DEPRECIATION

Many car buyers in the past have bought cars without due consideration of the one great factor in keeping down the cost per mile, namely, depreciation.
In a used car in good condition, regardless of its make, this is the item that is, in the greatest degree, responsible for the low selling price, it having largely been absorbed by the original purchaser.
Cut your cost per mile by buying a good used car of standard make. Save the biggest single item of motor car expense—depreciation.
Buy from a house of recognized fair dealing. We trust we have such a reputation.
