

CAUSE OF DEATH OF 1100 SHEEP SOUGHT

Ontario, Or., Oct. 21.—McPherson Bros. & Evers, sheep men, suffered a heavy loss Monday in a peculiar manner. They brought a band of sheep from range northwest of Hoppner, Or., to Harper to ship. The sheep were turned into the stock yards and it is said they drank stagnant water from shallow alkali pools and 1100 of them died, entailing a loss of about $11,000. The county veterinarian inspected the sheep and sent some of the stomachs for an analysis, to determine whether the water or some shrub the sheep had eaten caused death.

H. P. Coffin of the public safety commission announced this morning that he has received application forms for all licenses applicable to motor vehicles and drivers or chauffeurs. It is the plan of the state auto license bureau, according to Coffin, to issue the forms of application earlier this year than heretofore and then start to enforce the license ordinances the first of the ensuing year. Coffin is urging owners of motor conveyances to apply for their licenses immediately and thereby protect themselves from trouble or inconvenience in January.
