Salvage Bureau Plan—The Rotary club will decide Tuesday at noon whether it will organize a city-wide salvage bureau for the gathering and renovation of second-hand garments and their distribution among the charities of the city. The bureau would become a successor to the Red Cross shop, it is said. A committee composed of George C. Mason, A. J. Baker and Robert Stewart, trustees of the club, will report favorably on the plan, it is understood. As the project is new in Portland civic organization, Rotarians are taking keen interest in the anticipated discussion. The meeting will be held at the Benson.

Under the new arrangement the firm will have considerably more room inside the store and its window space will be practically doubled. The added space will permit the housing of a larger stock of the merchandise the store handles.

Clothing Decline Predicted—Gradual decline in the price of men's clothing is predicted by Lawrence H. Schmidt, buyer for the Bradford Clothes shop, who returned Saturday from a month's visit to Eastern markets. Schmidt spent some time with the manufacturers in New York, Chicago, Cincinnati and other centers. There is a slight downward trend in material and manufacturing costs, he says, which will be reflected later in a decline in retail prices.

steam roller and the voices of workmen will no longer interrupt scholastic activities at Reed college. The roadway, which has been under repair for two weeks, has been completed, and "day-doggers" en route to early morning classes, are tempted to keep on the gas and spin around the dormitory on the new hard surfaced drive.

Roomers Flee From Fire—Fire in the Old Furniture company store at Second and Taylor streets shortly after 2:15 a. m. Sunday forced 150 roomers at 211 1/2 Second street into the street for half an hour until firemen brought the blaze under control. Patrolmen Kelly and Chauvin discovered the blaze and prompt action of the fire companies checked the blaze, which only did damage estimated at $250.

He refused, the police say, to tell how he came in possession of the articles.

Used Poison by Mistake—Mrs. Alice Erickson, 32, of 48 1/2 Jefferson street, is at the Good Samaritan hospital suffering from poisoning as a result of mistaking a bottle of lysol for a mouth wash. Mrs. Williams said she opened a medicine cabinet in the dark and thinking she had the proper bottle to rinse her mouth. The burning of the lysol caused her to swallow a large mouthful of the poison, she said. Her condition is not serious.

Missing Boy Returns Home—Donald Newcomb, 7, for whom the Portland police had looked several days since he was reported missing from his home in Forest Grove, returned home Sunday. Shedding Ignorance

"It's a good rule to shed a little ignorance each day."
—Painless Parker.

There is an appalling ignorance about dentistry. Many people still think it will hurt them if they have their teeth fixed up. They don't know how Dr. Painless Parker and his associates have taken the fear of pain out of dentistry, and how they do very much dental work without any hurting at all.

If you are neglecting your teeth because you are afraid of the dentist, you are making a mighty big mistake.

When you think of TEETH, think of PARKER.
