

FRUIT PRICES ARE ON THE TOBOGGAN

Fruit products are dropping in price very fast because the public refuses to pay the prices demanded. This has left many of the growers as well as speculators in a position where staggering losses will be forced.

For instance, California grape growers believed that the public was going to make much wiser this season in spite of prohibition and they began to boost values. The price of $19 a ton to growers for wine grapes during the wet period was considered a most excellent one; in fact, it reached that height a few times. This season the growers asked, and received in some instances, as high as $125 a ton for wine grapes. Dealers who bought these supplies are losing about $1000 on every car shipped.
