

GOLDSTEIN URGES JEWS TO SUPPORT COX AND LEAGUE

Barnett H. Goldstein, former assistant United States attorney, made a fervent appeal for the Jews in America to vote for the Jews in Europe by supporting the League of Nations in an address at the failing school Monday evening. He urged them to uphold the honor of America and pay the debt to the dead by entering the league for which America fought.

COX POINTS WAY
"The thing that should appeal to you most, and particularly to those of the Jewish race and to those of you whose own flesh and blood is even now piteously crying to you from across the seas for assistance, is the fact that one man proposes to cut the knot that ties us to suffering humanity of the world, and the other man, Governor Cox, intends to fasten the knot so firmly that no nation or group of nations can ever again untie it, or ever again bring misery and suffering to your kin," he declared. "Which will you have—a dishonorable separate peace with Germany or an honorable united peace with the world?"

"We naturally feel a deep sense of gratitude to America for what we have been permitted to accomplish here," Goldstein continued. "It is but natural that we should feel that it is our duty to do what Mr. Cox proposes shall not be done."

"The Jews in America have always been and always will be interested in the Jews of Europe. It is but natural that they should be. It can only be done by protesting against any step that will leave them at the mercy, and we know what that is, of the prejudices, hatred and persecutions of their oppressors, and there is gratification in your hearts, and I know there is, it will find prompt expression by voting for Cox."

Goldstein recalled the appointment of Brandeis to the supreme court, and Harding's vote against his confirmation, and the appointments of Morgenthau and Elihu of ambassadors, as a confidence placed in the Jewish race by Wilson heretofore unknown.

BOSSES ARE FLYING
"Will you give your votes to a mere mouthpiece of a ring of selfish bosses, or will you vote for a man whose every utterance brings comfort and cheer to our afflicted brethren across the sea?" the speaker questioned. "You gladly sent our brothers and sisters your money and gifts. It will all be in vain without the backing and support of your government at home."

Goldstein paid high tribute to the works and accomplishments of Senator Chamberlain and urged his return to the high place he holds at Washington.

GILL BRANDS M'ARTHUR
AS TOOL OF BIG BUSINESS

Branding C. N. McArthur as a "Maww" congressman (may as well stay home) and a "reactionary of the worst stripe" and "one who can always be depended upon to vote with the big interests as against the masses," Robert Gill, speaking Monday night at a meeting in the Highland school, said that "three strikes is out, and let's make it so with him and send in his stead Dr. Esther Kohl Lovejoy, who can be depended upon to work for the general welfare."

Dr. Lovejoy detailed some of the chief features of her moral and economic platform, including defense of the prohibition act against all attempts of the wets to break it.

"Congressman McArthur is shown by the official records to be one who always votes on the side of the big interests, where those interests clash with the general welfare and where he must decide between the one and the other," said Gill. He pointed to McArthur's vote against labor in such measures as the Esch-Cummins bill, the Adamson railroad act, the parcel post bill to increase the amount that may be sent through the mails in competition with the big express companies, the bill to take the limit off of the postal bank deposits, and declared him "to have shown himself in his nearly six years of public life in Washington to be a subservient tool of the interests."

"An regards his wet record," said Gill, "I guess nothing need be said, but it might be well to remind the voters that, when the world was starving for bread, McArthur voted to permit the brewers to use bread materials to make beer and that he always voted wet."

McArthur as a dry candidate, a role which he has assumed within the last few days after years of wetness, was, Gill declared, one of the most laughable features of the campaign.

Dr. Lovejoy was scheduled to speak this afternoon at 8 o'clock to a meeting of women in the Calvary Baptist church and at 3:40 o'clock to the members and friends of the Albina W. C. T. U. Wednesday she will speak to the members of the Meat Cutters' union in Forsters' hall, Fourth street, between Alder and Morrison, at 8:30 p. m.

Long pleaded not guilty, but was adjudged guilty by a jury. Besides the jail sentence he was fined $1000.

This morning in the federal court Assistant United States Attorney Flegel asked the court to dismiss an indictment charging Long with violation of the Reed amendment, saying the government did not have sufficient evidence.
