

SUFFRAGE LIKELY TO BE MATTER OF COURT'S DECISION

Question Has Become Involved in Such a Maze That Judicial Unscrambling May Be Necessary.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 21.—(U. P.)—Indications tonight are that it will remain for the courts to untangle the maze in which the suffrage question has become involved in Tennessee.

Out of the confusion created by parliamentary maneuvering and squabbling, injunctions, the flight of legislators into Alabama to break a quorum and the session of the house without a quorum present, suffrage supporters emerged with the declaration that the nineteenth amendment has been legally ratified, whatever may have been done since.

They are firmly of the opinion that the courts will uphold this opinion, that the action already undertaken by the legislature will prove satisfactory and that Tennessee will be counted as the thirty-ninth state.

Supporting this contention are Governor A. H. Roberts, Attorney General Frank Thompson, Speaker Todd of the senate and others. The anti-ratificationists, however, cling to their argument that final action has not been had.

RESOLUTION MAY BE DEAD

Most of the developments today revolved about the motion to reconsider the resolution of ratification, which Speaker Seth M. Walker made in the house Wednesday. Under the rules Walker had the exclusive right during two days to bring up the motion and he failed to do it. Some hold that the motion died automatically and others that it required further action.

Some suffrage forces planned to kill the motion today and prevent possibility of later reconsideration when their blunder majority might be destroyed in absence.

But when the house convened today there was no quorum. A roll call disclosed 59 members. Sixty-six constituted a quorum.

During the recess anti-ratificationists had quietly gone to Decatur, Ala., to prevent action on suffrage.

When the roll was called, Representative Joseph Odle moved that the sergeant-at-arms arrest any absent members who could be located.

HOUSE UPHOLDS RIDDICK

When the house reconvened, Representative Riddick, a leader of the pro-suffrage group, moved that the motion to reconsider be taken up.

Walker, leader of the anti, ruled the motion out of order because no quorum was present.

Riddick appealed and the house upheld him. The anti, with nearly all their adherents in Alabama, did not vote, and the suffragists just mustered 50 ayes.

The house took the motion to reconsider from the journal. It was voted out of order, following which with motion to send the resolution of ratification to the senate, where it originated, and where it must be enrolled and signed.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS ALARMED OVER INJUNCTION ISSUED

Washington, Aug. 21.—Suffrage leaders in Washington are greatly alarmed over the action of the "Anti" in obtaining an injunction temporarily restraining Governor Roberts of Tennessee from certifying ratification of the suffrage amendment to Secretary of State Colby.

An injunction can prevent ratification. The idea is advanced here, but it is pointed out that injunction seekers may by appeals prevent millions of women from voting in time to vote in November. This, they assert, is the real object of the injunction.

A delegation of suffragists headed by Alice Paul called on Secretary of State Colby today and urged him to proclaim the amendment at once. They pointed out that the flight of the anti-suffrage members of the Tennessee legislature and the consequent failure to secure a quorum removed the last chance of reconsideration.

After consultation with legal advisors, Colby stated that he would not be able to proclaim the amendment until a duly certified statement signed by Governor Roberts announcing ratification arrived from Nashville.

Miss Paul said that in answer to telegrams to the governors of all states asking whether or not further legislation is necessary to enable women to vote on the same terms as men this autumn, she received replies showing that in 46 states such legislation is not needed. The governors of Missouri and Alabama stated that further enabling acts might be needed and promised to expedite such legislation.

It is possible, suffrage leaders state, that appeal will be made to President Wilson to check anti-suffragists who have no hope of overthrowing the amendment, but who seek to weary the women at the coming elections. The anti-suffragists, they assert, are acting on behalf of politicians who fear defeat at the hands of the women.

Miss Paul stated today that the National Woman's party spent $150,000 in its campaign for ratification; $30,000 was expended to swing Tennessee.

Mexican Bandit Chief Still Continues to Kidnap Foreigners

By Ralph H. Turner
Mexico City, Aug. 21.—(U. P.)—Pedro Zamora, bandit chief in western Jalisco, continues wholesale kidnaping of foreigners, having added six more to his captive list, according to reports reaching here tonight.

Zamora now holds W. B. Johnson, British ranch owner, Charles Hoyte and wife, and three others, Harry B. Gardner, Culver and Dietrich. The last five are Americans.

The Americans are connected with the Esperanza Mining company, which is an Anglo-American concern. The party left El Aroyo to investigate some mining properties in Jalisco, where they were captured.

Fifty thousand pesos were asked as a ransom for the Britisher and two hundred thousand pesos for each American. It is reported.

Suspect Thieves of Attempting to Rob Wheeler Residence

The residence of J. E. Wheeler, at Sixth and Elm streets, Portland Heights, was entered some time Saturday, after the night watchman had completed his rounds, and the place was ransacked, evidently for jewelry and money, no silverware or other articles of value seeming to be missing.

Neighbors during the afternoon noticed one of the windows open, and knowing that the family was out of the city notified the police. Inspectors Howell, Anderson and Morak visited the place, but were unable to determine whether any jewelry or money had been taken. I. H. Wheeler, brother of J. E. Wheeler, was notified and took charge of the premises.

Strikes Not Likely To Boost Coal Price

Chicago, Aug. 21.—(U. P.)—Further increase in coal prices this winter, as a result of present strikes in mines in Indiana and Ohio, is unlikely, in the opinion of E. C. Sarles, president of the Illinois Coal Operators' association, unless the strikes continue for more than three weeks. To date the strikes can have very little effect on the tonnage, Sarles said tonight. He declared the strikes came late in the week when very little coal is moved.

Locomotive Engineer Is Scalded to Death

Meriden, Conn., Aug. 21.—(U. P.)—Engineer George Bill, 40, of Hartford, Conn., was scalded to death and nine of the passengers and crew were injured, some of them seriously, late today, when the New York-Springfield Express on the New York, New Haven & Hartford left the track a mile from here and plowed into an embankment. No cause has as yet been assigned for the accident.

NO HOPE HELD FOR SAFETY OF 28 OF STEAMER'S CREW

Only Four Members of Roll of 32 Found From Steamer Superior City, Which Sunk in Collision.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 21.—(U. P.)—No hope was entertained tonight by the Pittsburgh Steamship company for the missing 28 members of the crew of the steel freighter Superior City, sunk in a collision with the freighter Willis L. King, near Sault Ste. Marie Friday night. A woman, the wife of an engineer on the ill-fated vessel, was also believed lost, making a total of 29 victims.

Six of the crew were from Cleveland, several were from other parts of Ohio and the rest were from Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota and Massachusetts.

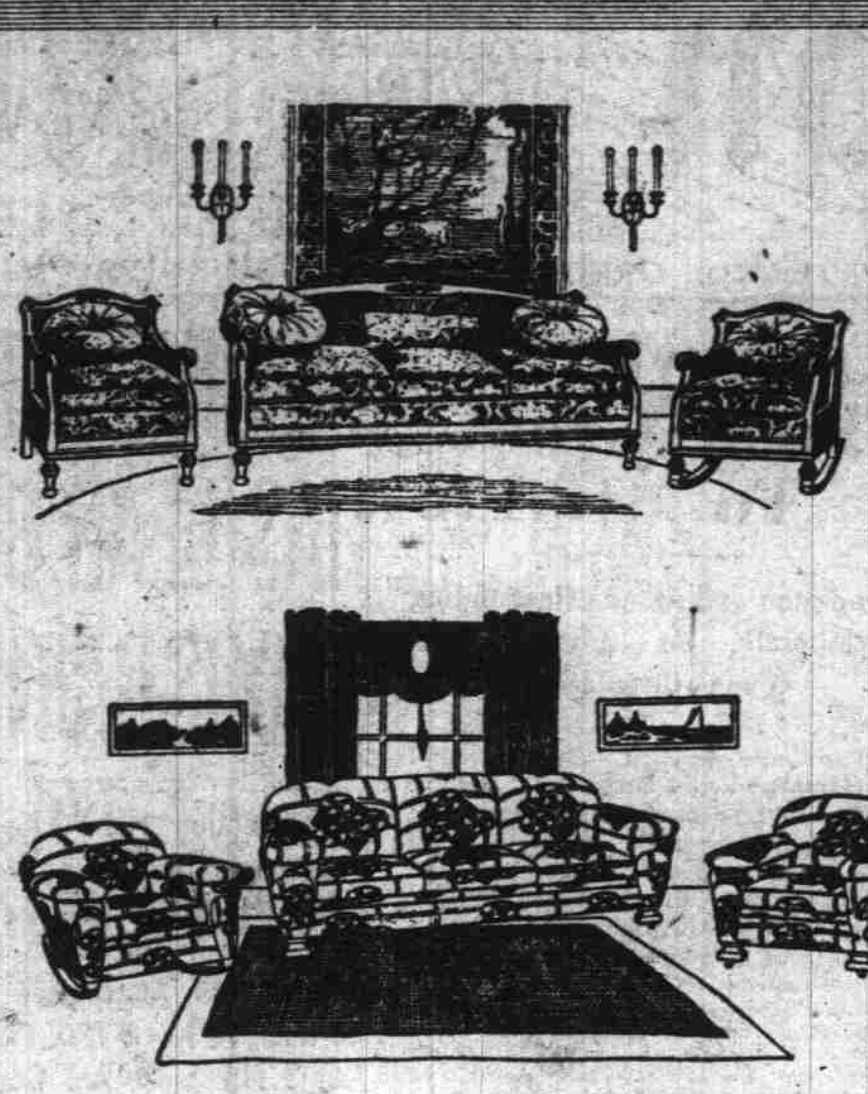

Reports to the company stated that the King rammed the Superior City about 9:30 p. m. The lifeboats on the latter were crushed and the freighter went to the bottom two minutes after being struck. The force of the blow was so great that the stern of the Superior City was ripped away, the reports said.

The crash came with slight warning and the quickness with which the freighter sank gave the crew no time in which to escape. Four of the crew were picked up, three of them by the King and the other by the Turner, another freighter. The captain of the Superior City was saved. The missing woman was said to be Mrs. James B. Eagles, Conneaut, Ohio. She joined her husband for a pleasure trip, leaving their 20-month-old son with relatives in Conneaut.

The missing are: Mate Leo Ross, Detroit; Wheelman John Galloway, Detroit; Wheelman Bernard Masnik, Marinette, Wis.; Watchman Gerald J. Chery, Sibley, Minn.; Deck Hand Tony Gary, Ind.; Deck Hand Joe Conyas, Cleveland; Deck Hand Jay Hiltson, Palestine, Ill.; Deck Hand James Daley, Boston; Deck Hand Clarence Sprague, Cleveland; Engineer George S. Ferguson, Geneva, Ohio; Second Engineer J. E. Eagles, Conneaut, Ohio; Third Engineer F. H. McCullough, Marquette, Mich.; Oiler Peter Koblesky, Marinette, Wis.; Oiler F. G. Ryan, Youngstown, Ohio; Oiler Joseph Todoraki, Cleveland; Fireman Albert Wagner, Pittsburg; Fireman Philip Muehe, Duluth, Minn.; Fireman Arve Linquist, Hancock, Mich.; Fireman John Ghisella, Chisholm, Minn.; Fireman James Burks, Chicago; Fireman Angelo Carlson, Gary, Ind.; Coal Passer James S. Ricker, Gary, Ind.; Coal Passer F. A. Krueger, Jackson, Mich.; Coal Passer Steve Westcott, Chicago; Coal Passer Thomas Hyland, Superior, Wis.; Steward James Harden, Cleveland; Second Cook William D. Bass, Circleville, Ohio; Porter E. J. Richardson, Cleveland, Ohio.

Rescued: Master E. L. Sawyer, Almont, Mich.; Second Mate G. G. Lehne, Chicago; Boatwain Walter Richter, Lorain, Ohio; Wheelman Peter Jackson, Cleveland, Ohio.

Studies of road failures due to the soils used for grading are being made by a United States government bureau.
