PORTLAND "ROSEWAY" IS NEW CIVIC PLAN

Sketch of proposed avenue of shrubs leading to Columbia river highway.

Success was assured the transformation of Sandy boulevard into "The Roseway" when the city administration and a committee of the Portland Ad club, Friday afternoon arranged to produce by next year 15,000 choice Caroline Testout rose plants which will be used in beautifying the thoroughfare, extending from East Twelfth street along Sandy boulevard to the end of the Parkrose carline.

"The Roseway," under the program announced, would make more than five miles of rose-bordered thoroughfare, extending from East Twelfth street along Sandy boulevard to the end of the Parkrose carline.

The actual growing of the roses will be conducted by the park bureau at the Mt. Tabor park municipal nursery. A year from the present time, Sandy boulevard will be divided into sections and the planting of these sections will be the responsibility of 12 of the leading civic and business clubs of Portland.

In order to create a reserve of rose bushes, a general campaign to promote rose planting has been started by the Ad club committee.

"Get a slip from your neighbor and grow a rose of your own," is the slogan which Mayor Baker has suggested to the committee and which will be used by it. The conventions held in Portland last summer greatly stimulated the outside demand for Portland rose plants.

"We intend immediately to apply to the city council to change the name of Sandy boulevard to 'The Roseway,'" announced H. H. Haynes, chairman of the Ad club committee.

"The Roseway," thus becomes the gateway of the great highway."

The firemen attached to the station at East Fifty-sixth and Sandy have been invited to establish a demonstration rose garden and it is hoped that members of the Rose City Park club which has a building and grounds just across the street from the fire station will do the same.

J. A. Currey and City Commissioner C. A. Bigelow constitute a committee to organize firemen as teachers of the public in planting rose cuttings later to be placed in "The Roseway." Currey and others will appear before the clubs to demonstrate rose cutting methods so that the club men may also become teachers of home rose growing. Window decorators will be asked to make competitive demonstration exhibits including the mayor's slogan. Prizes will be awarded. The interest of Parkrose community has been enlisted and roses will be planted to the end of the Parkrose streetcar track.

"The Roseway" campaign consists of H. H. Haynes, Walter E. Conklin, Samuel C. Lancaster, A. J. Clarke and H. W. Stone, with J. A. Currey cooperating.

Portland Ideal as City, in Opinion of Eastern Admirer

Portland has been defined as an ideal city by P. Hetherington, secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to George E. Allen, manager of the Louisville Convention and Publicity league, who asked his opinion as to the most important features in the construction of a city from the standpoint of both business and homes.

Hetherington replied in a hymn of praise for Portland, telling of the ideal location, the immense trade territory, harbor facilities, agricultural, timber, grazing, mining, water power, recreational advantages, schools and newspapers. Only three things could Hetherington criticize, the narrow streets, narrow gauge car tracks and lack of diagonal streets.

"In my opinion the wholesaler is a strong, stabilizing influence helping to keep business on an even keel. We have found him very necessary in our business."

"We believe that the wholesale grocery business as a business is fundamentally right and economically sound. The tremendous growth of the jobbing business proves these facts beyond dispute. By loyal cooperation and support it has aided our company in the development of its business and is justly entitled to our continued support."

Dr. George Parrish Returns From Meet Of Health Officers

Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, returned Saturday from San Francisco and Los Angeles, where, in the latter city, he attended the convention of the National Association of Public Health Officers. He is named as chairman of a committee to formulate plans for the organization of a branch of the national association which shall include western health officers, sanitary engineers and nurses. A representative of each Pacific coast state will be named on the committee. Their report will be made to the national association.

Auto Stage Goes Into River; Driver Swims to Safety

Albany, Sept. 25.—The Salem-Mill City stage backed off the ferry boat employed to handle traffic while the new bridge across the North Santiam river is in process of construction. The driver saved himself with difficulty, swimming in the face of a flood current to shore. The engine stopped as the car was climbing the steep grade from the ferry and the car backed into the river. The passengers alighted at the bottom of the grade before the accident.

A crew of men is working to recover a donkey engine that went to the bottom of the river when the falsework collapsed. The other case in that of the Grand Ronde Lumber company of La Grande, in which the company seeks reparation on $771.25, and also seeks to be kept from further payment of the alleged excess rate.

R. J. Knott, counsel for the lumber company, said the rate of 90 cents per cord charged the company for transporting cordwood from Ferry to La Grande, Or., is excessive. He claims the legal rate is 50 cents. Elmer I. Stoddard, manager of the Grand Ronde Lumber company, took the witness stand.

Dayton, Wash., Sept. 25.—College students have been returning to their classes this week, and among those who will be found at Washington State college this year are Josephine Hamilton, Dorothy Israel, Vera and Gladys Conrad, Callie Norris, Ross Brown, Neal Hamilton, Paul Vannick, Earl Dunlap, Emil Lindley and Lee Anderson. Charlotte Dickinson and Doris Romane are entering the University of Washington as freshmen and Laura Dickinson and Margaret Aella return as seniors. Ruth and Gordon Gilmore and Muriel Ryerson will be students at Whitman and Ruth Nash and Villian Chandler at the University of Oregon.

Chaplain of 91st In Milton Pulpit

Milton, Or., Sept. 25.—A large crowd gathered in the Methodist church Sunday evening to hear the new pastor, Rev. C. E. Rexroad, give his experience while he was senior chaplain in the Ninety-first division during the war. He was promoted twice, first senior chaplain and then to captain. He has a complete list of the 1440 boys of the Ninety-first who lost their lives and of where they are buried. He later said that he would be glad to give any information to friends and relatives about their dead. Since his return he has been lecturing on his work in France for the Ellison-White Chautauqua circuit.

County Farm Will Send Stock Exhibits of directors spoke of the need of such a committee and the matter was referred to the committee of committees for organization.

Hitherto the agricultural activities of the vicinity have been left to the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce, but the growing importance of the farming industry and its close connection with other phases of industry has made necessary its inclusion in the work of the Portland chamber.

Military Science Is Raised to Major Dept. at U. of O.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Sept. 25.—The department of military science has been raised to the status of a major department in the University of Oregon, and the curriculum outlined for the course has just been announced by Major Raymond C. Baird, U. S. A., head of the department and commandant of the university unit of the reserve officers' training corps.

Under the curriculum as outlined, just one-third of the 18 term hours involved in the college course will be devoted to instruction along purely military lines. The remaining 124 hours will be devoted to broad general mental development.

"The object of the course, which is along the same lines as that of the military academy at West Point, and approximately as broad," said Major Baird, "is to link the two ideas of a substantial course which can be used in civilian life and the opportunity to specialize in military subjects."

Baker Rejects Two Bids Submitted on Road at Robinett

Baker, Or., Sept. 25.—Bids on the Robinett market road were opened September 15 by the county commissioners and after considering them and investigating the proposed road plans, the bids were rejected. Only two concerns entered bids on the construction of this road which is between four and five miles in length and as they were in excess of the amount estimated by the court, they were turned down.

The county court has re-advertised for bids on this section to be opened November 5.

The court is also contemplating advertising for bids on a short section of road between Bridgeport and the summit of Dooley mountain. There is about 200 feet of road at present that is in poor condition. In order to eliminate this piece it will be necessary to construct about 1500 feet of new road around it.
