

GOVERNOR COX HAS FULL CHARGE OF HIS OWN CAMPAIGN

By David Lawrence (Copyright, 1920, by The Journal) Chicago, Ill., Sept. 3.—James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for the presidency, and James M. Cox, manager of the Democratic campaign, are one and the same person. There are men like George White, national chairman, and Ed Moore, pre-convention manager, and a host of others who are helping, but the testimony before the senatorial investigation committee shows conclusively that the Ohio governor is the real executive in the Democratic campaign.

Candidates for the presidency heretofore have tried to manage their own campaigns but usually have given it up at the end of a brief period of experimenting, but in the case of Cox his friends are not so easily discouraged. They ought to be at work trying to clear away the preliminaries that should have been done in July.

The fact is, Governor Cox is a natural born manager and that he has the faculty of getting loyal and enthusiastic support from his subordinates. But in managing a political campaign a business property are two different things.

In the first place the Ohio governor cannot give all his time to the task of management, and in the second place, the time of the whole campaign is too short to select the personnel who can get maximum results in the period of two months left before election day.

Every indication, both from the testimony of the Democrats about their finances and from the talk of the leaders who have drifted in here, points to a state of disorganization rather than organization inside the Democratic camp.

The sudden intrusion of the investigation of finances here by the willful Marzab, national treasurer, and W. D. Jamieson, director of finance, and even George White, national chairman, away from their jobs, and the organization work of campaigning is hardly started.

Moore takes here of Ed Moore, personal representative of Governor Cox and the man who engineered the nomination fight so successfully at San Francisco, will relieve all the Democratic leaders somewhat, as they have testified to their ignorance of the proof on which the nominee bases his charges and have said he alone could furnish that proof.

Moore insists that the Republicans have a dual organization and that the national committee and its subordinates have planned to raise sums, while, independently of them, state directors of finance and local chairmen of wards and means committees have started to raise quotas such as Governor Cox mentioned in his Pittsburgh speech.

Moore says there is no special need for Governor Cox to testify as he himself wasn't present at the meetings at which these quotas were discussed, but he, Moore, can furnish the names of some of the men who were there. In other words, the Cox can rest upon the expectation that there are Republicans who will testify to the authenticity of the Cox statement about Republican quotas and that after the state finance chairmen have been summoned, the real quotas will come out so that in the aggregate the sums being raised independently of the national Republican committee will be found to have reached the estimates read by Governor Cox in Pittsburgh.

Moore is an able lawyer and makes the threat that if the men who were present at these meetings do not tell about it frankly on the witness stand, they will find themselves liable to charges of perjury.

It begins to look as if Moore will handle the case from now on and that Governor Cox will not appear before the senatorial committee at all, his attitude being that the Republicans who are in the majority on the senate committee will have been given all the leads and clues necessary to prove the case conclusively and that if finances of the several states are probed to the very bottom, it will be because of Republican partisanship and nothing else.

MILLERAND SPOKE OF AS SUCCESSOR TO THE PRESIDENCY

Paris, Sept. 3.—The resignation of President Dechanel of France will be officially announced soon, Universal Service was today informed in the highest diplomatic quarters. It is confidently expected that Premier Millerand will be elected to the office, although it is stated in government quarters that the premier will not accept the office unless the constitution is revised, giving the president the same powers as those of the president of the United States.

Observers comment on the unusual fact that the famous law firm of Poincaré and Millerand is apparently monopolizing the principal of president of the republic. Despite the optimistic reports that have been made, Universal Service understands that Madame Dechanel is extremely concerned over her husband's poor health and urged him repeatedly to give up his office.

"HALT POLES," IS LITHUANIAN PLEA

That every reasonable effort be made to terminate the present bloodshed. It could not approve the adoption of an offensive war program against Russia. "The American government is of the opinion that the Polish advance into Russia tended to create a national sentiment in that country, which ignored the tyranny and oppression from which the people suffer and afforded an undeserved support to the Bolshevik regime, which enabled its leaders to embark upon an invasion of Polish territory."

"To prevent a recurrence of their present situation, the United States government suggests that the Polish government might well take the opportunity afforded by the favorable turn of events to declare its intention to abstain from any aggression against Russian territorial integrity; to state that its policy is not directed against the restoration of a strong and united Russia, and that pending a direct agreement as to its eastern frontier, Poland will remain within the boundary indicated by the peace conference."

Russians at Brest-Litovsk in counter, says Moscow London, Aug. 3.—(L. N. S.)—Russian troops on the Polish front have reached Brest-Litovsk in their counter-offensive. It is claimed in a Russian wireless dispatch from Moscow today, that the Russians claim also to be holding up the Polish attacks in the Lemberg sector.

STATE SECRETARY COLBY AND WILSON IN CONFERENCE Washington, Sept. 3.—(U. P.)—Secretary of State Colby and Under-Secretary Davis conferred nearly an hour with President Wilson today. It was indicated that the correspondence between Poland and this government relative to the warning to the Poles to stay within their own frontiers in their war against the Bolsheviks was discussed.

RUSSIAN AND POLISH PEACE DELEGATES TO MEET AT RIGA London, Sept. 3.—(L. N. S.)—Polish peace delegates will leave Tuesday for Riga, where Russo-Polish peace negotiations are expected to be renewed next week according to a news agency dispatch from Warsaw today. Both Poland and Russia have agreed to the transfer of the peace parley from Minsk to Riga.

Contributions to the Till Taylor Memorial fund as received by the general committee at Pendleton aggregate $12,000 to $14,000 and the fund is still growing," said E. B. Aldrich, publisher of the Pendleton East Oregonian, who was in Portland Thursday.

"Some of the additions to the fund for the monument which will honor the memory of the late sheriff of Yamhill county have come from as far away as Canadian provinces and from Chicago. The offerings were all from men who knew or had heard of the gallant peace officer, who admired him for his bravery and gentleness and who agreed that a permanent memorial should mark the untimely passing of a man whose public service had been so great as that of Sheriff Taylor."

"Eastern Oregon communities are well represented in the fund. Yet there has been no active campaign of direct solicitation. It has been sufficient to know by the newspaper notices that contributions were being received."

SUB'S CREW SAVED FROM LIVING TOMB

at once. Other destroyers darted out on navy yards along the coast and headed toward the spot in the general vicinity of latitude 38.36 north, longitude 74 west, about 50 miles east of Delaware capes, where the submarine with its heroic crew was reported resting on the bottom.

The word also was conveyed to the navy department at Washington, which evidently did not know anything about it until 30 hours after the S-5 had gone down. There were no details yet of the manner in which the crew of the submarine, trapped under water and with every minute seeing their scanty supply of air exhausted, managed at last to attract the attention of a passing vessel.

While the fluky rescue ships plunged through the darkness to the aid of the General Gothals stood by to lend what it could. It was evident that the Gothals would not be able to get the submersible to the surface before the air within it was exhausted.

Men from the rescue vessels attacked the task of boring a hole through the submarine and introducing a hose through which fresh air could be pumped while the crew, hanging at the S-5 went ahead. This endeavor was perilous, but the men went at it with a will and soon a stream of fresh, clean air brought new hope to the sailors inside and staved off the smothering death which had come so close.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning at the navy cadet station at New York near the Battery an anxious group of navy officers waited tensely for word from the rescuers. At intervals during the night radio messages had come, usually just a few words saying laconically, "Men still alive." Shortly after 5:30 a. m. came the news that the crew was safe.

After the S-5 was brought to the surface, her sailors and officers, one by one, climbed out and were taken aboard the Alanthus. As each one appeared, haggard and worn, blinking at the early morning sunlight, the men of the rescue party, who had been for many hours of darkness, the rescuers cheered. A cable was passed to the submarine, one end of it sticking out from the sea, the other pointing toward the bottom, and the slow trip toward land was begun. The Alanthus first headed for Delaware breakwater, and naval messes received her and at Washington indicated the rescued crew would be taken to the League Island navy yard at Philadelphia.

COMMANDER IS HERO Although in a greatly weakened condition, Lieutenant Commander Charles M. Cook Jr. remained aboard his vessel during all of the rescue work, a message received here stated, and was the last man taken aboard the rescuing ship, the U. S. Alanthus. His condition was reported to be serious, although he was responding to treatment.

Commander Cook's second thrilling experience with a submarine came in 1916, when a battery exploded on that ship in the Brooklyn navy yard, causing the death of a crew member. Inquiry exonerated Commander Cook, placing the blame for the accident, upon faulty construction.

STEAMER GOETHALS DOES HEROIC WORK IN RESCUE New York, Sept. 3.—The United States Navy received by radio from the steamship General Gothals, at sea, the first direct details of the rescue of the crew of the sunken submarine S-5. The rescue was accomplished dramatically in the early hours of the morning, when men from the General Gothals crept aboard the portion of the submarine's stern that projected above the water and with hand drills cut a hole in the side of the submersible through which the exhausted members of the crew, who had practically abandoned all hope of rescue, were aided to safety.

STEAMER HAS TROUBLE IN TOWING DISABLED DIVER Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—(U. P.)—The steamer Alanthus today having trouble bringing the disabled submarine S-5 up the Delaware river, according to a wireless received at League Island navy yard this afternoon. Boatswains were being sent to Delaware breakwater to assist in floating the submarine. The crew of the submarine has been removed from the Alanthus and placed aboard the battleship Ohio, the message said.

Members of Crew Washington, Sept. 3.—(U. P.)—The navy department today made public the names of the officers and men comprising the crew aboard submarine S-5 which was submerged. They are: Lieutenant Commander Charles M.

TAYLOR MEMORIAL FUND IS GAINING; PORTLAND LAGGING

DR. BUTLER PAYS VISIT TO PORTLAND

anyway. The middle of September is full early enough to begin to talk, he contends. He has a theory that the days of the brass bands and the marching clubs have passed us by and he argues that nowadays political speeches serve but one of two purposes. Friends of a speaker or friends of the cause he represents are, as a usual rule, the only ones who attend political meetings in this country these days, Dr. Butler believes.

Such gatherings, he argues, serve either to arouse enthusiasm among the rank and file of the one side or the other, or to give a candidate an opportunity to make a speech which can then be published and spread over the pages of the press throughout the country.

The general Till Taylor memorial campaign is headed by County Judge C. H. Marsh of Yamhill county. The Multnomah county committee is composed of W. L. Thompson, vice president of the First National bank; C. S. Jackson, publisher of The Journal; Mayor George L. Baker, Sheriff T. M. Hurlburt and E. B. Wood, chief special agent of the O-W. R. & N.

Local contributions to the Till Taylor memorial fund will be received by any of the members of the Multnomah county committee. Maurice L. Sharp Wins Commission In Engineer Unit Salem, Sept. 3.—The commissioning of Maurice L. Sharp of Portland to be second lieutenant in separate Company A, engineers, Oregon National Guard, was announced by the adjutant general's office here Thursday. Sharp succeeds George E. Sandy, promoted to first lieutenant to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rufus V. Frost, who has left Portland.

Sharp served with the American expeditionary forces in France as a non-commissioned officer in Company A, first gas regiment.

Harding Victory Seen But insofar as he discussed politics at all, Dr. Butler insisted that Harding will be elected. He said that the people of the nation are out to take a wallop at Wilson, and the only way they can do that is to vote against Cox and for Harding. He has been waiting for the campaign to crystallize, for the major issues about which the battle will be fought to be clearly outlined, and he expects that Governor Cox will state his premises upon which he intends to stand clearly and distinctly on or about Labor day. After that the Republican strategists will know how to map their battle out.

Dr. Butler says that after he returns home, rested and ready, he will probably have something to say about politics, and then he will listen to the call of his party leaders and mount the stump. Dr. Butler was the guest of the Portland Chamber of Commerce at its noon-day luncheon and was the speaker of the day there, with former Columbia university students among the interested listeners.

Chinook Cannery To Pack Fall Fish; Prices Announced Astoria, Sept. 3.—Announcement was made Thursday that the Chinook Packing company of Chinook, Wash., will pack fish during the fall season. This is the first packing concern on the lower Columbia to announce that it will receive salmon during the fall season. It is stated the Chinook company will pay the following rates per pound: Steelheads 9 cents, fall Chinooks 5 cents. Silverides 8 cents, Tules 1 1/2 cents. Indications are that but few of the plants on the Oregon side will be operated. Prices will probably be uniform.

Inn Owner Gets $25 Fine; Failed to Tell Police of Accident

George O. Brandenberg, secretary of the Oregon Automobile club and proprietor of the Cross Roads Inn, arrested Thursday by Police Investigator Tully of the traffic bureau, was fined $25 by Municipal Judge Rosman for failing to report an accident. Brandenberg was driving an automobile north on Fourth street, and in skirting a parked machine at the intersection of Yamhill street, the rear left wheel struck Jesse A. Curry, 520 Spring street, according to the pedestrian's report of August 26 to the police.

Brandenberg told the court he had to leave town the day of the accident, and as the man appeared not to be injured, he didn't think it essential to make a report. He made a report September 1 in reply to a letter from the police. Curry said that after picking up his hat and some bundles he was carrying he noticed that the machine stopped 25 feet away, and the driver did not get out. He summoned a physician after leaving home, he said, and found that his right leg was cut and his foot wrenched. His arm was also bruised. Curry is a well-known Rosarian.

SMALL LIBRARY IS RECOGNIZED SAYS STATE LIBRARIAN

"At last the American Library association has come to the aid of the small library," said Miss Cornelia Marvin, state librarian, before the Pacific Northwest Library association at its eleventh annual conference at Central library Friday morning.

"For years," declared Miss Marvin, "people were interested only in the problem of the large city library, and the small library which is our great problem never had attention. Now I believe all the best people in the profession are devoting their time to the problem of the small library whose solution lies in consolidation and a larger taxing community."

The relation between the bookseller and the library was discussed, following a talk by Gertrude Andrus, manager of the Boys' and Girls' book store of Fredrick & Nelson, Seattle. Miss Sarah V. Lewis, superintendent of circulation at Seattle, tried to fix the place of the library in the "sun and other plattitudes," striking an optimistic note in a pessimistic situation. Other speakers of the morning were Milton J. Ferguson, California state

LIBRARIAN, ON "THE TEND TOWARD COUNTY LIBRARIES," AND JOHN B. KAISER, REGIONAL DIRECTOR FOR THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST, TACOMA, ON "THE ENLARGED PROGRAM OF THE A. L. A."

At noon a luncheon was served to the visiting delegates at the University club and in the afternoon the librarians were taken over the various libraries in Portland.

Dr. R. F. Scholz, professor of history at the University of Washington, was the principal speaker Thursday night in an address on "The Making of Public Opinion," in which he said the three most powerful agencies operating today in the molding of public opinion are the press, the movies and the libraries.
