..... 61,678,000 Total The geological survey also estimates that by storage the total of 61,000,000 available hydro-electric horsepower could be increased to 200,000,000. This would mean on the same basis the increase of the West's potential hydro-electric development

It would be interesting to know how many trains could be operated with 200,000,000 horsepower, or how many factories, or how many electric irons. Does anyone know?
