

SUIT BROUGHT TO PREVENT UNION OF SCHOOL DISTRICTS

The bitter fight which has been in progress between the residents of The Cedars school district, designated as school district No. 16, as to whether or not it should join high school district No. 2, took a new turn Tuesday, when suit was brought against the district boundaries board of Multnomah county to restrain it from declaring the result of a recent election.

The suit is brought by S. A. Arata, R. R. Morrell, A. L. Turner and A. Kronenberg, residents of school district No. 16. It is directed against Ralph Hoyt, Rufus Holman, A. A. Muck and W. C. Alderson, constituting the district boundaries board.

The allegation is made that at a special election on the question of the district joining district No. 2 for high school purposes September 20 the vote was 65 for and 63 against; that the district boundaries board is about to officially canvass the vote and declare the result, and that grievous wrong will be done the plaintiffs if the result is officially declared as shown on the face of the returns.

It is averred that 23 votes were illegally cast in favor of the proposition, and that their elimination would reverse the result. Three of the alleged voters, R. A. Cook, H. C. Campbell and E. G. McCaw, were not legal residents of the district, say the complainants, and the others were not legally qualified.

The statement is made that at a previous election on the same proposition it was defeated, and that certain persons then caused a deputy county assessor to assess these persons with one cow, one dog, one sheep or some farm machinery of no value and collect a few cents from each person so assessed; that "all this was done at the request and with the connivance of said persons for the fraudulent purpose of having their names appear as taxpayers," so that they might vote at the special election.

The complainants are represented by John W. Kaate and John Van Zante.

CHILD WELFARE COMMISSION GETS FIVE CONVICTIONS

Through the activities of the child welfare commission five persons were fined in the court of District Judge Jones Monday for having children under 16 years of age in their employ who had not obtained permits to work. The cases were presented in court by Deputy District Attorney Samuel H. Pierce.

Frank McCarthy, dock foreman of the Monarch Lumber mill, was fined $10 for employing a 15-year-old boy without a permit; C. E. Yeager, proprietor of the Ideal theatre, twenty-fourth and Thurman streets, was fined $10 for employing a girl under 18 at this theatre after 6 o'clock at night; a fine of $10 was given Oliver O. Rudig, foreman of the Kilham Printing & Stationery company, for employing a boy under 16 without a permit; and the father of this boy, Clarence Yeaman, was fined $10 for permitting his two sons, 14 and 15 years of age, to stay out of school. H. J. Oppenheimer was given a $10 fine for employing Ralph Smith, under 16, without a permit.

FRANK ALLEN IS HELD TO MULTNOMAH GRAND JURY

Frank E. Allen, formerly deputy city marshal at The Dalles, and who was arrested on charges that he secured the use of an automobile in Portland on the representation that it was for municipal service, was held to the Multnomah county grand jury Monday, after a hearing in District Judge Jones' court. Bail was fixed at $500.

It was shown that Allen, after being paid off for his work in The Dalles, disappeared with a city owned motorcycle, came to Portland for several days and then returned to The Dalles, claiming he had run the motorcycle to Portland for repairs. After that it was claimed he got into the trouble over the automobile.

REIGHT ASKS $5000 FOR ALLEGED FALSE ARREST

Sander Reight filed a suit Monday against the Southern Pacific company, Sam Veatch, one of its conductors, and P. O. Reed, a Portland police officer. He seeks judgment for $5000 damages for his arrest and imprisonment by Reed for one and a half hours at the instigation of Conductor Veatch. He claims that the arrest was made "wrongfully, wantonly and maliciously" and in the presence of a large number of people when the train on which he was riding arrived in Portland, and that he was thereby greatly embarrassed and humiliated.

Gray Held for Non-Support

Clarence J. Gray was arrested at Woodburn Monday night by Deputy Constable Watkins on the charge of non-support and in default of $1000 bail he is held in the Multnomah county jail. Gray has been engaged in the map-selling business, it is said. C. W. English of the better business bureau of the Portland Ad club said other charges, including fraudulent advertising, are to be preferred against Gray.

Divorce Mill

Divorce suits filed: Ethel G. Holce against Thomas M. Holce, cruelty; Joseph E. Gustafson against Bertha Gustafson, cruelty; Beasie L. Riggers against Frank J. Riggers, who gives as a ground for separation the fact that Riggers on September 22 was convicted of forgery and sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary.

Divorce suits filed: Zoe Bell Baldwin against Oscar K. Baldwin.

Journals Fly to State Fair

SCENE at the state fair grounds, Salem, when the Oregon-Washington-Idaho airplane's oriole with Pilot Fred Dupuy arrived with the first edition Journals almost as soon as they were sold on the streets of Portland. James Stewart, prominent legislator and good roads enthusiast, is shown as he bought the first copy sold.

BOOSTERS OF VALLEY MEET AT STATE FAIR

thusiastic crowd of tractor and automobile enthusiasts.

Harness and running races were introduced in the afternoon with a 2:25 trot, 2:35 pace and a half-mile run, followed by a repetition of Monday's automobile racing program and an exhibition of automobile polo by professional players. A regular two-period automobile polo contest is scheduled in the stadium immediately following the horse show at night.

WOMEN HAVE PART

Women visitors have a large part in the afternoon's activities, with special demonstrations featuring methods of home nursing by Miss Roberts in the educational building and moving pictures showing methods employed in child welfare work in the agricultural pavilion.

Visiting boosters are slated to "make the welkin ring" with yells, songs and special entertainment features as a climax to the afternoon's program. Special stunts are to be staged by the boosters at night.

The society event of the week—the horse show—will open at night in the stadium with a program that provides for 40 classes of harness, saddle and jumping horses. The horse show program will continue over Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. Women prominent in social activities in the state have been named as patronesses, including the following: Mrs. Ralph Jenkins, Beaverton; Mrs. C. E. Grell, Mrs. L. Allen Lewis, Mrs. James H. Murphy, Mrs. Matt. McDougall, Mrs. Carrie Flinders, Mrs. Ralph W. Wilbur, Mrs. W. U. Sanderson, Miss Mabel Lawrence, Mrs. Guy W. Talbot, Mrs. Oswald West, all of Portland; Mrs. Fred A. Martin, Garden Home; Mrs. Ben W. Olcott, Mrs. T. B. Kay, Mrs. W. H. Lytle, Mrs. George H. White, Mrs. A. N. Bush and Mrs. W. C. Hawley, all of Salem.

Entries from Victoria, B. C.; Seattle, Wash.; Kansas City, Mo., and Portland insure one of the best shows ever staged at the Oregon state fair. Prominent among the participants will be the J. McCleaves of Victoria, B. C., who arrived here Monday direct from Yakima, where he carried off a major share of the honors. The McCleaves string is composed of 11 high jumpers, hunters and saddle horses, including Victoria, Blarneystone, Prohibition and Indian Maid.

The usual first-day crowd was present at the fair grounds, children predominating, as all under 12 years were admitted free.

The arrival of The Journal plane at the fair grounds at 1 o'clock sharp with the first afternoon edition not only the press was a matter of much favorable comment among state fair visitors. Pilot Fred Dupuy brought his Oriole over the grounds at 12:55, circling about over the crowds for several minutes before coming to a landing in center of Lone Oak track, where the papers were eagerly grabbed by waiting carrier-boys and distributed throughout the grounds forty an hour and a half ahead of all competitors.

The concert by the Portland Symphony orchestra in the stadium Monday night was attended by approximately 2000 music lovers.

Judging in the livestock departments began Monday noon.

Traffic Inspectors Freiberg and Yost have found two other passengers who were in an auto which crashed into a Broadway car Sunday night and sent an entire family of five to the hospital with various injuries.

IDAHO IS EAGER TO CHANGE, BUT CAN'T TELL WHY

By David Lawrence
(Copyright, 1920, by The Journal)

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 28.—Not that they love Harding more, of Cox even less, but because they want a change. That is the way the people who know Idaho's political habits analyze the drift toward the Republican national ticket this year. Dissatisfaction and unrest are due to a variety of reasons, some of which have nothing to do with the Wilson cabinet. But just the same the Democratic party will suffer because a Democratic administration happened to be in power when these ills and irritations came upon the land.

"They will be voting one man and one party out," said a Republican editor privately, "and they haven't any particular promise that the next administration will be any better but they want to turn back. We will have to educate them up afterwards to understand that they have chosen rightly, and we hope that events will justify their votes."

The foregoing opinion indicates that Senator Harding is by no means popular in this stronghold of Senator Borah but that the Republican party is. Moreover, Senator Borah made about 20 speeches in this state against the League of Nations and all factions of the Republican party are united behind that doctrine.

So it is a clear cut fight between those who favor some league and those who favor no league. Senator Nugent, the Democratic candidate for reelection, voted every time he could to ratify the treaty of Versailles. He voted for it without reservations and he voted for the Lodge reservations. He made his record on the principle of a League of Nations and took every opportunity to try to get America to join.

The press of the state is predominantly Republican. Of about 140 publications, only 20 are Democratic and four or five independent. The bulk of the newspapers are against the league and behind Senator Borah.

Nevertheless Senator Nugent is confident that when the Democrats get their organization perfected they will be able to swing the state to Cox. Nugent himself will run ahead of the presidential ticket and unless there is a landslide for Harding, even Republicans concede that he has a good chance in the senatorial race again.

He defeated two years ago, for the short term, the same man who is running against him now. Practically the same influences are lined up on both sides. The Non-Partisan league has withdrawn its candidate from the senatorial race and endorsed Nugent. This strengthens the latter very much and the Democrats think it also helps the presidential ticket.

IT'S UPHILL CLIMB

To this the Republican answer that the Non-Partisan league vote consists largely of farmers, who are Republican on Presidential issues. The Non-Partisan league, the newspapers openly declare, will not take sides in the presidential contest. So it would appear that as a league, the Non-Partisan membership will be left to its own devices and the bulk of its vote is Republican for agricultural reasons. Similarly, the Mormon church membership, which is the other large factor in Idaho's situation is not being instructed in this state on how to vote. The leaders of the church in Utah, although for the League of Nations, kept hands off and unless something unforeseen occurs, the Mormons who have been impressed in Idaho by the Borah argument will vote the Republican ticket.

As matters stand today, the Democrats are not over sanguine. They admit they have an up-hill fight and that it all depends upon the effectiveness in the next few weeks of the speakers and organizers who are just being put into the race.

HEAR BORAH'S SIDE

The Mormon elders and the Non-Partisan league leaders could change the state to Cox without any trouble, but there is no sign of extraordinary interest on their part in the success of the Democratic presidential nominee. The Republican papers have fed the people practically the Borah argument and nothing else, and the people in many sections have been led to believe, for example, that the League of Nations means America must dig into her pockets to pay Europe's bills.

Governor Cox made a fine impression. People liked his campaigning. They applauded him enthusiastically and gave him a reception that was termed by a leading Republican as "magnificent."

But the effort of the Cox speech was to head wavering Democrats and proselyte scattering votes. All the straw votes taken in this vicinity show Harding to be much stronger than Cox. The most conservative estimate in Republican quarters is a majority for Harding of 14,000, which was about what President Wilson won four years ago.

Among the Democrats, the estimate of a few thousand majority for Cox indicates how closely fought they hope the contest will be. Senator Borah has finished campaigning here, but will come back if his friends think the state is in danger. They haven't sent for him yet.

The state of Idaho would cast its electoral vote for Harding by a large majority if the election were held this week. As with other states, unless some sensational development occurs to switch public sentiment everywhere throughout the country, the result will be unchanged on November 2. Idaho is inclined to be Republican.

(Tomorrow's dispatch will deal with the situation in Wyoming.)

Cobb's Permit to Kill Antelope Gets Jolt From Finley

Protests of indignation over the granting by the state game commission of a permit to Irvin S. Cobb, the magazine writer, to kill an antelope, are being expressed by federal game authorities as well as many private individuals interested in the preservation of game species that are tending toward extinction.

George Tonkin, United States game warden, today declared it is "mighty poor sportsmanship to shoot one of a herd of animals of which there are so few remaining and which are so tame it is no trouble at all to kill one."

W. L. Finley, former state biologist and the champion of disappearing animal species, is especially indignant. "It is the wrong kind of publicity for a man to write about killing antelope in Oregon," he declared, when it is closed season and there are so very few left and we are trying to get a reservation to protect these few remaining animals. These people are going in on the reservation where the animals are tame. It is entirely wrong to shoot antelope except for scientific purposes. I am opposed to killing them for sport because that day has passed.

A. E. Burghdoff, state game warden, who issued the permit, is out of the city.

So far as is known here, the author has not yet killed the antelope.

Ben Smith Ready To Face His Trial

Roseburg, Sept. 28.—Ben H. Smith, a fugitive since October, 1914, appeared at the sheriff's office Monday, ready to stand trial on a statutory charge. Ben Kennedy pleaded guilty to a kidnapping charge and served three years in the penitentiary. Smith recently was arrested in Marshfield and furnished $500 cash bail.

Schneidmiller Pleads Guilty

Henry Schneidmiller pleaded guilty before Presiding Judge Taxwell Monday to the charge of assault and robbery, and will be sentenced during the present week. He and two other men held up the Ransom grocery store, 87 Killingsworth avenue, and got a small amount of money. Russell Deck, who is also charged with this offense, pleaded guilty. The third man connected with the case has not been apprehended.

Two Speeders Fined

Edward Brogman was fined $5 on a charge of speeding in municipal court Tuesday morning. C. M. Krebe, arrested on a charge of speeding, was fined $15.
