

ELGIN GREETINGS DELIGHT PORTLAND TRADE VANGUARD

By Fred Lockley
(Journal Staff Correspondent)

Elgin, Or., Oct. 21.—The hats of Portland visitors of the Eastern Oregon trade excursion are off to the citizens of Elgin. Particularly to the ladies of the Elgin Improvement club. We were met at our train by a delegation of Elgin business men and escorted to the K. P. hall, where we sat down to fried chicken, baked apples, hot biscuits and honey, and were given a royal welcome.

The entertainment was under the auspices of the Elgin Ad club, of which Frank Keller is president. Dr. G. R. Vetter, the chairman of the entertainment committee, acted as toastmaster. He introduced Lee Tuttle, a native son of Elgin, who made the address of welcome. He told us of the rich wheat districts on Cricket flat and Elk flat; of the profitable orchards; of the cattle and hogs and hay on which the prosperity of Elgin is founded.

Fred Krausse responded in behalf of Portland. Frank Smith, a long time resident of Elgin, told of the old days when all freight came to The Dalles by boat and from there by freight team to Elgin; of the days when all passenger traffic was by stage and of the growth of the country.

O. J. Freeman spoke of the good will of Portland wholesalers for the merchants of the state. The mayor, E. G. Bailey, and others also spoke.

Three cheers were given for the Ladies' Improvement club, of which Mrs. L. W. Denham is president and Mrs. Lottie Kiefer is secretary. It takes a lot of civic spirit in a town to shut up shop for a forenoon and serve breakfast for 100 hungry tourists. But Elgin has the civic spirit and was host to Portland.

ENTERPRISE WELL DESERVES ITS NAME, FACTS SHOW

Enterprise, Oct. 21.—Enterprise is well named. If ever a community showed enterprise it is the county seat of Wallowa county. A score of years ago I used to come here by stage from Elgin. In the old days I have ridden all over the county on horseback, so I have witnessed the transition of the county from a livestock country to one of diversified farming.

Today, in addition to the herds of pure blood cattle and the big bands of sheep, one sees, stiles and dairies, orchards and gardens and thousands of acres of irrigated land, growing alfalfa and other crops.

The past few years has wrought wonderful changes not only in Wallowa county but in Enterprise and the other communities in the valley. Today the Portland visitors spent a delightful half hour as guests of the Enterprise high school, where Cole Commons made a short address.

We were taken by autos over the city, over their only completely paved streets, which have been laid at a cost of $450,000. New business blocks and new residences are in evidence on all sides. We have sat down to some most excellent banquets, but Enterprise made good her name in the banquet served to the Portland business men. At Enterprise we are the guests of the city and if ever I knew the meaning of the term "hospitality," it is Enterprise. The banquet was served in the new brick block of the Enterprise M. & M. company which, by the way, is one of the most modern and best built business blocks in the state outside of Portland. Ben Weathers acted as chairman. Mayor A. C. Miller dwelt on the fact that we were kinmen and our interests were identical. O. W. Mielke responded for the Portland visitors.

W. F. Savin, president of the Chamber of Commerce, told of splendid work being done by the 200 live wires of the organization. C. C. Colt harked back to his former livestock connection and discussed the future livestock industry. G. W. Hyatt, pioneer merchant and president of the M. & M. company, told of the early history of Wallowa county and took a most hopeful view of the future of Wallowa valley. McCoke gave some statistics of the reserves of Wallowa county. Fred E. Greenwood told of the work of the Federal Reserve bank. J. H. Dobbin, Wallowa county's head tax collector and one of the leading stockmen, spoke of how Portland can help Wallowa county. Bruce Cox discussed Wallowa county problems. E. Smith told of Oregon's legislative and economic problems. F. A. Clarke discussed what the prosperity and enterprise of Wallowa county means to Portland. Short impromptu talks were made by others. The Portland speakers are emphasizing the fact that it is what we

PORTLANDERS IN SNOWBALL FIGHT ON WALLOWA LAKE

By Fred Lockley

Joseph, Oct. 21.—Though Portland and Joseph are 373 miles apart, the speakers at the luncheon given by the citizens of Joseph to the business men of Portland conclusively proved that Joseph has a warm place in its heart for the metropolis of the state, as has Portland for Joseph.

When our special pulled into Joseph at 11 a. m. Wednesday, we found a long line of autos parked at the depot to take us to Wallowa lake, a mile distant. Six inches or more snow had fallen the preceding day. The bright sunshine reached from the towering peaks that overlook the valley made a sight worth coming across the state to see. Wallowa lake at all times is a vision of beauty, but with the new fallen snow making a spotless mantle about the lake it looks like an emerald set in newly mounted silver.

BATTLE WITH SNOWBALLS

To see the Portlanders throwing snowballs at each other like a lot of school boys, one would never suppose they were a bunch of staid and settled merchants and bankers. If a man could not forget his dignity a handful of snow down his back or a soft snowball under the ear soon made him almost human.

As we looked up to the sharply serrated glittering peaks that encircled the lake, it was easy to understand why Wallowa county is called the "Switzerland of the West." Above Wallowa lake, nestled in the deep valleys and craters, are 14 more lakes, many of them, like ice lake, filled with hungry trout waiting to match their wits with those of the fisherman. It is one of Oregon's many scenic tourist resorts that, when it grows more accessible, will become world famous.

MORE ALLOWANCE FOR DEPENDENT CHILDREN URGED

Mrs. C. W. Hayhurst, president of the Oregon Parent-Teacher association, in her annual address at the opening session of the convention held Wednesday evening, recommended the enactment of legislation providing for a larger allowance for the children of dependent mothers and that the law be placed under the jurisdiction of the Court of Domestic Relations in Multnomah county.

She also strongly urged an effort toward better housing conditions for rural teachers and a survey of the physical and sanitary conditions of the school buildings of the rural sections; supervising amusement of the young people over week ends and the enforcement of the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes.

AUDITORIUM CROWDED

The opening session is indicative of the largest and most enthusiastic convention ever held by the Oregon association. The auditorium of the Y. W. C. A. was crowded, many standing throughout the interesting program. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Judge John McCourt on behalf of Governor Olcott, who was unable to be present; Mayor Baker and Mrs. J. F. Hill, president of the Portland Parent-Teacher council. The response was given by Mrs. Bruce Kester of Vale. Superintendent Churchill spoke on the Russell Sage Foundation report dwelling especially on the efficiency of the Oregon school system.

Musical numbers were given by George Hotchkiss Street, vocalist; Miss Mildred Nicholas, violinist, and Miss Dorothy Shapiro gave a reading.

This morning's session, which was held in library hall, was characterized by a number of cordial greetings from presidents of state organizations, which were given as follows: W. C. Alderson, Oregon State Teachers' association; Mrs. Iida B. Callahan, Oregon Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Arthur Varney of Yakima, Washington Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Mary Mallett, W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Millie E. Trumbull, Consumers' league; Mrs. R. E. Bondurant, Prisoner's Aid society; Dr. S. C. Kohn, Oregon Social Workers' association; Mrs. Dora B. Schlike of La Grande, past president of the Parent-Teacher association and chairman of the extension committee.

THEMES ARE VARIED

Mrs. Alexander Thompson presented the forthcoming campaign for the completion of the Albertina Kerr Nursery home; Mrs. Sarah Evans spoke for the Lincoln Memorial; Mrs. M. L. T. Hidden spoke for the Anna Howard Shaw memorial.

The three vice presidents-at-large, Mrs. W. R. Wyrick of Pendleton, Mrs. Bruce Kester of Vale and Mrs. Helen M. Wrightman of Silverton, all extend greetings from their sections of the state. Council presidents and state officers gave interesting reports showing the growth of the association.

This afternoon additional reports will be given closing with the little health playlet given by pupils of the Ladd school under the direction of Miss Joan Kramer. This evening's program will include addresses by Professor Alfred Powers, E. J. Stack and J. A. Parsons. The convention will continue over Friday and Saturday. There are about 100 delegates in attendance.

3 Cases of Liquor Brought From Orient Causes Conviction

The maximum penalty under the law, six months in the county jail, was imposed on William L. Gilbert and Louis Emersa this morning by Federal Judge Wolverton, for bringing liquor into Portland on a steamer from Japan. The two young men, residents of Portland, signed up on a vessel to make a trip to the Orient. On the return trip they purchased three cases of liquor. After the boat landed here, the liquor was smuggled ashore and buried in a clump of trees near St. Johns.

Assistant United States Attorney Pledge told the court that a "stool pigeon" for the government made arrangements with the defendants to purchase the liquor and betrayed the cache to government officials. Both men pleaded guilty. The officers also found two large revolvers in the defendants' room. They were charged with having threatened to kill any officer who attempted to arrest them.
