

WARSAW'S DOOM HELD CERTAIN BY AGENT OF SOVIET

By Barbara Deporte
 London, Aug. 19.—(I. N. S.)—Breaking the pledge of silence which was imposed upon him by the British government, M. Kameneff, head of the Bolshevik trade mission, today gave an exclusive interview in which he made the prediction that Russians eventually will capture Warsaw and defeat General Wrangel, whose defacto government in Southern Russia has just been recognized by France.

"Soviet Russia cannot be beaten," declared the Bolshevik official. "We will take Warsaw. There is no doubt in my mind on that. We are not afraid of the allies intervening. They supported Admiral Kolchak and he was beaten. They supported General Denikin and he failed. Even if they support General Wrangel he will be beaten. It would be much better for the allies if peace were signed now."

M. Kameneff refused to clarify this veiled threat. Upon being asked if the Russians were determined to "sovietize" Poland, M. Kameneff made denial, adding:

"If the Polish people want a revolution we would be glad to see it, but we would wash our hands of it."

Asked if Moscow was urging the Polish workers to rise, M. Kameneff merely shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

The Russian official was asked to explain the "Warsaw-Danzig corridor clause" of the Russian terms to Poland. "We do not want the corridor," declared M. Kameneff. He refused to discuss this issue further, but intimated that the Russian demand for the corridor has been made as the possible ground for future concessions to Poland.

"It is true that it is not easy to hold Socialist meetings in Russia just now,

HOOVER TIED CAN TO DOG'S TAIL AS ALLEY CROWD KID

JUST an ordinary American kid, Herbert C. Hoover, who during the late war held the key to the world's greatest laundries, says that he went swimming with the "fellows," played his share of halloween tricks and was never a teacher's pet.

Hoover visited the scenes of his boyhood days in Newberg, Tuesday. Asked about his brief visit, he said:

"Things change a lot in 30 years. Newberg, a little town of six houses back in the days when I played and went to school as a kid, now has 200. But the old buildings were there. These wooden houses in Oregon seem to weather the rain—and the sunshine," he added with a quick smile, "as well as the stone schools."

SCHOOL IS VISITED

"Yes, I visited the old school, or rather where it used to be. Another building has taken its place."

Hoover mused for a moment, as if drifting back through the years when he tridged with other youngsters into the little county school house (which wasn't red, he said).

But his musing was brief. He was in a hurry. Already due to speak before the members of the Chamber of Commerce, he goodnaturedly gave a few minutes for a newspaper interview.

"It's a pretty safe bet that I wasn't any different from all kids, except maybe a bit fatter," he conceded. "I was in on the parties, from swimming to tying a can to the tail of the parson's dog. Don't believe I ever won many fool games, though."

Certainly Hoover's recollections of his "kid" days are pleasant. A man busy with nation and world affairs even during his vacation, he seemed to slip happily back in memory to barefoot days.

While in Newberg, Hoover visited his childhood nurse, Maria Bowerman, and with his uncle, Dr. H. G. Minthorn, with whom he lived, these are dear to him, he said.

RECALLS ALLEY CROWD

"And they don't look much older than they did as I remember them years ago. And then, I remember, I thought they were old. More Oregon climate," he laughed. "I saw several of the old timers. I don't recall their names. But they remembered me as a boy. So, I guess, I belonged to the alley crowd."

"But I used to go to Sunday school. It has been replaced, yet I remember it well."

"It was good to be back. I'm sorry I couldn't stay longer. But one must move with the times, you know, and I have much to do."

Polish conference at Minsk, but said that there would be an obstacle if the Poles accepted the French view.

COAL MINERS TO SETTLE WAGE BY SUB-DISTRICTS

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 19.—(U. P.)—The scale committee of the United Mine Workers of America, in session here today, abolished the central competitive district as a basis of fixing wage agreements.

This action followed the failure to obtain supplemental wage increases for the soft-coal miners. The committee adopted the proposal of William Green, secretary of the organization, to reach wage agreements by subdistricts. There are about 100 subdistricts, and each one will, under the new rule, negotiate its own wage agreement.

While Lewis and Green refused to make any comment on the strikes declared by several hundred miners in Indiana and Pennsylvania, they indicated displeasure. Members of the scale committee said the new means of arriving at a wage agreement by subdistricts should first be given a test.

Frank Farrington of Illinois said he would make an immediate effort to start negotiations with the Illinois coal operators.

A telegram signed by Lewis and sent to President Wilson said the miners did everything possible to reach an agreement. He said there was no cause for "public apprehension" and expressed the belief that an agreement will be reached through the medium of the new method adopted today.

Brasil, Ind., Aug. 19.—(I. N. S.)—More than 1500 miners who went to work in this district this morning were compelled to return home when day men refused to work until they received the $8 a day wage demanded by the miners in the Cleveland joint conference. All bituminous mines west of the city were idle, but miners in the block field north of Brasil were still at work today.
