby the Portland Beavers will journey to Salem, Or., to meet Walter Kracke's Salem Senators. Bill Stepp, one of the star outfielders of the Capital City Senators, is handling the Portland end of the affair. Stepp says a half holiday has been declared for next Monday afternoon, and the game against the Beavers was made possible because it is traveling day in the Pacific Coast league.

The full Portland strength must be taken to the game, for the agreement, for the semi-pros feel they have the best team in the state. "Biddy" Bishop, former manager of the Senators, will be in the box against the leaguers. Just who will be McCredie's selection for mound duty has not been determined.

Californian Winner in Tennis Tourney

Boston, Aug. 18.—(U. P.)—William M. Johnston of California defeated Nat Niles of Boston in the final round of the Longwood challenge bowl lawn tennis trophy at the Chestnut Hill courts Tuesday afternoon. The scores were 6-4, 6-0, 6-0.

Niles was the 1920 winner of the Longwood championship and was challenged by Johnston, who had twice before won the bowl. By his victory Johnston obtains permanent possession. Play in the national championship doubles continues this afternoon.

Seattle Is the Best Town in P. C. Circuit

By George Berts

SEATTLE is the best baseball town in the Pacific Coast league today. This is the opinion of Judge William Wallace McCredie, president of the Portland Beavers, who returned Monday from the Puget Sound metropolis, where he witnessed his club go down to defeat in five out of seven games.

"We played to more people in Seattle last week," said the judge. "than we have in any other city this season. Sunday, there were over 8000 paid admissions, which is a couple of thousand more than our biggest Sunday crowd here. The Seattle fans are baseball crazy over the remarkable spurt of the Rainiers."

The crippled Beavers will open a series against the Oakland club, which seems to have taken a new lease on life. Last week, the Oaks took four of the seven games played with the Vernon Tigers and were beaten in the last two contests by the great pitching of Shell-enbach and Houck, each of whom let the Acorns down with four hits.

Huddled disconsolately together in a hotel lobby, with no thought of glory or gloom, mourning for that comrade who gave him life to the game.

MAY SPELL DEFEAT

Ray Chapman's death probably spells defeat for the Cleveland team. He was a cog in the machine that cannot be replaced. The loss of the race means an individual loss of something like $5000 to each member of the club. I spent about two hours Tuesday talking with members of the Cleveland team in their hotel lobby and not once did any player mention the effect of the loss of Chapman on the team's chances. It was simply not in their minds. As far as they were concerned it was over.

They talked in low tones of their dead comrade's character and exploits, but never a word of the thing that was vital to them and today is as dead as the man they mourn.

Smoke Joe Wood nodded. "Sure," he said, "and do you remember when he—when he—" Smoke Joe hesitated, swallowed hard and walked away from me.

SPEAKER SHAKEN BY GRIEF

Upstairs Tris Speaker, the Cleveland leader and Ray Chapman's roommate, was locked in his room so shaken by grief that he could see no one.

Upstairs was the bride of a year prostrated by her loss. Outside on the street, in trolley cars and subways, in offices and clubs, the wild-eyed fans of yesterday were the sad-eyed mourners of today.

LOS ANGELES WINS FIRST OF SERIES WITH SACRAMENTO

Los Angeles, Aug. 18.—The Angels won the opening game of this week's series from Sacramento 5 to 4. In an apartment house on the bluff overlooking the ball grounds, Carl Mays, the pitcher who threw the ball that was a summons to eternity, paced the floor and groaned a prayer for the return of the fatal yesterday. In an undertaking parlor nearby lay the spiritless clay of the man who died, and everywhere was the gloom that comes with a tragedy of real life is played out in the spotlight of the national stage.

BASEBALL IS A THING OF THE SPIRIT. The interest is in the spiritual elements of high courage and nerve. The American league will function to the end of the season to live the spirit of being that touched a nation to a very madness of interest has flows for the moment as the soul of the player whose death banished it.

"I kind of hope Cleveland wins now," an erstwhile rabid Yankee rooter said today. "Seems like they ought to somehow."

"Won't mean anything if the Yanks do win now," said another of the same stripe. "We'd always be thinking they put it over just because Chapman got killed."

That's the tone of the talk everywhere here today among yesterday's rooters. No details of the stage-setting of utter tragedy was absent from the death of the popular Cleveland baseball player. He was a likable, thoroughly gentlemanly, yet a fellow who had made the most of the opportunities that baseball offered him. Last year he married Miss Katharine Daly of Cleveland, daughter of M. B. Daly, president of the East Ohio Gas company. Last fall, after the close of the season, he went into his father-in-

Ball Fans Mourn Ray Chapman Spirit of Pennant Race Is Killed

By William Slavens McNitt

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The American league pennant race lies dead today with the victim of the tragedy that ended it. At the Polo grounds death struck down out of the sky of fate and killed more than a man. Like a flash of lightning clearing a sultry countryside it banished the white hot hysteria of the dramatic three-cornered race for a chance at the world's series and literally altered the mind and mood of the baseball world.

Monday millions of men, women and children in every state were greedily reading box scores between the leaders of the struggle that had so brilliantly fired the interest and imagination. Today those millions are speaking in a hushed tone of the player who lies dead here.

Monday the players on the Cleveland team were fighting wild men possessed with the single hypnotic idea of victory and the wealth that goes with it. Today they are a dazed group of broken boys.

Huddled disconsolately together in a hotel lobby, with no thought of glory or gloom, mourning for that comrade who gave him life to the game.

Schedule of Golf Event Announced

OWING to the heavy play on the Gearhart golf links this year, and in order to accommodate the many beginners, it has been decided to begin the annual golf tournament on August 25 instead of on August 23, giving four days for the play.

The tournament will be given by the Gearhart Park company with the following committee in charge: O. W. Taylor, Owen A. Merrick, James H. Colars, C. H. Stockton and John Deggs, professional in charge of the links.
