

ANARCHY BROUGHT NEARER IN IRISH REPRISAL DEEDS

Seriousness of Situation, but Wholesale Killings Stand Out.

By Percy Sarr
(United News Staff Correspondent)
London, Sept. 25.—Anarchy, which has so long threatened to engulf Ireland, is one step nearer. If anything were needed to bring the chaotic conditions which have existed for many months throughout the island to a crisis, it was only the reprisals of government troops against Sinn Feiners, reports of which are now stirring all England.

The government is inclined to minimize the seriousness of acts such as that at Balbriggan, treating them as "incidental" or as isolated instances of revenge on the part of a few men who have been maddened by the sight of their murdered comrades. Officials will not believe that there is any organization, or any deliberation about reprisals, and are quoted as declaring that all these reports have been greatly exaggerated.

RECRUITED IN ENGLAND

The so-called "black and tan" troops, composed for the most part of former soldiers, ex-officials, aviators and dare-devil war heroes, were recruited in England. This is the force which has figured largely in the reprisals during the last two weeks.

In 10 days 22 policemen and soldiers have been killed, and 18 Sinn Feiners have met death, according to the official reports. In the meantime scores have been wounded on both sides.

In a specially prepared statement for the United News, the Irish office admits that reprisals have taken place, but declares that were the offenders have been detected they have been severely dealt with.

"Reports," the report says, "have taken place in only a few instances. They are not the result of forethought or preparation, but of anger caused by the sight of these men's murdered comrades."

OUTRAGES AVENGED

"In no case have the police or troops taken part in an outbreak without the direct incitement created by an outrage upon one of their number."

"We do not wish to underestimate the seriousness of the reprisals. But many murders have been committed with the connivance of civilians who do not themselves take an active part in the work. It is therefore suggested that the knowledge that this is so has further incited the police to do damage to the premises of civilians."

"Reports that women and children have been driven out from their homes are without foundation."

In the meantime there is an apparent wave of indignation through England at the destruction of Balbriggan and the reprisals in general. Newspapers are printing lurid tales of the sackings of that town, and calling upon the government to crush such acts.

AFFAIRS DENOUNCED

The Evening News, for instance, describes the affair as "never exceeded in horror by any incident in the unhappy history of Ireland."

Similarly, the Westminster Gazette says:

"Unless the government takes stern and convincing steps, these reprisals which are beginning to horrify the world even more than the crimes provoking them, will surpass anything that has gone before. No steps appear to have been taken to prevent the recurrence of the first attack. The government cannot disclaim responsibility for the behavior of its own organized bodies."

Mystery has been added to the murder of County Councillor Lynch of Limerick, who was shot down in his room at a hotel in the heart of Dublin, by refusal of the police to allow anyone to see the body. One report is that there is a large wound, possibly made by a bayonet thrust.

WITNESSES SILENT

Nobody in the hotel has yet been found who would say he heard any shots fired during Tuesday night, when the murder took place. The night porter told the authorities that "the police" had first given him information that Lynch had been shot. It is believed that Lynch's death is another in the series of reprisals by Sinn Feiners.

A communique issued Wednesday night in Dublin claims that the constabulary went to the hotels to arrest Lynch, who was a Sinn Feiner, and that when they entered the bedroom Lynch fired at them. A constable then shot Lynch through the head.

Fire Damage $100,000

Stoneham, Mass., Sept. 25.—(I. N. S.)—The Symmes business block was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin today. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

Judge Martin Pipes Honored Tribute Voiced in Verse

Judge Martin L. Pipes, veteran Portland attorney.

Judge Martin L. Pipes was honored to "thirty years more—in the hearts of his friends" by a distinguished jury drawn from the bench and bar of the state which packed the grillroom of the Hotel Portland on Tuesday last to join with him in the celebration of his seventieth birthday.

The judge's birthday party was a spontaneous demonstration of the high esteem and respect in which he is held by the lawyers and jurists of the state with whom and before whom he has followed the practice of his profession in Oregon for forty years or more.

A still travels the years on the way of fame and innocent infants who enter the world "Willy-nilly" on all its vicissitudes hurried.

He came to the Southland, full nature combined to nurture in sweetness his heart, soul and mind; The songs of the woodland, the river's glad flow, The dreams of the meadows where the lotus leaves grow.

The warmth of the sun and the bloom of the earth Were as spirits of poetry gracing his birth; And right here, and now, we have one of the types: 'Tis a stand-off between Pappas Luther and Pipes.

Through sunshine and shadow, through life's smiles and tears, He's been looping-the-loop now for seventy years; At the bar of that milestone—how few bars are left In this land of its liberties sadly bereft.

The country with foresight and hindsight perverted, By Minerva and Bacchus together deserted;— The bar of this milestone he's halted at last To be tried on the brief of his lovable past.

The jury's complacent, the bench will be mild, And we'll all say "Amen" when the verdict is filed; For the sentence will be, when the argument ends, Give him

Thirty years more—in the Hearts of his Friends.

LARCH MOUNTAIN VANDALS SCORED

One Old Tramp Says It Makes Him "Heart Sick" to See Trail Spoiled.

"If someone should whitewash his initials in large letters over the cliffs at Shepherd's Dell or some other point on the Columbia highway, the public wouldn't stand for it a minute," declares Vincent Stroup, a member of the forest service and an active Mazama, in speaking of the despoliation of Larch Mountain.

"Yet the pinnacle of Larch Mountain is no less a public institution than the cliffs along the highway, and public sentiment should not tolerate its being whitewashed with initials."

Similar protests and expressions of opinion are being made by members of outing organizations and persons with a love for the outdoors and Oregon scenery, and much censure is being brought to bear upon those who practice destruction on Larch Mountain by tearing down the cabins and felling big trees, those who disfigure the pinnacle with whitewash and the trees by carving initials and those who leave campfires burning and dirty camps and trails.

"Larch Mountain used to be one of my favorite haunts," said one man, "but this summer it just made me heart-sick to go up there. Somebody has got to do something if there is to be anything left on the mountain and if the trail is to be a fit path to follow."
