

HARDING SHIFTING TO TAFT FACTION, SAYS LAWRENCE

By David Lawrence
(Copyrighted, 1920, by The Journal)

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Two gentlemen between whom, politically speaking, there is no love lost, are having a most uncomfortable time in this campaign, and friends of both are wondering which shall have proved accurate in analyzing the mind of Senator Harding, or President-elect Harding, as the case may be after next November.

Hiram Johnson is the one and Herbert Hoover is the other. Johnson is opposed to the League of Nations and is convinced by a reading of the Harding speeches that the Ohio senator, if elected, will reject the whole league business, whilst Hoover is satisfied that Harding will approximate the position which Republicans like Taft, Hughes and Wickersham have expressed as their understanding of Senator Harding's innermost thoughts.

HARDING APPROVED IT
Somebody, to borrow a phrase from William Jennings Bryan, is going to find his heart "in the grave" when Harding chooses between the wishes of the so-called irreconcilables and the mild reservationists or friends of the treaty and league.

Some people predict that Harding will make the choice before election day, other say he will wait until after the polls have closed. Meanwhile, the friends of Johnson were elated by Senator Harding's speech of August 28, and now they are correspondingly dismayed by the statement issued at Marion by George W. Wickersham, former attorney general in President Taft's cabinet.

That statement was read and approved by Senator Harding before being issued through the stenographic corps of Harding's headquarters, or it is the first important statement issued from the front porch that has not gone through that process.

HARDING SHIFTING

But the tendency at Marion has been to win the friends of the treaty and league, and the writer pointed out at the time Charles Evans Hughes went to see Senator Harding that the Republican nominee was leaning toward the Taft-Hughes-Wickersham-Hoover wing of the party and more and more away from Johnson, whose cause he had espoused in earlier speeches.

Moreover, Wickersham confirms clearly a view of Senator Harding's position on the treaty which this correspondent found on his own visit to Marion in July, namely as Wickersham expressed it, that Harding would not "wholly and finally reject the league," but would take the lead in revising the covenant and putting it into practical operation.

There is one portion of Wickersham's statement which, however, if the Republican nominee read, he could not have approved, but the significance of it as an utterance on the very threshold of the Ohio senator's home and its resemblance to statements made by Governor Cox, the Democratic nominee, is simply that after the election is over the position taken by either of the candidates who is successful will tend toward the same goal, for the simple reason that each would be confronted by the same set of facts and circumstances.

"I earnestly favor the League of Nations," says Wickersham, without referring indefinitely to "a" league of nations. "I recognize the imperfections of the Paris covenant, yet I should have been satisfied to see it ratified as written, believing the power of amendment was ample to enable it to be molded as national interests might make necessary."

LEAGUE NOT REJECTED
Senator Harding does not finally reject the league. He recognizes that it may have become so entwined and interwoven in the peace of Europe that its good work and its unobjectionable provisions must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that continent.

Wickersham represents Senator Harding as unquestionably inclined to adopt "the" League of Nations when he is elected, even though it may have to be modified to remove all just doubts as to its undue effect upon American rights and interests, which, in a nutshell, is the Taft position, the Hoover position, and now the position, too, of Governor Cox.

Somebody will have analyzed Harding's views incorrectly by the time election time has come, and this correspondent predicts that Senator Johnson will find his interpretation of the treaty and league different from that held by Senator Harding.

Special Chicken Dinner

Demonstrating the Quality of Olympic Milk-Fed Chickens

TONIGHT, from 5:30 until 8 o'clock an unusual dinner will be served simultaneously at the Benson, Portland and Multnomah hotels.

The feature of this dinner will be the introduction to the public of chickens fattened and sweetened by the scientific process of Olympic Dried Milk feeding.

Olympic Dried Milk Feed is one of the new products of the great Olympic Cereal and Feed Mill in Portland, and marks a revolutionary movement in poultry fattening. Poultry given this feed take on weight more rapidly than by any method heretofore known. A greater quantity of white meat is produced, while the flesh is more tender and juicy throughout.

Chefs Theile, Altonser and Sherman will be in charge of this dinner and if you realize what that means you will make your reservations at once.

5c per corn

Ends it quickly and completely

When you suffer a corn please remember this:

Less than five cents and a moment's time will end it by a touch.

Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. The pain will stop. And soon the corn, however old, will loosen and come out.

Millions of people have proved this. Every night a myriad of corns are ended in this way.

Corns are becoming rarer and rarer, as everybody knows.

The reason lies in Blue-jay. It has solved the corn problem for all who find it out.

Don't pare corns and pad them. Don't cling to old harsh treatments. Apply this scientific method—watch it act.

Then remember that every corn can be ended in that quick, gentle way.

Order the Blue-jay now—your druggist sells it.
